A Trip for Shakespeare.
Farewell Gold.
What Is Good Money?
Uncle Sam Will Have It.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

RATON, N. M., April 26.

SHAKESPEARE wrote enthusiastically about "this blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England." He also wrote, as well he might, in those old days, before the flying machine, and submarine,

"This precious stone set in the silver sea,
Which serves it in the office of a wall
Or as a moat defensive to a house,
Against the envy of less happier lands."

If Shakespeare could have made this trip across the AMERICAN CONTINENT, INSPECTING THIS EARTH, THIS REALM, THIS UNITED STATES he might have written a better, bigger poem.

"This England" could be put down in one corner of Texas and you would have to hunt for it.

San Bernardino County, California, would cover up most of it and improve its fertility. You could take all the rivers and lakes of "this England" out of the Mississippi River, and the water would not be missed.

YOU COULD add all the English mountains and hills to the landscape around Denver, and they would not be noticed. What would Shakespeare have said or written if he could have seen THIS "blessed plot" that stretches three thousand miles from one ocean to the other, including within its borders Arctic and tropical regions, its forty-eight states, with absolute free trade, not a custom house separating them?

If 123,000,000 Americans, with their energy, public schools, freedom, safety, their factories and mines, oil wells and fertile lands cannot make a success of this "blessed plot," ending depression and establishing permanent prosperity with ENOUGH FOR EVERYBODY, then we deserve to have Asiatics come in and show us how to do it.

DON'T FAIL to cross your continent while railroad trains still run. Airplanes will drive out passenger trains and then you will cross without seeing the country. You can't really see it from the clouds. It is seeing giant mountains towering above you and little things close by that makes your country beautiful and worth while.

Flying will be a great convenience, but we belong on the earth, close enough to see the flowers, the young grass, the children coming from school, the men working hard.

FAR BACK from the track stands a big wooden house of the Gen. Grant period, an aimless cupola on top, built when farmers were prosperous.

In a wide green field this side of the house fat and happy red "Duroc-Jersey" pigs wander, grazing. And tiny brown pigs, recently born, dash toward their reclining mother, then change their minds and dart away. That is a beautiful sight to one raised on a farm.

The pigs think they are there to enjoy life. The farmer knows they are there to transform clover, alfalfa and hard corn into bacon, ham, lard.

We have our little ideas about ourselves here. What does the Cosmic Farmer who sits above plan for us?

AT SHOPTON, where the Santa Fe repairs cars, the Mississippi has become much wider than formerly because of a dam recently constructed, backing up the water.

Two railroad men in overalls spend an idle hour at rifle practice on the river's bank. They shoot with rifle at small tin cans 200 yards out, and their bullets rarely miss. Millions like them represent the real strength of this country, its sure defense in trouble.

AT LA JUNTA, COL., 4,000 feet up in the air, the Denver Post comes aboard, telling what has happened. It is hard to believe that Bonfils no longer runs the paper that "blankets several states," or proudly reads his own line "First in everything. The best paper in the U. S. A."

If the dead are allowed to come back you may be sure that Bonfils' spirit, sitting night and day on top of Denver's city hall, "one mile above the sea," is watching his home town and his circulation.

THE BIG NEWS important to the whole world tells you that Canada has gone off the gold basis, officially. Canada practically abandoned it long ago when it forbade gold exports.

The Canadian Finance Minister puts it gently:

"Canada has halted the redemption of Dominion notes in gold."

Gold is abandoned, its last great stronghold is France. How long will France stick to "too dear money?"

THE FINANCIAL world asks: "What is money? What is real value?"

One thing is certain, a lump of gold hidden away in the treasury is not "real value." Money is something used for convenience in trading, something with which you can buy what you want, if you are able to pay for it.

And bear in mind that whatever the United States calls "money" will always be good

POLICE FIGHT TEACHERS IN CHICAGO

New Rioting in Loop As Unpaid Workers Storm Bank

CHICAGO, April 26.—(INS.)—Hand-to-hand fighting between unpaid teachers and policemen, also unpaid, marked a demonstration staged by the vacationing teachers in the Loop today.

Two policemen were forced to wield their night clubs and others exchanged blows as the teachers, 2,500 strong, broke into the Title and Trust Company offices.

At least five women teachers fainted in the fighting and were carried out.

Policemen lost their caps in the melee and the uniforms of several were torn.

The teachers' riot came as city officials and school board members met to pass on a proposal to close the schools for the rest of the summer.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly declared he was against closing the schools and would exert all of the power at his command to prevent the action.

The teachers assembled on Michigan boulevard early today and then marched on the Title and Trust Company offices. They held up traffic as they swarmed into the building and crashed into the executive offices on the second floor.

Plate glass windows were smashed.

The teachers centered on the Title and Trust Company to impress the officials of the company with the necessity of freeing some $30,000,000 in tax money reported to be held by the company in escrow. This money is involved in tax litigation.

SUNDAY BALL VERDICT UP TO PUBLIC

Pinchot Signs Measure For Local Option on Blue Law Change

Developments in the Legislature at Harrisburg today:

SUNDAY SPORTS—Voters in each district have been given the right to decide in November whether they want Sunday baseball and football by Gov. Pinchot signing the Schwartz bill.

BEER REVENUE—Sharp differences in the Senate over the McClure (Delaware) beer bill, licensing distributors, threatened its defeat if an agreement is not reached late today. In the House, the McClure (Allegheny) bill, designed to bring in $10,000,000 in taxes for relief, was being delayed.

HARRISBURG, April 26.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today had given the people of Pennsylvania a chance to legalize Sunday baseball, rigidly prohibited under the state's 139-year-old blue law.

With his first official statement on the controversy which has shaken the legislative sessions of 1931 and 1933, he signed the Schwartz bill last night, permitting voters to decide whether each city, borough, town and township may license baseball and

VETS' BONUS HITCHED TO INFLATION

Amendment Presented By Indiana Senator

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(AP.)—Legislation to require cash payment of the soldiers' bonus was introduced in the Senate today by Senator Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, as an amendment to the administration inflation plan.

The action threatened a further delay in the final vote on the inflation measure.

With debate still raging on the four-point currency expansion measure, Robinson offered the amendment calling for the payment of the bonus in new currency. A similar proposal passed the House last year and died in the Senate. At that time the cost was estimated at $2,400,000,000.

GLASS STAND

As the debate swept forward, the possibility arose that Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, might take part. He is a former Secretary of the Treasury and opposed in committee the section of the measure which would permit the President to reduce the gold content of the dollar.

Senator Connally (Dem.), of Texas, a pro-inflationist, was the first speaker today, frequently interrupted by Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, and other anti-expansion Senators.

Senator Connally conceded the clause authorizing the President to lower the gold content of the dollar by 50 per cent was "not without grave doubt" as to constitutionality. He declared:

"Such question can never be decided by the Supreme Court until the government undertakes to exercise the power of changing the gold content and its further exercise of power by declaring that such new dollars shall be tenderable on debts and obligations theretofore existing, contracts providing for gold clauses of the present standard

PROSPERITY PROGRAM DRAFTED

Tariff Cuts, Silver Increase Among Proposals

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(AP.)—The United States and Great Britain lined up today for a seven-point world economic recovery program, embracing tariff reductions and higher silver prices.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister MacDonald ended their conversations with a declaration of understanding on agreements to be sought at the June world economic conference.

As Mr. MacDonald said goodbye, leaving for New York at noon on his homeward journey to London, the American and French economic experts attacked the problems.

SEVEN OBJECTIVES

Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. MacDonald declared for the following, in a statement distributed at the White House:

An increase in the general level of commodity prices.

Re-organization of commercial policies.

Reduction of tariffs, quotas and exchange restrictions.

World expansion of credit.

Capital expenditures by governments to stimulate business.

Re-establishment of an international monetary standard.

Improvement of the status of silver.

Their conversations "showed that our two governments were looking with a like purpose and a close similarity of methods" at these objectives.

Granting that "between the cup and the lip are many slips," Mr. MacDonald told newspapermen as he left the White House that his conversations had been "fruitful in a way I hardly believed possible when I came."

The same enthusiasm over the results of the Anglo-American negotiations was expressed by those close to President Roosevelt.

Meanwhile, he prepared to sit down again this afternoon with former Premier Herriot, of France, to go into the same questions reviewed with MacDonald, and possibly others.

War debts relief for Great Britain, which was taken up last night by the President and Prime Minister, was not mentioned in their

WIFE DIVORCES EX-TEACHER

Judge George V. Moore today granted a divorce to Kathryn E. Hilty, Smithfield (Pa.) school teacher, from Marlin E. Hilty, 35, former Latimer Junior High School instructor and Boy Scout leader.

Hilty was dismissed as a teacher by Supt. of Schools Ben G. Graham, after he had been held for court on charges brought by the parents of a 15-year-old North Side girl, a pupil in Hilty's classes.

Mrs. Hilty had testified she had employed detectives to follow her husband and that they had trailed him to the home of a girl called "Edna."

On another occasion she testified she returned home and found the bedroom disarranged and her photograph taken from the wall.

The Hiltys were married November 13, 1930, in Hagerstown, Md. Hilty had been twice wed previously.

Resort Near School, Proprietor Fined

Complaints from the Arsenal Junior High School today resulted in Verner Aber 37, being fined $50 in Morals Court on a charge of keeping a disorderly house at 135 Holly way.

Police raided the place yesterday, arresting Aber, Arthur Greeley, 28, of 5112 Natrona way, and Miss Helen Kress, 21, of 2022 Gregory street. The latter two were discharged and the girl turned over to social workers. Principal R. H. Henderson testified girls and boys from the school visited the place and charged drinks were served.

10,000 Teachers Strike in Dublin

DUBLIN, April 26.—(AP.)—Ten thousand national school teachers staged a one-day strike today in protest against salary cuts.

Half a million girls and boys revelled in an unexpected holiday.

Coffins Stolen By Holdup Gang

Mayview Patient Escapes From Auto

Police are searching for Walter Dick, 23, an alleged insane patient committed to Mayview Hospital, who escaped from the city's ambulance today at Fifth avenue and Neville street.

Dick was reported wearing a black coat and khaki trousers. He also had a black hat which he always carries in his hand. He was described as 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing 150 pounds and with gray hair.

Children Playing House Poisoned by Parsnips

Three little girls went clattering noisily down the steps of their apartment house at 2612 Kenn street. They were Mary Lou McManny, 6; Emma Rose, 7, and Marguerite McCormick, 4.

In the yard they decided to play house.

Up the stairs hopped Marguerite. From Emma's mother she borrowed a bit of salt and from her own home she wheedled a knife.

They decided to serve a dinner. In a corner of the yard they spied some parsnips growing, luscious to them, but poisonous to a knowing adult.

With a great to-do they trimmed the parsnips, decorated them with ample salt and proceeded, in the dowager manner, to nibble politely over the alleged delicacy.

An hour late they were playing a game which they might have called "Let's get sick and go to the hospital."

They were in the Allegheny General Hospital, poisoned, and over them stood worried Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. James McManny and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rose.

Today all was well. Bundled in one bed with their dolls, they were ready to go home.

NINE IMPERILED BY BOMBING

The bomb blew out a window in the barber shop of Frank Teresis at 130 West Ohio street, near Arch street.

Teresis lives at 1436 Boyle street.

The blast was heard in the downtown section.

Occupants of the building, who escaped unharmed, were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Marodis and daughter, Betty, 11; Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Stansbury and daughter, Betty Clark, 16, of the second floor; Andy Lewis and his son, Duke, and P. A. Branthoover, residing on the fourth floor.

Branthoover told police before the blast someone rang his door bell. As he started to answer the explosion occurred.

Police estimated the damage at $200.

Hints Kissing Cause Of College Plague

SEATTLE, April 26.—(AP.)—Kissing, says the latest medical bulletin of Dr. Davis C. Hall, University of Washington health officer, spreads trenchmouth, and trenchmouth "is quite prevalent among our students."

WINTER STAGES COMEBACK

A film of ice formed on puddles in outlying districts but an overcast sky prevented a heavy frost.

Below freezing weather with heavy frost is predicted for tonight. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said the mercury would slump to 30 at the weather bureau and several degrees lower in the suburbs. Skies will be clear.

Cities west of here and along the Ohio Valley all reported frost today.

Snow flurries in late April or even May, are not unusual, the weather man contends. April, he says, has had fewer summer-like days than normally.

Pencil May Identify Victim of Alcohol

A lead pencil was expected to lead to the identification of a man about 50, found dead under the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad trainsheds downtown today.

The pencil was inserted in a hole in his throat. Apparently it had been substituted for a silver tube. The hole had been caused by an operation, according to the Coroner's physician, who reported the man had died of alcoholism.

Sir Gordon Cunard Dies in London

FARRELL SEES TRADE PICKUP

Confidence in the future was expressed by James A. Farrell, former president of the United States Steel Corporation, as he put much of the responsibility for the depression on Europe, at the outset of the twentieth National Foreign Trade Convention here today.

Farrell, chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council, told the hundreds of delegates from all parts of the country:

"We are in a transition stage that promises substantial progress toward international understanding and settlement of major questions bearing upon the world economic situation. These satisfactory developments are in large measure due to the public utterances of President Roosevelt, which have contributed so substantially to the changed attitude of mind regarding the advantages to be derived at this stage from a neighborly approach by all the nations to the

NEW YORK, April 26.—(Universal.)—Rattlesnake Bill, of the circus, died in Bellevue from a heart attack yesterday.

Judge Impeached In Crawford Case

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(INS.)—Federal Judge James A. Lowell of Boston, today was impeached in the House by Representative Smith (Dem.), of Virginia, for freeing George Crawford, Negro who confessed the murder of two white women at Middleburg, Va.

Brazil President, Wife Hurt in Slide

Find Beechview Man Guilty of Arson

John F. Arnold, 65, veteran Pennsylvania Railroad conductor, today was found guilty of burning his home at 1543 Rockland avenue, Beechview, to collect $17,000 insurance.

The house was destroyed after firemen said 15 gallons of gasoline had been sprinkled throughout the structure. Judge H. H. Rowand postponed sentence.

Mooney Demonstration Delays Second Trial

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—(AP.)—The trial of Tom Mooney was continued to May 22 today by Superior Judge Louis H. Ward on the grounds that demonstrations outside the courtroom such as occurred today would prevent a fair trial on the old murder charge against him.

The ruling was made while the shouts of Mooney sympathizers echoed in the courtroom. Judge Ward, who recently granted the trial at the instance of the defense, told attorneys Mooney's adherents had "practically shouted in my ear, 'We want Mooney,' as the jurist came to the hall of justice.

The continuance came soon after the prosecution had informed the court it would not present any evidence in the case, which was followed by a statement from Frank P. Walsh, veteran attorney for Mooney, that the defense would confine itself to presenting testimony "to prove the guiltlessness" of the defendant.

Mooney was not brought on from San Quentin Prison, where he is serving a life sentence as the result of a former trial for the San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing.

Buying Rush Speeds Mills Here

Increase in District Steel Operations Continues

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor.

Steel, electrical equipment and glass—Pittsburgh's vital industries—all are feeling the most pronounced upsurge in buying in over a year.

Coupled with this has been a nation-wide expansion in sales of automobiles. This industry draws on the Pittsburgh district for a major share of its materials.

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company announced today that March bookings were the largest of any month since July, 1932. The gain is being continued this month.

Steel mill activity is entering its sixth consecutive week of expansion in operations. During this time output has nearly doubled and executives of leading corporations predict further expansion.

The gain in demand has been reflected in a $2 increase in the price of scrap and has been responsible for firmer quotations in finished products.

At present production stands at 25 per cent of capacity and current orders indicate an operating rate of about 30 per cent within a short time.

Two additional shifting crews were receiving steady work in the Weirton yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad today, according to officials. This was made necessary by increased production at the Weirton plant of the National Steel Corporation.

Makers of glass bottles have been stepping up production in order to meet the growing needs of the brewing industry. Producers of flat glass also report stimulated demand from the automobile trade.

Westinghouse Orders Gain; Chapin Here Optimistic

The past two weeks have shown more definite improvement in the sales of automobiles and in business generally than any previous period of this year, Roy D. Chapin, former secretary of Commerce under President Hoover and president of the Hudson Motor Car Company, declared here today.

He was unwilling to comment on inflation, so prominently discussed in administration circles, but he declared:

"Having had this enormous deflation in prices, there is only one direction for us to move. That is forward."

U. S. READY TO JOIN WITH POWERS IN MAINTAINING PEACE

SLASH IN ARMS BASIS OF AID, GENEVA TOLD

Delegates Startled As Davis Expounds American Policy

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 26.—(AP.)—The first official echo of the Washington conversations was heard in Europe today when Norman H. Davis enunciated before the disarmament conference the Roosevelt policy that the United States is ready to do big things to maintain peace once Europe shows she really wants to reduce arms.

This first exposition of the Roosevelt policy before the conference was presented in a speech made on instructions from the President.

Delegates to the conference were electrified by the address of the American ambassador-at-large.

They interpreted his remarks as meaning that America was disposed to strengthen the Briand-Kellogg pact by an agreement to participate in a consultation pact of the powers.

Mr. Davis's hearers also understood from what he said that the United States might agree at least to refrain from extending any commercial or financial help to an aggressor state once an aggressor nation had been determined.

BRITAIN SEES DEBT DELAY

LONDON, April 26.—(INS.)—An "encouraging" report on the outlook regarding Britain's foreign debt payment, which falls due to the United States on June 15, has been received from Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, International News Service was informed on reliable authority today.

While the text of the Premier's report, cabled from Washington, was not made known, it was learned he expressed an optimistic opinion regarding the payment.

The report led to strong hopes here that the United States Congress would delegate powers to President Roosevelt authorizing him to arrange a debt moratorium pending the world economic conference.

In return for such a moratorium, it was reported, Great Britain would agree temporarily to stabilize the pound sterling at a point below $3.75.

WCAE ALLOWED TO MOVE

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(INS.)—Recommendation for increase in power by radio station WHBC, Canton, O., and the removal of station WCAE from Pittsburgh to Baldwin Township, was made by Examiner R. H. Hyde in a report to the Radio Commission today.

Hyde also recommended denial of an application by station WNBO at Silver Haven, Pa., to relocate in the Monongahela Valley, 15 miles from Pittsburgh.

WCAE would move a distance of three miles from Pittsburgh to a point south of the city. Under the new set up it would also operate on unlimited time.

Education Expense Probe Authorized

HARRISBURG, April 26.—(AP.)—The House today adopted the Wilson (McKean) resolution authorizing the appointment of a legislative committee of seven to investigate the increasing cost of education in school districts.

The committee which would consist of three Senate and four House members, would report back to the next Legislature.

Florida Beer Bill Goes to Governor

TALLAHASSE, Fla., April 26.—(AP.)—The Florida Legislature today legalized manufacture and sale of 3.2 per cent beer and wine in Florida and sent the legislation to Gov. Sholtz for his signature.

Nellie Tayloe Ross To Be Head of Mint of weight and fineness to the contrary notwithstanding.

ASSAILS HOOVER

He assailed Hoover administration recovery steps, including the Hawley-Smoot tariff of 1930, the moratorium of 1931, and the Reconstruction Corporation. The Texan said:

"We saw the tide of distress sweep over the tariff dikes they enacted. And another remedy was the Hoover moratorium. We tried that and the forces of depression, despair and lower prices went marching on and on.

"Then we were told by the Senator from Pennsylvania (Reed) that the R. F. C. would solve the problem. That was inflation. We know now what a double-barreled failure that was."

Interrupting Connally's speech and using the floor in the Texan's time, Senators Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, and Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, agreed that unless international exchanges were stabilized, America and Great Britain face a race to depreciate their currencies.

Reed praised President Roosevelt for seeking to work out an international agreement on monetary stabilization, after informing Connally that the reason the American dollar sank abroad when the recent gold embargo was announced was "all the talk and belief it was the first step in the inflation of the American dollar."

Reed agreed with Robinson that "in order to effectuate a prompt and fair stabilization" of the dollar and other currencies an international agreement is necessary.

BRITISH-RUSS TRADE WAR ON

LONDON, April 26. — (AP.) — Great Britain and Soviet Russia were at grips today in a severe trade war, slated to continue at least as long as two British subjects are held prisoners in Moscow.

Its cost to the two countries in goods alone probably would total nearly $100,000,000 in a year, that being the approximate value of the trade now at a standstill because of embargoes.

Great Britain's 80 per cent ban on Russian imports went into effect last night, and simultaneously Russia retaliated with a complete embargo on British imports and other drastic restrictions on British shipping and commerce.

ISHBEL VISITS SICK FRIEND

WESTPORT, Conn., April 26.—(INS.)—Miss Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of the British prime minister, came here by automobile from New York shortly before noon today for a brief luncheon visit with Miss Lillian Wald, noted social worker, philanthropist and founder of the Henry Street Settlement in New York.

Miss Wald, who is in poor health, received Miss MacDonald in her sickroom and they chatted at length about social welfare work, in which Miss MacDonald is deeply interested. They have been friends for many years. On the last visit of the MacDonalds to this country the Prime Minister and his daughter were week-end guests of Miss Wald.

Body of Woman Found in Ohio River

The body of a woman aged about 45 was found in the Ohio River today at Orchard street, Stowe Township.

She had dark brown bobbed hair, touched with gray, and was 5 feet, 4 inches tall and weighed about 110 pounds. She was wearing a plain gold wedding ring, a house dress without sleeves of blue and green flowered material, tan stockings and sandals.

final statement. It remains for future settlement together with the economic program outlined by the two statesmen.

The debt payments become due on June 15 almost simultaneously with the meeting of the London world economic conference in which Mr. Roosevelt pins his hope for accomplishment of steps outlined today.

'NO ENTANGLEMENTS'

Mr. MacDonald emphasized upon leaving that he and Mr. Roosevelt were just as free now as before they entered their conversations. He said:

"There are no alliances or entanglements.

"You are not in the maelstrom of Europe. But can you imagine what would happen if America and Great Britain can't match side by side?

"I am not only convinced of a hope to come to an agreement, I am going away with the determination we have got to come to an agreement because it is our moral duty."

Speaking on the subject of entanglements, Mr. MacDonald said:

"You will not be brought into the maelstrom of Europe."

He added that a strong independent nation should be the first, however, to extend its aid to others in an effort to help the world. He was confident that America would give this aid. He said several times:

"I think we've got it."

In a happy mood that contrasted with his serious mien when he greeted newspapermen shortly after his arrival, Mr. MacDonald said he was taking away "the memory of the most genial man, who is your President."

FRENCH EXPERTS

At the State Department, meanwhile, the French and American experts resumed their discussions begun yesterday of monetary, tariff and other economic questions.

Also, relations between Canada and the United States were gone over at a conference between Prime Minister Richard B. Bennett and Undersecretary William Phillips. Bennett was accompanied by W. D. Herridge, Canadian minister.

The discussion was on an intimate and informal plane as Bennett and Phillips are old friends. The latter served as the first American minister to Canada and there became well acquainted with the man who now is head of the Dominion government.

The visit afforded opportunity for a general discussion of economic matters, including reciprocal tariff agreements designed for mutual advantage and the improvement of the trade between the two countries, which has fallen off of late.

The State Department was informed that Alberto J. Pani, Mexican minister of finance, plans to reach Washington May 5 to join the world economic conversations.

Metropolitan Signs Paul Althouse, Tenor

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—Paul Althouse, it was learned today, has signed a contract to sing next season with the Metropolitan Opera.

Althouse, the first American-born and trained tenor to make his debut at the Metropolitan in a principal role, will sing in the German section.

SWOPE OFFERS NEW 30-HOUR WEEK PLAN

General Electric Head Would Apply Rule to All on Low Pay

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(AP.)—A new alternative to the Black 30-hour work week bill, under which all but agricultural and domestic labor would be limited to an average of 32 hours a week, was proposed to the House Labor Committee today by Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Company.

He advanced his program after William Green, president of the American Federation of labor, had pronounced his organization's general approval of the pending bill, a six-hour, five-day week proposal, and of the change advocated by Secretary Frances Perkins of Labor for Federal control of production.

WAGE BASE FOUGHT

Green opposed Miss Perkins' plan for minimum wage legislation, saying it had been the rule that minimums set by the government became the maximum paid. He sought general application of the 30-hour week, however, while the bill as passed by the Senate exempts many classes of workers.

Swope, too, sought this general application, and criticized the Black bill as too rigid for practical application and not sufficiently far reaching.

The average working time he proposed would be limited in this way: No more than 832 hours per man in any 26-week period; no more than 48 hours in any one week; no more than eight hours in any one day.

TWO-YEAR LIMIT

The plan would be limited to two years as an emergency program, the Labor Department should have power to set minimum wages by localities for men, women or children; there should be a maximum of co-operation and administration by Chambers of Commerce and trade associations.

The limit of application would be such as to include all public and private employment except agricultural or domestic, for which earnings are less than $1,800 per annum on a full time basis.

GLASSPORT FIRE JAILS FIVE

A girl and four men were arrested today by Glassport police investigating the fire which swept two garages and apartment houses in Monongahela avenue, Glassport, yesterday.

The police said Joseph Bennett, 23, of Glassport, had confessed the fire started when a lighted match was accidentally dropped into a puddle of gasoline while he was emptying gasoline from a truck in one of the garages where he was employed. Bennett was burned on the hand.

The girl, Anna Downes, 24, of Hazel street, McKeesport, was not implicated beyond being present.

The other prisoners, all to be arraigned today, are Paul Snyder, 23; Frank Raszewski, 23, and Robert Wawrzeniak, 22, all of Glassport.

Needle-jag Fatal

LUCY VIRGINIA RAVEN

Blood poisoning resulting from her hand being pricked with a needle caused the death of Miss Lucy Virginia Raven, 19, promising Pittsburgh artist, for whom funeral services were held today.

Miss Raven's artistic talents have been highly praised by Pittsburgh critics. She began to sketch at an early age.

RODGERS QUITS AS RELIEF HEAD

HARRISBURG, April 26.—William B. Rodgers, of Pittsburgh, today anonunced his resignation as executive director of the State Emergency Relief Board.

Rodgers said he had told Gov. Pinchot last week of his intention, and that the Governor had accepted his resignation.

Mr. Rodgers gave as his reason press of private business as well as some public activities which will take him throughout the state.

While there was no open rupture, and Gov. Pinchot and Mr. Rodgers continue friends, it is known their opinions have always been irreconcilable on the subject of commissaries and community markets as relief agencies.

The Governor has favored the commissary plan. Mr. Rodgers has believed food orders should be given through retail grocers.

Probe of Relief In State Proposed

HARRISBURG, April 26.—Senator Chauncey W. Parkinson today offered a resolution providing for a regislative investigation of the relief situation in Pennsylvania. Parkinson would create a commission of three Senators and four Representatives to determine the need, whether relief is going to undeserving, cost of administration and the desirability of the commissary system.

His resolution is similar to the questionnaire sent out by Republican State Chairman Martin, two weeks ago.

House Votes Power Rights to New York

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(AP.)—The McReynolds resolution vesting the New York State Power authority with right over all power produced from the projected St. Lawrence seaway was adopted today by the House.

The measure now goes to the Senate, which has pending before it the controverted question of ratification of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway treaty between Canada and the United States.

Chicago Racketeers New Golf Hazard

CHICAGO, April 26.—(AP.)—Add to golf hazards—racketeers.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney reported he had complaints from golf course operators that racketeers had threatened to tear up the greens unless they were permitted to install slot machines in club houses.

EYE REMOVED, BABY'S LIFE IN BALANCE

Success of Operation To Save Vasco Child Still in Doubt

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—Helen Vasco, 2-year-old girl whose eye trouble has become the concern of half the nation, was reported in a "satisfactory" condition today after an operation that removed her left eye.

Only time will tell, however, whether the operation, which had been opposed bitterly by the girl's mother, was performed in time to save the child from death.

The eye and a malignant tumor behind it were removed in 15 minutes late yesterday by Dr. John H. Dunnington, assistant to Dr. John M. Wheeler, who in 1931 removed a cataract from the eye of the King of Siam.

After the operation, which had been ordered by two courts over the mother's objection, officials at Presbyterian Hospital said her condition was "entirely satisfactory," although expressing the opinion the surgery should have been performed sooner.

John Vasco, immigrant laborer and father of Helen, came from his Hastings-on-Hudson home with Mrs. Vasco to console Helen before the operation. The girl wept before the ether was administered.

If all goes well, Helen will be out of the hospital in a week or so, and after the eye socket heals will be fitted with a glass eye.

BROTHERS HELD IN ROBBERY

Two brothers, Lawrence, 30, and Bernard Otten, 28, of 50 Wabash avenue, West End, were held for court today by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg. They were charged with robbery, felonious shooting and larceny.

Detectives testified the brothers disarmed Highway Patrolman P. R. Clark and wounded Edward M. Kronze, of 1102 Crucible street, Elliott, in a gun battle April 8. They escaped and were captured two days later in Cleveland.

money, unless we play the fool and print money recklessly.

ON A DESERTED island no money would be good money because it couldn't BUY anything. You might have all the gold of the United States and France combined on a rocky island out in the Pacific and starve to death.

American money will be the world's best money because it will buy ANYTHING IN AMERICA and in America our people and the whole world can buy everything they could possibly need. There is no need for us to worry, except about the intelligence of those that rule us, and decide on the amount of money to be printed, and how to distribute it. There must be enough money to play the game of industry, trade and prosperity, and no more, no reckless inflating.

SENATOR TYDINGS, of Maryland, will not go along with his Democratic colleagues and vote to abandon gold. He will take "a firm stand against inflation."

If he suddenly had ten children, added to his family, he would add a few rooms to his house and call it common sense, not inflation. The world has outgrown its little lump of gold.

Mr. Tydings says going off the gold standard "means a policy of isolation for America." What would you call isolation? We have Canada, Mexico, practically all of South America to keep us company, also the British empire, not to mention one thousand million human beings that have never been on the gold standard. If that is "isolation," Uncle Sam should be able to stand it.

Pinchot Blames Mellon, Reed for Depression

HARRISBURG, April 26.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot charged in a statement last night that U. S. Senator David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh, is "trying to block President Roosevelt's plans to end the depression."

Asserting that he is "100 per cent for the plan of President Roosevelt for a controlled currency inflation," the Governor said that Reed, in his opposition, "is representing the concentrated wealth of Pennsylvania instead of the common people."

Pinchot claimed that it was "during the time that the Mellons, the Hoovers and the Reeds were in absolute control," that the depression "hurled the nation into the abyss in which it now finds itself."

He said Reed "stubbornly places himself in the path of progress" and that even if Senator Reed does not know it, "a vast majority of the people of Pennsylvania today want to see the new deal get into operation."

Pinchot added that America has found that it has "chosen a President in whom are the rare gifts of leadership, responsibility and common sense."

New Bonus March Plan Alarms Capital

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(INS.)—Alarmed at elaborate preparations being carried on quietly for another bonus march on Washington May 12, friends of the bonus movement in Congress disclosed they will appeal to President Roosevelt to halt the march.

Reports of another bonus expeditionary force were not taken seriously until members of Congress learned that thousands of mimeographed letters were being sent to all parts of the country.

The movement, it was disclosed, is as well organized as was the first "bonus march" at its inception.

Unsuccessful efforts have been made in the past 24 hours by Congressional advocates of the bonus to persuade the organizers to abandon their plan.

The campaign is being carried on by the Veterans' national liaison committee, with headquarters in Washington. Its leaders are Edwin J. Williams, of the "Khaki Shirts," and George Brady, of the former B. E. F.

Representative Kvale (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, a bonus advocate, and Representative Wright Patman (Dem.), of Texas, author of the cash payment of the bonus bill, both urged abandonment of the plan.

The bonus "invitation" calls all veterans to Washington on May 12. The next day, May 13, is described as national conference day for organization. On May 15 the organizers propose to have a parade with disabled veterans leading it.

FIGHT TO CLEAR 'SPY' LEADS TO FINDING KITCHENER GOLD

OCEAN YIELDS HAMPSHIRE'S TREASURE

Relative of Suspect Locates Wreckage In North Sea

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—Recovery of a fortune in gold from H. M. S. Hampshire, the British warship which carried Earl Kitchener to his death in the North Sea during the World War, was disclosed today.

The salvaged treasure amounted to £15,000, the first yellow metal to be taken from the Hampshire's strong boxes. Its recovery brought to the world the first authentic information that Kitchener carried a large treasure on his ill-fated mission to Russia to help bolster up the Russian armies in the cause of the Allies.

Discovery of the gold was disclosed in authoritative advices from Europe, a laconic message that might have been taken from a ship's log. The only other detail it carried was that there was rejoicing among the crew of the salvage ship.

VINDICATION EFFORT

The report is that the search resulted, not from the lure of sunken treasure, but from the determination of a man to clear the name of a relative he said was accused of having given information to the Germans and thus aided in sending Kitchener to his death in one of the major tragedies of the World War nearly 17 years ago.

The names of the participants have not been disclosed. As the story goes, it began four years ago, when this man determined to try to locate the Hampshire to settle for himself the question in his own mind of how the Hampshire was sunk. He proceeded, even though the records show that the warship struck a mine.

Beginning methodically, he first sought every sailor connected with mine layers in the district off the West Orkney Islands during the war. Finally he located a man who had worked on a mine layer that had operated in the district. The sailor had kept a scrapbook record of every mine his ship had laid, and after a search the old scrapbook was located in the attic of the sailor's home in Germany.

WRECK LOCATED

Armed with this information, the relative interested a fishing captain in his quest and soundings were taken. Finally he located what he believed was the wreck of the Hampshire. Going down in a diving suit, he recovered a piece of a corroded smokestack which convinced him his find was genuine.

Then came the effort to interest someone with capital in the venture, but it was only after the relative learned the Hampshire carried gold that he received any backing.

Salvaging operations since have been going on, but the depth of the sea, the shifting of the ocean's bottom and the heavy armor of the ship have hampered progress.

MRS. LEON FILES FAY VALLEE SUIT

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. Fay Webb Vallee, wife of Rudy Vallee, was named defendant in a $100,000 alienation of affections suit filed in Supreme Court today by Mrs. Kathleen Leon, wife of Garfield Leon, an actor.

Mrs. Leon, in her complaint, charged that last January Mrs. Vallee offered Leon sums of money to go with her to Santa Monica, Cal., and in other ways tried to induce him to leave his wife. The complaint alleged that sometime during the present month Mrs. Vallee induced Leon to leave his wife.

A summons in the suit was served on Mrs. Vallee April 7 last as she boarded a train at Harmon, N. Y., for her home in California. A few days earlier counsel for Vallee announced the Vallees "have finally definitely reached the parting of the ways." The lawyer said a property settlement had been arranged, but no agreement had been reached "as to whether there shall be a divorce."

Told to 'Get Out,' Wife Wins Divorce

Mrs. Elizabeth Seville Stevens, of 7 North Sprague avenue, Bellevue, was granted a divorce today from Louis O. Stevens, of Overbrook, by Judge George V. Moore.

At the hearing the young wife testified her husband upbraided her because a glass pitcher broke when hot coffee was served in it at his insistence. She told the court he ordered her to "pack up and get out" and that she became so nervous she was compelled to consult a specialist. The Stevens were married February 14, 1927.

Wife Charges Partie Embarrassed Her; Called 'Poor Sport'

Life was just one argument after another for Catherine Anthony, stenographer-flier, and her husband, James, also an aviator, she testified in the hearing of her divorce suit.

She told Judge George V Moore:

"Because I did not drink or smoke he called me a poor sport."

She refused to attend parties to which he went as they embarrassed her, she testified. She also charged him with using improper language toward her.

Mrs. Anthony, 28, lives in the suburban district back of Millvale. She was married in 1925, she said, and her husband never supported her. The case was not contested.

CAPONE APPEAL UP IN COURT

NEW ORLEANS, April 26.—(AP.)—The appeal of Al Capone, former Chicago gangster, seeking freedom from the penitentiary on a writ of habeas corpus, was argued today before the United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Capone, serving a 10-year sentence in the Atlanta Penitentiary for conviction in Chicago of evading the income tax laws in 1926, 1927 and 1928, lost his petition for a writ of habeas corpus in Atlanta Federal District Court and appealed to the Circuit Court here.

Attorneys representing the former Chicago public enemy No. 1 argued today that he should be released because the statute of limitations had run prior to the time Capone was indicted, June 5, 1931.

INSULL NAMED IN DIVORCE SUIT

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—(AP.)—A divorce was granted today to Mrs. Marion Strongheart, known on the opera stage as Marion Campbell, from Nipi Strongheart, Indian author and lecturer.

Mrs. Strongheart charged her husband associated with other women.

Strongheart brought the name of Samuel Insull, fugitive Chicago utilities magnate, into the case with the assertion his wife corresponded with Insull and once sent him roses when he left for Europe.

HURRICANE HITS BERMUDA

HAMILTON, Bermuda, April 26.—(AP.)—A brief but violent hurricane struck Bermuda today.

It unroofed a few houses and disrupted shipping, but caused no great damage and no loss of life.

The yacht Orion, owned by Julius Forstmann, of New York, was swept ashore. Two liquor-carriers were grounded.

MT. EVEREST PHOTOGRAPHER TELLS GRAPHIC STORY OF 'SHOOTING' PEAKS

The writer of this dispatch was chief observer of the Houston Mt. Everest flight expedition. He describes here the difficulties met and conquered in photographing the summits of Mt. Everest and surrounding peaks from the air. Col. Blacker was in the plane piloted by the Marquess of Clydesdale.

By LIEUT. COL. L. V. STEWART BLACKER

PURNEA, India, April 26.—The time has come to marshal one's original impressions of the great flight and to set down its results and some of its lessons.

The object of the venture was the production of scientific results, chief among which were to be the taking of photographs showing the geographer the conformation of the inaccessible southern declivities of the mighty Mt. Everest.

The photographic results have surpassed expectations. Partly due to the clearness of the air, only tempered by the passage through the famous "snow plume," but mainly because of the excellence of the cameras, I was able to obtain 35 good glass negatives. Mention should be made here of the excellent manner in which the oxygen gear and heated clothing behaved, because without this the great exertions called for from the operator at altitudes of about 33,000 feet would not have been possible.

A hitch manifested itself when we reached the 6,000-foot level. The big dynamo on which all depended suddenly displayed a temperamentalism known to electricians as a refusal to "build up." I had to unscrew the cover of the accumulator cutout and press the contacts together.

These tasks caused me to lose touch with the ground over which we were passing but later, through the open hatch in the floor I made out the outline of the Mahabharat range which ran athwart our course, and soon afterwards the three rivers, Kosi, Arun and Tamar.

We rose up through the haze till the altimeter showed nearly 19,000 feet, and to the East there leaped up the gleaming white summit of Kanchenjunga, with our companion machine showing sharply above it. Here was a mark for my camera.

As the chill was numbing my bare right hand, there rose up straight to the front Mt. Everest, with its mighty companion, Makalu.

Ice rattled into the cockpit, out of the great frozen plume of the mountain into whose heart we had ventured. Slowly our machine made headway against the great wind from the west, now allied with the immense overfall of air coming down over the crest. Frantically I exposed plate after plate.

Reaching next for the reserve spool of film for the cinematograph camera I found, to my disgust, that it had frozen and become brittle, flying into splinters as I touched it. This was the more remarkable, because the plate camera, warmed by the same current, had maintained an admirable temperature. I had to fall back on the plate camera again, taking picture after picture.

I felt that t' was the acme of the toils on which I had labored for 10 long, hard months, and the task was achieved on which I had set my heart for years. Mt. Everest was inviolate no longer. Man and his craft had passed over its summit, the top of the world.

TRADE LEADERS MEET HERE TO AID RECOVERY

study and solution of our world problems."

Farrell said artificial and uneconomic remedies resorted to in other countries was in great part responsible for the inability of the United States to escape from "the vicious circle" created by depreciated currencies, exchange controls, embargoes on imports, quotas and "other fantastic schemes which operate in restraint of international trade."

3 YEARS OF FUTILITY

He added it has taken three years to impress upon these countries the futility of remedies that only tend to prolong the world depression and to destroy their hopes of national recovery.

Economic isolation policies have failed to solve problems in the international situation, he said, and continued:

"It is in these circumstances that conferences are taking place at Washington, with the primary object of securing a return by all naitons to stable currencies, and the removal of artificial obstacles to world trade recovery."

There was a note of warning to European commerce in Mr. Farrell's speech because of the difficulties confronting the United States in European countries.

He said:

"Those who despair of a return of our export trade to its former level take a shortsighted view of the potentialities of the world market. The backward countries of the world form the reserve market of the twentieth century. To these untilled fields the enterprising foreign trader must turn his steps, where millions of potential consumers must one day demand a higher standard of living."

PIONEERING NEEDED

He said the United States must pay greater attention to the possibilities awaiting in Latin America, the Orient and Africa, and continued:

"The pioneering spirit of an earlier America is needed to convert our doubts into sanguine hopes regarding the outlook for our foreign trade."

Farrell said there is considerable doubt concerning the practical results to be gained in respect to world trade relations by means of an international conference. Practical results are more likely to be obtained, he said, by means of bilateral trade agreements—where two countries negotiate with each other regarding the tariffs to be imposed on certain products in which both are interested. He added:

"Agreements arrived at can then be made applicable to other countries through most-favored-nation treaties. Experience has shown how difficult it is to direct discussion at international conferences into practical channels of definite accord."

DEFENDS TARIFF

Mr. Farrell came to the defense of the United States protective tariff. He said the decline in export trade is due not alone to unjustifiable discrimination against the American trade, but to a combination of unsettling influences abroad that have reduced the buying power of countries which have been unable to overcome the secondary effects of the war period. He added:

"Tariff reductions in the United States would have had no material effect in preventing the monetary and economic difficulties abroad which had their origin in unstable political and social conditions unrelated to the tariff question."

In concluding, Mr. Farrell said:

"Those who see nothing but clouds on the trade horizon should remember that this world is still in an early evolutionary stage of industrial development and trade expansion. Although not strikingly apparent, there is evidence of a slowly gathering momentum, reflected in our domestic trade, and in advances in prices of basic commodities, which ultimately will influence our foreign trade as well."

CITES COAL DUMPING

Vital interest of Pittsburgh in the international situation was pointed out by James S. Carson, vice president of the American and Foreign Power Company, in discussing the marketing of coal.

Pittsburgh has suffered greatly because of depreciated foreign currencies, he said, explaining:

"Until a few days ago, Welsh coal could be laid down cheaper at certain Latin American ports than your Pocahontas coal could be sold at the mouth of the mine here. If your coal was given away and only the transportation charges paid, Welsh coal still would be cheaper at those ports."

At the end of the convention Friday, concrete proposals designed to aid the government in its discussions with foreign powers of trade relations and currency stabilization are expected to be drawn up. Leaders saw these as means of promoting domestic prosperity.

Noyes Again Head Of Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—Frank B. Noyes, publisher of the Washington Star, was re-elected president of the Associated Press by the board of directors, in session yesterday following the annual meeting of the organization.

William J. Pape, of the Waterbury Republican, became first vice president, succeeding George B. Longan, of the Kansas City Star, who was elected a director. Mr. Pape is succeeded as second vice president by William Randolph Hearst, Jr.

UTILITY STOCK 'DEALS' AIRED

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(AP.)—A statement that the Henry L. Doherty interests "created" a large part of the total demand for Cities Service Company common stock during stock market operations in 1927 was made before the Federal Trade Commission today by Thomas W. Mitchell, commission examiner.

The examiner submitted in evidence extensive tabulations showing prices on the New York Curb Exchange for the common stock; prices of market purchases by the Cities Service Securities Company and the total volume of transactions.

Referring to his tabulation of transactions in the stock in April, 1927, Mitchell said that except for three days, the volume of trading on the Curb Exchange rose and fell with the volume of purchases by the securities company. Mitchell was asked:

"What inference can be drawn from this?"

He replied:

"The natural inference to be drawn from the facts is that a very large proportion of the total demand for Cities Service Company common stock expressed in purchases on the New York Curb Exchange was not furnished by the independent general investing public. It was furnished by the Doherty management for account of the securities company."

TRADE LEADERS WELCOMED BY HERRON

A hope that out of the studies of the National Foreign Trade convention will come better conditions and a new prosperity for industrial Pittsburgh was expressed by Mayor John S. Herron in welcoming the delegates to the convention at the William Penn Hotel today.

Seven hundred delegates were registered at the opening of the convention.

James A. Farrell, former president of the United States Steel Corporation, in opening the convention, called Pittsburgh his home. He said it was here he spent his boyhood.

It is appropriate, Farrell said, that the convention is being held in Pittsburgh, because of its position as the seat of the iron and steel industry. He said foreign trade is of vital interest to the city because the city must depend on world markets for growth.

A message expressing President Roosevelt's regrets that he was unable to be present was read by E. P. Thomas, president of the National Foreign Trade Council.

Drill for Water Supply at Hospital

Exploratory wells are to be drilled by the United States Veterans Administration Hospital, Aspinwall, on the city filtration plant property, in a search for a water supply for the hospital. Council's finance committee granted permission yesterday for the drilling.

TRADE MEET LAUDED BY ROOSEVELT

The regrets of President Roosevelt that he could not attend the twentieth annual convention here were conveyed to the National Foreign Trade Council in a letter to E. P. Thomas, president of the council, from Stephen Early, assistant secretary to the President. The letter said:

"The gathering in Pittsburgh of more than 1,000 men from every field in the foreign trade community presents an opportunity which the President would gladly avail himself were it physically possible for him to do so.

"The President has requested me to offer you this explanation and to tell you that the almost crushing demands upon his time, because of the international conference now in progress and the national emergency measures in Congress, prevent him from giving you a more favorable reply at this time, much as he would like to. He trusts that you will understand his predicament.

"It is his sincere wish that the meeting of the National Foreign Trade convention will be one of the most outstanding successes in the history of that organization."

Currency Stabilization Held World Trade Need

Stabilization of currencies is the prime requirement for revival of world trade, Dr. Lionel D. Edie, former professor of finance at the University of Chicago, told the National Foreign Trade convention today.

Dr. Edie brought a warning against "violent" inflation. He said the chief requirement for world trade recovery is revival of the principle that a contract is something to be honored and respected.

Radical inflation or deflation, he said, will destroy the sacredness of contracts underlying international trade.

One of the greatest contributions the United States can make to the outside world, he said, is to rebuild the domestic market as an independent market, and added:

"By this I do not mean a hostile or antagonistic attitude toward the rest of the world. We have a domestic market of 125,000,000 people with the highest standard of living anywhere in the world. It is our first duty to restore equilibrium in this domestic market."

Dr. Edie said the record of the last 15 years is strewn with the wreckage of repudiated contracts, and continued:

"Russia started the ball rolling by practically 100 per cent repudiation. Germany and Austria, by a little different route, arrived at the same goal. When France devalued the franc she, in effect, repudiated about 80 per cent of her obligations.

"This type of movement was resisted for a long time by the British, who, in 1925, attempted to bring the whole world back to the gold standard. But that bold attempt failed. When England re-abandoned gold in 1931, that was tantamount to repudiation of about one-third of her external obligations."

Dr. Edie said confidence in contracts can be rebuilt only if confidence is rebuilt in what money is going to be worth. He said there must be confidence in a sane and intelligent monetary policy carried on by joint action and cooperation among the principal nations of the world.

AKRON PROBERS TO SEE MACON

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(AP.)—Plans were made today for a joint congressional committee to travel to Akron, O., to inspect the sister ship of the Akron.

The decision was made at the same time that Capt. Alger H. Dresel, commander of the newly completed Macon, was giving his opinion of the flying weather into which the Akron was taken on the training cruise that resulted in disaster.

Dresel was doubtful whether he would have taken the ship out after receiving the weather information that was available, but praised Commander Frank C. McCord, who lost his life when the Akron plummeted into the Atlantic.

OUR Anniversary Sale begins in exactly three days, at 9 o'clock when we open, Saturday, April 29th. Nineteen years seem to you a short time, but remember the changes that have taken place in this short span. In the year we were founded Harry Houdini and Mary Pickford were at the peak of their careers; Cubist Art was derided by the old school; Kipling's "If" stood first on the college students' reading list; Irene and Vernon Castle were gathering international fame; and the Aquitania sailed on her maiden voyage.

These comparisons are no more interesting than the comparisons of quality and prices of merchandise we sell today as against merchandise we sold in 1914. Prices are lower—qualities are better. We shall prove this beginning Saturday in Gimbels Anniversary Sale.

SUNDAY SPORTS DECISION UP TO PEOPLE

football between the hours of 2 and 6 p. m.

The measure does not affect the present baseball season, since voters cannot consider the question before November. At that time citizens of any community may grant or refuse their officials the power to license the two sports.

BATTLE IN SENATE

Killed in Senate committee two years ago, Sunday baseball was revived in the current session and again was approved by the House.

A hostile Senate defeated, reconsidered and revised the House plan, finally forcing the measure to a Senate-House conference committee before the present draft of the bill was devised.

Modificationists, led by Connie Mack, gaunt, veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, and W. W. (Bill) Roper, of Princeton football fame, pressed the issue through two legislatures and to the Governor this year.

Prominent churchmen contested every step of the way while, caught finally between the two forces, the Independent Republican Governor maintained a sphinx-like silence.

Last night he answered the question which millions asked. He accompanied his signature of the bill with the assertion:

"I am convinced that the people can be trusted to decide this matter for themselves."

GOVERNOR'S VIEW

Declaring he is "emphatically opposed to the commercialization of the Sabbath," he explained:

"In a state which has Sunday trains, Sunday concerts, Sunday golf, Sunday tennis, and a host of Sunday activities of many other kinds, the possible addition of baseball and football between the hours of 2 and 6, if the people of any locality vote for it, will not seriously change the present picture.

"For years anyone with money enough to play golf or tennis on Sunday morning or afternoon has been free to do so—law or no law. For those who did not have the price there was no corresponding recreation, even when church services were not being held.

"This unjust discrimination in favor of the rich and against the poor, which has thus existed, is one of my strongest reasons for signing the bill."

PURITAN DAYS GONE

Asserting "the Puritan Sabbath in Pennsylvania was abandoned generations ago," the Governor said:

"The Bible specifically lays down the principle that the Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath.

"I believe that principle is wide enough to cover healthy outdoor recreation on Sunday afternoons."

Regarding opponents of changing the century-old law, Pinchot said:

"I respect their sincerity; I admire their fidelity to their convictions; but I am not able to follow them in this case. I can only ask those who differ with me to respect my conviction as I respect theirs."

With this statement and a few scratches of his pen, Pinchot turned back to voters of the largest cities and the smallest towns the right to modify laws the state has defended staunchly since 1794.

Quinn Offers Plan To Aid Local Banks

HARRISBURG, April 26.—(AP.)—Representative James L. Quinn, Allegheny, today had introduced a resolution urging the Governor to issue a proclamation calling upon chain stores and insurance companies to leave on deposit in local banks as much of their funds as possible.

SCHOOL PAY CUT BILL SIGNED

HARRISBURG, April 26.—(AP.)—The Wilson (McKean) bill reducing teachers' salaries 10 per cent and providing school boards with the means to obtain permission to make further cuts, had been signed today by Gov. Pinchot.

The bill provides that school boards may appeal to the Department of Public Instruction for permission to make cuts greater than 10 per cent if the finances of their districts prohibit maintaining salary schedules.

Ex-Coop Raiding Legislator Hits Harsh Penalty

HARRISBURG, April 26.—(AP.)—Over the protests of a self-described authority on chicken stealing, the House approved, 148 to 10, the Prince (Senate) bill giving the maximum penalty at three years in jail and $500 fine.

Representative Hiram G. Andrews, Cambria, opposed the measure, insisting the penalty is too severe.

Representative R. S. McCreary, Erie, took the opposite view and asked if Andrews had ever lost any chickens in this way.

Andrews replied:

"Not only have I had them stolen, but during the course of my dissolute youth, I've helped steal them, myself."

BEER MEASURE PERILED BY DISPUTES

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, April 26.—Sharp differences over local option features of the McClure (Delaware) beer regulation bill threatened to defeat the measure in the Senate if an agreement is not reached by 4:30 p. m. today.

In the House, the McClure (Allegheny) beer tax bill, with its possibility of $10,000,000 revenue through a $1.24 a barrel tax on 3.2 per cent beer, was being delayed.

In the Senate fight over the beer licensing, Senator Henry L. Snyder, Lehigh Democrat; Senator James J. Coyne, Pittsburgh, and others, are insisting that local option clauses in the bill shall be eliminated, they oppose the issuance of brewers' permits by the State Alcohol Permit Board, and desire that the issuance of a distributor's license shall be mandatory upon a county treasurer when an applicant complies with the law.

PINCHOT'S THREAT

To complicate the situation, Gov. Pinchot today threatened to veto the Legislature's new plan for a state prohibition repeal convention unless his beer control and tax measures are enacted. The threat carries added weight because of Pinchot's previous action on a convention.

So serious is the Senate split, that Senator Joseph C. Trainer, Philadelphia, chairman of the Law and Order Committee, was balked this morning in an effort to bring the bill to an immediate vote. In order to avert probable recommittal of the bill to committee, Senator John J. McClure, Delaware, author of the measure, agreed that it be made a special order of business for 4:30 this afternoon, permitting members to study the bill.

McClure's concession came after Snyder had moved to recommit the bill for further study, a maneuver which resulted in some sharp interchanges on the floor. Snyder withdrew his motion when he had won his point against jamming the bill to a vote.

The local option feature of the bill is causing the greatest trouble. It applies only to retailers and distributors who might operate in dry territory. Snyder, Coyne and others insist that there shall be no local option restrictions on the retailers.

LOCAL OPTION CLAUSE

As now written, the local option clause provides that an election on beer sale may be held upon petition signed by 10 per cent of the voters in any township or municipality, but that the issue shall not be raised oftener than once in four years.

Snyder charged that the bill had been laid on members' desks only a short time before they were asked to vote on it. He intimated that there had been some questionable circumstances surrounding the preparation of amendments, and that a sub-committee of the Law and Order Committee, named to perfect amendments, had not reported to the committee before the bill was brought to the floor.

McClure replied that Snyder's motion was designed for delay, and Senator Clarence Buckman, Bucks county, made the same charge.

Earlier, when Trainer had endeavored to bring the bill to a vote, Snyder and his supporters blocked the move and forced a hurried meeting of the Law and Order Committee. In this executive session, there were some hot words among the members, and when the Senate reconvened anger had not cooled.

COYNE BATTLES PINCHOT ON BANK TAX

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, April 26.—In the face of a threat by Gov. Pinchot to prevent repeal of the Einstein act taxing banks on interest-bearing accounts, Legislative leaders in conference today decided to attempt to drive a repealer through the Senate and House.

Senator James J. Coyne was the author of the repeal measure. The Governor has declared he will not consent to the repeal unless a substitute plan is found to provide $8,000,000 for unemployment relief.

The substitute plan, according to the Governor, must not place any new tax burden on the people and must not be based on tapping special funds.

COYNE MEASURE

The measure, introduced last night by Senator Coyne, not only would repeal the Einstein bill, signed by the Governor last week, but would declare that the intent of the Legislature in passing the measure was not only to relieve depositors of the tax payment, but to completely remove the source of taxation from state or county impost.

With this decision, the unemployment relief program of Monday would be completely wrecked. The Legislature will adjourn for the week tomorrow, and will come back next Monday in another effort to finance relief, agree on appropriations, and approve beer legislation.

The House reconsidered yesterday's vote on the Scott Senate bill and amended the measure to appropriate $18,000,000 instead of $13,000,000 for unemployment relief after June 1. The revised bill gets final House action tomorrow and goes to the Senate for concurrence.

The Scott bill provides state money for the months of June to November, inclusive. It supplements the $7,000,000 appropriation for April and May.

The $20,000,000 balance of the $45,000,000 state program would come from a $25,000,000 bond issue on which voters will ballot next November.

From the bond issue proceeds, the other $5,000,000 would be used to repay the general fund for an advance of that amount included in the April-May appropriation.

Passage of the Coyne bill would mean the Legislature is trying to avert the collection of $8,000,000 in taxes from bank deposits, which the Governor intended to use for unemployment relief, and the use of which was agreed upon Monday.

VETO PREDICTED

Predictions are that the Governor will veto the repealer, and attempt under the Einstein bill to collect the tax. An immediate challenge will be made to him in court, and the legislative action on the Coyne bill will be cited as evidence that when the Einstein bill was passed the intent of the Legislature was to free deposits of tax.

The result is to leave the relief revenue situation in a hopeless tangle so long as this $8,000,000 is considered as part of the total.

Coyne's speed in moving to repeal the Einstein act was a maneuver to head off his Allegheny County rival, Senator William D. Mansfield, who had declared an intention of putting in a resolution stating the intent of the Legislature in the Einstein bill, no matter how lawyers may interpret the effect of what was done.

The Coyne bill may require some amendment, as even on this bill there is no agreement as to just what it does. This time the members want a foolproof document.

PINCHOT FOR SUNDAY SPORTS

Old Sabbath Gone, Asserts Governor, Signing Bill

HARRISBURG, April 26.

The text of Gov. Pinchot's statement announcing he had signed the Schwartz Sunday sports bill follows:

After long and most careful consideration, I have just signed the bill to let communities decide by a majority vote whether they want Sunday baseball, because I am convinced that the people can be trusted to decide this matter for themselves.

In its first form the bill repealed the law of 1794, without allowing the people of each locality to vote upon it. In my judgment that was wrong. In that form I would have vetoed the bill.

That objection, however, has been removed. In its present form the bill forbids sports on Sunday unless and until any community shall have voted at the election next fall in favor of baseball and football on Sunday, in the afternoon only and only between 2 and 6 o'clock.

As the bill is now, if a majority of the people in any city, etc., vote to permit these two sports, within these hours, they will be permitted — but not otherwise.

In addition, the bill provides for a license, which gives a control without which these sports will not be allowed.

No Serious Change

I am emphatically opposed to the commercialization of the Sabbath. But in a state which has Sunday trains, Sunday concerts, Sunday golf, Sunday tennis and a host of Sunday activities of many other kinds, the possible addition of baseball and football between the hours of 2 and 6, if the people of any locality vote for it, will not seriously change the present picture.

For years anyone with money enough to play golf or tennis on Sunday morning or afternoon has been free to do so—law or no law.

Golf, with its young caddies working on Sunday, has been tolerated during church services for those who had the price. For those who did not have the price there was no corresponding recreation even when church services were not being held.

This unjust discrimination in favor of the rich and against the poor, which has thus existed is one of my strongest reasons for signing this bill.

We are urged not to abandon the Puritan Sabbath. As a matter of fact the Puritan Sabbath in Pennsylvania was abandoned generations ago.

We have gone a long way since the time when it was illegal for a man to kiss his wife on Sunday. Compared to the changes already made, the change involved in submitting the question of restricted football and baseball to a vote in each locality is insignificant.

It is objected that professional baseball will be played under this bill. It will or it will not in each locality, as that locality may decide at next fall's election. But it should be remembered that many thousands of men and boys cannot belong to country clubs and that in actual fact their only means of clean, wholesome and interesting recreation lies in baseball or football.

I have letters from many ministers who have reached the conclusion that fewer boys will go wrong if they have some healthful and wholesome form of outdoor sport to keep them from gambling and evil resorts in their free time on Sunday afternoons. From my own observations I am convinced they are right.

Day Made for Man

The Bible specifically lays down the principal that the Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath. I believe that principle is wide enough to cover healthy outdoor recreation on Sunday afternoons.

Church services and Sunday schools on Sunday afternoons, except perhaps for adult Bible classes, are rare. Few could possibly be kept from any religious service by these two outdoor sports on Sunday afternoon between 2 and 6 o'clock—or forced to choose between them and church.

I have been warned that it will be politically expensive for me to sign this bill. In all probability that is true. But I am not concerned with politics. I am concerned with what I believe to be right—and I believe it is right to sign it.

After consultation with the Attorney General, I attach little importance to the legal arguments advanced against this bill.

But I do attach great importance to the arguments of those of my friends who conscientiously believe the bill is wrong. They have urged me to veto it. I have considered their reasons at great length. I would be glad to see eye to eye with them in this matter and I am genuinely sorry that I cannot do as they wish.

I respect their sincerity; I admire their fidelity to their convictions, but I am not able to follow them in this case.

I can only ask those who differ with me to respect my convictions as I respect theirs.

Sunday Sport Law Provisions

Associated Press.

The Schwartz bill, signed by Gov. Pinchot, makes these provisions for legalizing baseball and football between the hours of 2 and 6 p. m. on Sunday.

The act of 1794 is repealed as it applies to these sports which are prohibited by the new act unless licensed by local authorities.

Any or all cities, boroughs, towns and townships can submit to voters at the November, 1933 election, the question of licensing the sports locally.

If the majority of the voters approve, the municipal authorities must issue licenses under these maximum fees: Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, $50; Scranton and third-class cities, $25; boroughs, $5, and townships, $1. These fees may be charged for a single game or an entire season.

After next November, communities can vote on the question at any municipal or general election, except that a municipality can vote not oftener than once in three years.

To bring to the voters the question of licensing or repealing license powers already granted, a petition signed by 5 per cent of the voters is required.

Mountain Laurel Leads Azalea in State Race

HARRISBURG, April 26.—(INS.)—The mountain laurel was leading the race today for Pennsylvania's state flower, the Rhodes bill designating it having been reported out of Senate committee after passing the House.

A bill introduced by Representative Edward M. Hough, of Allegheny County, naming the wild azalea or honeysuckle, remains in Senate committee.

Trooper, Road Police Merger Defeated

HARRISBURG, April 26.—(AP.)—The House today had defeated a move to merge the state police and the state highway patrol for economy.

The Turner (House) bill, which would have removed the highway patrol from the Department of Revenue and created two bureaus under the command of the Superintendent of State Police, lost, 16 to 136.

CLOSED BANK PROBE URGED

HARRISBURG, April 26.—(AP.)—Senator Harry J. Bell, Fayette, today proposed a legislative investigation of closed bank administration to determine whether the assets of such institutions "are being carefully preserved."

Bell, in a resolution introduced in the Senate, urged a committee of three senators and three representatives to conduct the inquiry and report to the 1935 Legislature.

House Group Favors 8-Hour Day in State

HARRISBURG, April 26.—(AP.)—The "principle" or an eight-hour day and 44 hours working week for women and children employed in Pennsylvania industry was approved by the House today.

It adopted the Hermanson (Luzerne) resolution, after an attempt to send it to the Federal Relations Committee was defeated, 18 to 127.

HOUSE PASSES PAY CUT BILL

HARRISBURG, April 26.—(INS.)—By a vote of 121 to 6, the House today passed the Reed Senate bill reducing the salaries of members of the Legislature $300 beginning with the 1935 session. Two weeks ago the House passed the J. L. Holmes bill reducing the salaries by $500.

Early in the session the Republican organization passed in the Senate the Howell resolution urging a voluntary cut of 20 per cent in the salaries of all executive, judicial and legislative employes and officials in excess of $750.

For months this resolution was held in committee in the House. Last week it was brought out, adopted, reconsidered and defeated, all in the space of five hours.

NADINE TANGLE KNOTTED BY TOWNSHIP

Faced with the possibility of losing its only means of access to the Allegheny River front, Penn Township threw another monkey-wrench into plans for eliminating the bottle-neck bungle in the $3,000,000 Allegheny River boulevard. This was revealed today when representatives of the Public Service Commission, the county, the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Pennsylvania Water Company met at Nadine to discuss the completion of the connecting link in the project.

H. I. Tripp, representing the Public Service Commission, conducted the viewing at the request of Verona taxpayers who appealed to the Commission to step in and settle the dispute which has held up the opening of the boulevard for more than two years. The Verona group, however, has consented to let its petition rest until after the county has finished condemnation proceedings. The county plans to condemn land of the water company and provide a place for moving the tracks of the railroad company and for the boulevard.

During the discussion at the site today, C. M. Strobel, solicitor for Penn Township, said the township would oppose any plan that did not provide for the township having an opening to the river front. Nadine road owned by the township, is to be abandoned from the boulevard to the water front under plans of the county and this will be opposed, Strobel said.

Strobel and E. L. Schmidt, county planning engineer, engaged in a heated conversation when Strobel suggested elevating the boulevard over the utilities company property and township roadway. Schmidt contended the road was used only a few times a year and was not necessary.

Others at the hearing were Township Commissioners John Peters and R. Y. Marshall, C. W. Hawley of the water company, W. D. Wiggins of the Pennsylvania Railroad and several county officials including Schmidt, County Commissioner C. M. Barr, Public Works Director Thomas O. Hasley and Assistant Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher.

W. E. IRISH, OHIO INVENTOR, DIES

CLEVELAND, O., April 26.—(Universal.)—William Edward Irish, 90, credited with being the first man to transmit his voice over wires, died here yesterday.

In 1877, he succeeded in sending code messages over a two-mile length of wire. After several years of experimenting, he succeeded in transmitting his voice over a wire. This is said to have been two years before Alexander Graham Bell obtained a patent on his telephone.

Irish was one of Cleveland's first aviation enthusiasts and built many crude flying machines. He constructed the machines from bicycle parts and experimented with rockets as the means of propulsion.

In the same year, he wrote a book, "The Aeronautical World," outlining his seemingly strange ideas. He became very unpopular at this time because his ideas were considered absurd.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

"Just a few lines to let you know that you are all wet," begins a letter from Henry P. Yetter, of East Liberty. He takes exception to the household hint broadcast the other day which suggested covering ice with newspaper to keep it from melting quickly.

His cogent reasoning points out that slower melting defeats the purpose of ice as a food preserver.

The reason that ice preserves food is because the melting gives off the cool air; and it's more economical to let the ice melt than to have the food spoil.

A valuable suggestion for parents who have difficulty in amusing young children on rainy, cold, or sickbed days is offered by Mrs. E. W. May. At her house they save the Sunday comic papers in a big box in the attic, always putting the latest issue on the bottom.

Her three children have amused themselves for hours with the funny sheets. When one is sick the mother always knows that the road to recovery is being traveled when she gets a request for the box of "funnies."

K. J. Staats, Oil City—You'll get a new picture of the President with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. It will satisfy you better than an older one.

R. M. Williams, an ardent globe trotter, says he gets more kick out of the corrected mistakes in the broadcast than the news matter itself. Wonder if I could get away with it if I said that that's the only reason I make them?

Funny, though, some of the things that you do say. Many a time I've been surprised myself in hearing something said that I never intended to say. Usually when I make up my mind carefully to avoid a certain phase of the news that might give a wrong impression, I'm thinking about it so much, that the first thing I know it starts coming out.

And if you start squirming while I am trying to discover an exit from a labyrinth of words, what do you think I'm going through?

American Weekly Dramas Resume

A new series of American Weekly dramatic programs, depicting each week the outstanding features of the subsequent issue of the magazine distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph, will be inaugurated on Station WFBG, Altoona, tomorrow at 3 p. m. The initial dramatization is entitled "Burn—Destroy—Kill."

Ripley to Set New Record For Radio

By AIRCASTER

Believe it or not—

Ripley just can't wait until he gets back to N'York to tell about his most recent discoveries about strange peoples and things in Africa and South America.

So, the famous artist, whose unbelievable discoveries you see daily and Sunday in the Sun-Telegraph, is going to broadcast a few of them from Buenos Aires, Argentina, Thursday, May 4, via CBS-WJAS at 8:15 p. m.

The broadcast will create a radio record for Ripley, making him the only American to have spoken both to and from the ends of the earth.

He has broadcast to this country from Australia and the mid-Atlantic, and has been heard in Europe, Australia, South America and the Orient, in broadcasts from this country.

Jolson Coming Back

Network moguls have made another move to raise the quality of morning net programs with the inauguration of the 10:45 a. m. NBC-WCAE "Morning Parade," which runs the full gamut of microphone variety.

From Hawaii comes news that Al Jolson plots another radio appearance, via CBS in a couple of Saturday nights. He'll sing with a Hawaiian band and thinks he'll be a big success because, he says, Hawaiian radio bosses can't read and censor his script.

Charles Hackett, operatic tenor, returns to the air via NBC May 2 and 9 with the Damrosch orchestra.

Will Osborne has lost his NBC lines because he took a CBS commercial. Beginning May 3, his Greenwich Village spot will be taken by Ted Black.

Puzzle This One

Final reports from the earthquake area, in which Johnny Marvin's ukulele factory was destroyed, state that Marvin is selling the broken slabs of ukulele wood to jig-saw puzzle manufacturers.

That new blues singer broadcasting over KQV Thursdays at noon is Peggy Carroll, of Mt. Washington.

The Rev. F. F. Bosworth, evangelist broadcasting daily at 3:30 over KQV from Tuesday to Friday inclusive, has figured in more than 100 major revivals throughout the country. At present he is speaking nightly, except Saturday, at the Gospel Tabernacle of the C. and M. A., 809 Arch street, North Side.

Grandpa, Lillian Read Comics

Aided and abetted by Grandpa and Lillian, Sun-Telegraph comic-reading duo, a group of embryo Pittsburgh artists of tertain the kiddies on WCAE at 4:45 today.

Flashing the news direct from the Sun-Telegraph editorial rooms, Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, goes on the air daily over WCAE and WJAS at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Pirate, Cub Stars With Seals

Riggs Stephenson, outfielder, and Gabby Hartnett, catcher, of the Chicago Cubs, who make their first Forbes Field appearance of the season today, and Pirate Pitchers Waite Hoyt and Bill Harris come to the WCAE microphone tonight at 7 as guests of the Trained Seals.

Charles J. Doyle, Sun-Telegraph baseball expert, interviews the boys while Harry Keck, sports editor, acts as master of ceremonies.

Immediately following the broadcast, the Seals are to leave for Homestead to put on a synthetic radio act with Lois Miller, singing organist, in the Leona Theater at 9:15.

Cantata, When God Laughed.....
..... T. Carl Whitmer

The Dramamount Singers sang another of their unique programs in Schenley Ballroom last night under the direction of Arthur B. Jennings, who replaces T. Carl Whitmer. Mr. Jennings is an excellent director and the club should continue its promise of unusual singing under his leadership.

Mr. Lissfelt

The program presents mainly music of the old masters but is mindful of our local composers as well, and last night gave three fine songs of Alan Floyd. Alta Schulz gave these songs intelligent reading and sang solo in Whitmer's cantata, "When God Laughed," which has frequently been repeated.

The Fillion String Ensemble furnished its well-known accompaniment to the cantata and gave a group of Bach alone.

Johannes Brahms

Visitors to the annual state convention of the Federation of Music Clubs met in the upper Soldiers' Memorial Hall yesterday afternoon as guests of the Tuesday Music Club and heard a program by one of the best groups from the club. Ruth Thoburn Knox led her string ensemble in some lovely folk and ancient classic music and there were several soloists.

The setting for the ensemble was a charming directoire idea, the players in gowns of the period and the stage lighted by tall candles. Mrs. Knox accomplishes an ambitious task with these ladies; though the bite of this early string music is sometimes wanting there is a fine striving for tonal effects. In its accompaniment to the violin sonata of Bach the orchestra was quite commendable, and Mary Redmond should have asserted her voice more strongly.

Much interest was manifested in the appearance of Virginia Kendrick, contralto, who gave Scarlatti and Bach in unfamiliar airs with all her best stage manners. But it is regrettable to listen to her lifeless voice and bad intonation. Who are the masters of singing who permit this against a good voice and talent?

One of the delightful numbers of the program was the Beethoven Trio for violin, viola and flute, played by Mary Redmond, Rose Aieloo and Lena Hayward. The program was arranged by Mrs. William Archie Weldin and Mrs. Edward B. Lee.

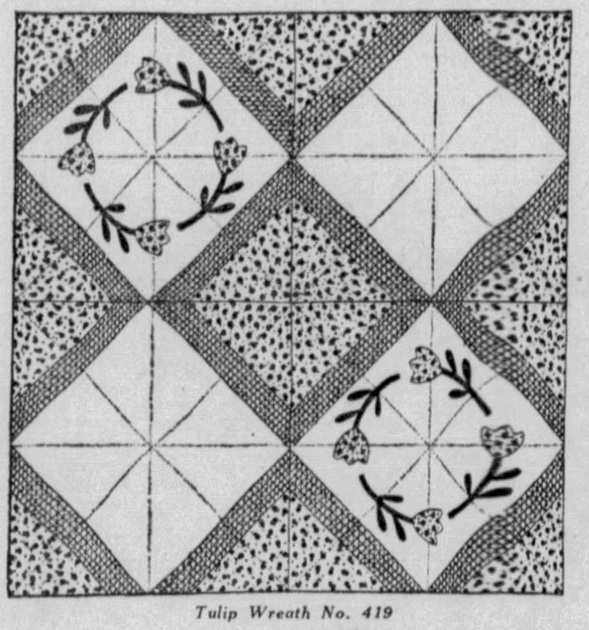
PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



Tulip Wreath No. 419

By LAURA WHEELER

A wreath design has been a favorite with quilt makers for generations. The design ranged from a simple wreath of a few flowers to elaborate arrangements of the flowers, buds and leaves of one kind of flower or of a collection of flowers. This simple tulip wreath is decorative and easy to do at the same time. The material used for the flowers is repeated in the corners of the block, while strips of plain material give a lattice effect to the quilt. The wreath could be used on other things besides a quilt, the separate sprays easily lending themselves to adaptation.

This design is easy to make because the pattern includes complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, yardage chart, diagram of full size quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials, and clearly outlined drawing of the patch pieces.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

-:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:-

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Is It Wise to Let a Child Have His Own Way?

Is there a little demon in your home—a beautiful, baby cherub, with the manners and disposition of a young gorilla?

And do you, at times, long to put "little precious" through the clothes wringer?

Then, if you have and if you do, what a lovely moment you're going to have reading Grandma's letter!

My Dear Miss Elsie—

I want to write about a little grandson of mine. Perhaps you can give me some light on the way people think about raising children these days. It certainly has me up a tree.

He is just four years old and an only child. He is a dear at home—but something else abroad—and nobody seems to think it's necessary to correct him. When they come to spend the day, I feel like flying.

He has his own way in everything, and his parents are insulted if we don't do and give him whatever he wants.

I don't know how to handle such a child. If he were mine, I'd be tempted to give him a good spanking. I never took such foolishness from my own youngsters, especially away from home.

The other day, he didn't want to kiss me when he came, and his father made him, so he jumped on my neck and nearly broke it. Then he just stood there and stuck his tongue out at me. Later I was putting supper on the table, and although I told him not to touch the food, he took the butter out of the dish and squeezed it, then clapped it back in the dish again. He wanted a drink of milk, and when I gave it to him he poured it on the floor. Then I was "mean" because I wouldn't kiss him good night.

OTHERS ACT SAME WAY

I can't understand why he is that way. I always have a toy or something for him, and, no matter what he does, I never scold him. He gets sassy and says he "doesn't have to mind me" if I ask him to do or not do something. It isn't because he is the only child, either. I have a daughter who has six, and they are all the same way.

I think it is the fault of the parents. All these children are different, as day is from night, from my own children. I never let them get away with being pests. But both my son—the boy's father—and my daughter seem to think children should be allowed to do as they please.

I don't know what to think of it all. I don't think children are right-minded nowadays; or maybe it's the older folks who are queer. But where is it all leading? What sort of grown-ups will such youngsters be?

GRANDMA.

Hooray for you, Grandma! And if any little word of mine can help curve these infant fiends and their nitwit parents, you can have my whole dictionary!

PARENTS TO BLAME

What will such youngsters become?

They'll become self-willed, ill-mannered pests, who can't get along with themselves or anyone else—

And, unless murdered before they reach maturity (the chances for which are perfectly dandy) they'll probably get one beating after another from a justly peeved world until they learn to act like human beings. And here's one little girl who'll cry "goody-goody!"

And yet it really isn't the child's fault at all. It's the fault of lazy, silly, spineless parents who've started a job they won't finish.

There are countries in which the parents always share the punishment which the courts give to a delinquent child, and I, for one, am all for copying that idea in this country. Stocks are horrid things, but if the doting Mamas and Papas of such public nuisances were made to sit in the public stocks for a few hours each day, I'll wager that we'd have a model crop of Better Babies.

And here's hoping that about a million readers clip this article and send it, with my worst regards, to such parents.

SHY AND DEMURE, BUT HER LIFE WAS LIKE A DIME NOVEL
WOMEN WHO HAVE ACQUIRED A LIST OF HUSBANDS SOMETIMES LOOK AS IF THEY MIGHT HAVE HAD DIFFICULTY GETTING ONE!
LOOKS MORE DANGEROUS THAN SHE IS FAY KING

By FAY KING

Those vampish, dangerous, alluring looking women rarely have as adventurous lives as their appearance inclines us to suspect.

One of the most wholesome minded women I ever knew, who was almost prudish in her principles, looked like the villainess in an old thriller.

But I have sat in utter amazement at a table opposite a starry-eyed friend whose childlike countenance never betrayed by a single shadow the exciting adventures I knew she had survived.

It does not in the least surprise me that a gracious and beautiful Peggy Joyce should marry five or six husbands. But what does puzzle me is how some of those poisoners who almost looked the part could gather in husband-victims like a suburban telephone book.

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Brown Comes to Aid of Madge and Ronald

Ronald and I waited only until the footsteps of the two men had died away upon the mountain trail, before rising from our cramped position and hurrying out into the pathway.

"I'm afraid Owen'll get away from us," Ronald said. "Those men talked so long."

The same fear was in my own heart, but I could not voice it to Ronald. The boy was nearly beside himself in his terror for Marion. He would be useless for service to her if his fears were intensified instead of being quieted.

"I'm sure we'll be able to catch up with him, Ronald," I said. "This is a very steep trail, and the horse is doubly burdened. One misstep in all probability would seriously injure both of them, and spoil Owen's plans. We, on foot and unburdened, can make much better time; so let us hurry!"

Ronald caught my hand, and as we accelerated our pace we realized that the path was lighter before us.

"The moon!" I breathed.

"What luck!" Ronald echoed. "We shall be able to see Owen now without any trouble."

MEET FRIEND

"Halt! Hands up!"

With a choked little exclamation of dismay I obeyed the order, but Ronald, with panther-like quickness, flung himself to one side, and the next second was lost in the underbrush.

There followed an instant of sickening suspense for me. I fully expected that the owner of the voice, which had issued that harsh command, would send a bullet after Ronald, but none came. Instead, into the moonlight stalked a tall man of magnificent frame, who grinned companionably down at me.

"Good evening, Mrs. Graham," he said. "In case you don't remember me, I'm Brown, whom your father sent along with young Mr. Ronald to trail this bird on horseback. Call him back, please. He may not know my voice."

BROWN SUSPICIOUS

"I'm right here." Ronald's voice was a bit tremulous as he emerged from the underbrush.

"Clever work, laddie," Brown said approvingly. "You called my bluff in great fashion, and you didn't leave Mrs. Graham flat. You're there, all ways from the Jack, boy.

"And now, what's doing? I tailed Owen until I was sure of the trail he was taking, then cut around here to try to head him off. Have you seen him?"

"Yes, he went down here over five minutes ago," I answered.

"Then why—?" Brown broke off abruptly, and I knew that his captious surprise at our delay had been halted by his sudden recollection that I was the daughter of "the Chief."

"We could not trail him closely," I explained quickly, "because two of his gang who were following him on foot, evidently as a bodyguard, came back up the trail and stopped beside our hiding place in the underbrush, just as we thought it safe to resume our trailing of Owen."

"Why did they come back?" Brown asked quickly. Then he added, as if to himself, "I wonder if it's a trap."

The Shallow Turban

Still clinging to popularity is the shallow turban, despite all sorts of new shapes. A delightful new model is done in sheer black straw fabric and has a border of tiny lacquered birds. It is completed by a flared veil embroidered in crin.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Easy to Get Rid of Tiny Wrist Cysts

It is quite common to see individuals who have small tumors or swellings of the wrists. These swellings are round, smooth, slowly growing masses, found beneath the skin. "Ganglion" is one medical term for this condition; "weeping sinew" is another.

Dr. Copeland

A ganglion is really a small cyst located within the sheath of a muscle tendon. It is a painless tumor, containing a fluid which closely resembles glycerin jelly. Though most frequently found on the wrist, it is occasionally seen on the foot.

Ganglion is generally a simple and harmless thing, yet cases of a more serious nature are often reported. It may be disfiguring and sometimes seriously interferes with the movement of the nearby joint.

Most afflicted persons neglect ganglion and make no effort to rid themselves of the trouble. This is unfortunate, because as I have pointed out, this growth may interfere with the welfare of the individual. Other persons are too zealous in their efforts to get rid of the ailment.

I have in mind the all too common practice of rupturing the ganglion by striking it with a heavy book. There is a superstitious belief that the heavy book should be the family Bible. But no matter what book is used that is not good treatment. It is true that the ganglion may disappear after a severe blow, but I do not recommend this procedure.

I warn you against this old-fashioned and unscientific method of treatment. The ganglion may rupture as a result of the blow, but in most instances the swelling will recur and often it comes back as a painful and inflamed growth. It then becomes necessary for somewhat extensive surgery.

Most persons dread the knife. But the best treatment for ganglion is to excise the mass. Modern surgery enables this operation to be performed with a local anesthetic and without any discomfort.

In what I have said I do not mean to imply that all tumors of the wrist or ankle are ganglion. If you have a swelling in this part of the body and it grows slowly and without pain, it is probably a ganglion. You can confirm the diagnosis by consultation with your physician. He will advise you.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

R. S. H. Q.—What can be done for superfluous hair on the arms and legs?

A.—For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

L. M. M. Q.—What should a girl of 18, 5 feet 5 inches tall weigh?

A.—She should weigh about 130 pounds—this would be about average for her age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons.

Contract Bridge

-:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

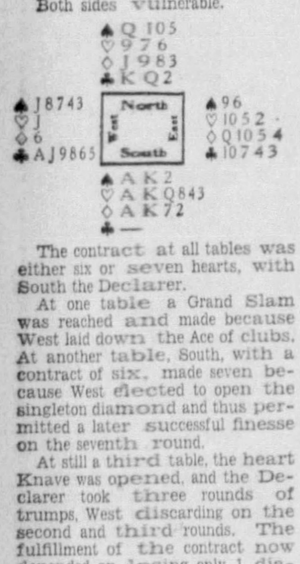
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Finessing Against Yourself

When situations develop in the play of a hand at Contract Bridge in which the Declarer is facing the practical certainty of a lost contract, but there remains the faintest glimmer of hope that an unusual line of play will redeem the situation, even at the cost of the loss of an extra trick, the chance should be taken to make the contract. After all, the game is the thing, and the loss of 150 or 200 additional points is small, indeed, compared with the possible gain resulting from a made Small Slam.

The hand below, played in a recent Duplicate tournament, is an example of how one player, facing most unfortunate distribution and, perhaps, having made a mistake in the earlier play of the hand, redeemed the situation through an unusual finesse against himself. The hand was one of those dealt in the mixed team-of-four event at the Eastern Tournament held in New York in February.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The contract at all tables was either six or seven hearts, with South the Declarer.

At one table a Grand Slam was reached and made because West laid down the Ace of clubs. At another table, South, with a contract of six, made seven because West elected to open the singleton diamond and thus permitted a later successful finesse on the seventh round.

At still a third table, the heart Knave was opened, and the Declarer took three rounds of trumps, West discarding on the second and third rounds. The fulfillment of the contract now depended on losing only 1 diamond trick. South decided that if the diamond suit was split 4-1, West would be the one more likely to be long in it, in view of the singleton heart, and determined to lay down the Ace and King, only to receive the news that West had another singleton and thus that East had held four to the Queen-Ten originally. The contract aparently was now lost, and nothing except a misplay by the opponents could redeem it. There was, however, one glimmering ray of hope, which depended upon human fallibility.

South led a low spade and finessed the Ten in Dummy, which held. This was done to create the illusion that the Queen was an entry. Now the King of clubs was led and a diamond discarded. West, of course, had no diamonds to return, and a miracle followed. He reasoned that the spade Queen was a sure entry, in view of South's finesse against himself, and, with an air of resignation to the inevitable, returned a club, which permitted South to discard his remaining diamond and fulfill his contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Is the Double in the following situation a Takeout or Penalty Double?

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 N T	Pass	2 ◇	Double
2 N T	Pass	Pass	Double

Answer: The Double on the first round was for a Takeout; the Double on the second round was for penalties, as any hand which is strong enough to force a response in the range of three is automatically strong enough to defeat a two-notrump contract.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Places at Table

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband's father is living with us, and I would like to know what would be the correct place for him at the table when we are entertaining? He likes to do the carving and my husband does not.

Also please tell me where we should all be seated? M.

You, the hostess, should sit at the head of the table, and your husband, the host, should sit opposite you, at the foot of the table. Also, when you are entertaining, it is necessary to reserve the places at both your right and left, and at your husbands' right and left for the guests who are to be honored. That is, the man guest of honor sits at your right, and the man who is to be given the second place of honor sits on your left. On your husband's right is the woman guest of honor, and on his left, the woman who is to be given the second place of honor.

Then I should think that it would very convenient to have your husband's father seated at a place between your place and your husband's place, on either side of the table. I like the idea, as apparently he does, too, of his doing the carving, and his seat where I have suggested it, would, I should think, make this convenient for carving and serving.

That is, after placing the carved meat on a plate, he might conveniently pass the plate to you, and you, with the vegetable dishes placed in front of you, would add the vegetables to the plate, and pass the plate along to its destination. Say, as you pass the plate, "This is for you, Mary," or "I hope that this is just as you like it, Mr. Graham."

A Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A girl friend of my younger and unmarried sister is leaving shortly to go into training in the nursing profession. Her mother is giving her a farewell party, to which I have been invited, and I would like to take a small gift to her. Have you any suggestions to offer? H.

A small writing portfolio she would find very convenient, or a purse, or monogrammed handkerchiefs, or a fountain pen or a pocket pencil, or any traveling accessory for her luggage, or a necklace, or one of the lovely new scarves, or a pocket comb in a case.

If house-cleaning time means expense, muss, and inconvenience to you—remember Climax Cleaner. It quickly restores the original freshness and beauty to your walls, ceilings, and other decorations, such as cretonne and chintz curtains, and tapestries, as well as window shades. Climax acts by removing the dirt—not rubbing it in. Manufacturers of textured plaster walls recommend it. Flat finishes clean perfectly with Climax. As for the work, that's almost play—Climax is so easy to use. Everybody knows Climax is the "economy way" of re-decorating. But be sure to get Climax—the safe cleaner—in the blue can.

Tomorrow will be a busy day in Fox Chapel with the arts committee of the Shady Side Academy having a benefit card party at the school, and the Fox Chapel women golfers opening their season with a luncheon at the Fox Chapel Golf Club. The arts committee will use their proceeds for decorating the school buildings in the Fox Chapel district. Playing will begin at 2:30 and end at 4:30 when tea will be served in the school dining room.

Many mothers who do not care for bridge or don't have the time for it tomorrow afternoon, will arrive for tea and inspection of the grounds, which boast a most interesting rock garden, Mrs. Ferdinand Weil tells us.

Arrive For Tea

Mrs. Alfred D. Dickey is chairman of the bridge, assisted by Mrs. Clarence B. Watkins, Mrs. Donald Clark and Mrs. Weil.

Among the many who've taken tables for the bridge, in addition to the committee, are Mrs. T. J. Hilliard, Mrs. Herbert A. May, Mrs. Charles Aufhammer, Mrs. Lambert Turner and Mrs. John Caylor.

Others are Mrs. Clayton Potter, Mrs. C. E. Lott, Mrs. W. E. Salisbury, Mrs. J. N. Forker, Arthur L. Over, Edward R. Weidlein, Lee L. Chandler, Charles Fisher, Mrs. George S. Baton, Mrs. Harold A. Nomer, Mrs. Frank J. Lanahan.

Mrs. Turner Lambert has taken a table, and so have Mrs. John H. B. Phillips, Miss Ida M. Allerton, Mrs. Alfred M. Oppenheimer, Mrs. George Wick, Mrs. Ernest Roth, Mrs. William F. Knox, Mrs. S. E. Hackett, Mrs. D. L. Gillespie, Mrs. H. C. Sherrard, Mrs. M. Alexander, Mrs. W. U. Follansbee and Mrs. Byron Waldrop.

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

Social life in Pittsburgh, particularly at the country clubs, is much less attractive, a social regesterite whose name I won't reveal, tells me, than in Europe. And all because the men are too prone to gather by themselves.

A gathering is likely to end in a "hen" party, and bye and bye there's nothing left for the women to do but go to bed.

This hostess is in favor of men at luncheons, too. It's true that men plus women do give a sparkle to any entertainment.

Music Federation Speaker Deplores Inattention Of Radio Audience

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Radio will never do anything for concert music until radio audiences learn to listen, Walter Kramer, composer and editor, said last night in his address at the dinner meeting of the Pennsylvania Federation of Music Clubs. You can't play bridge, read a book, make love or have family fights and listen with a half-cocked ear to music, he said further in his talk on "The Composer and the Public."

Music begins with the composer, a fact which even the performing artists do not realize; every composer has a right to be heard and to have his products judged, the speaker continued. He spoke of the unfairness of the copyright law which permits any one to appropriate and publish a composition after 56 years. Dr. Will Earhart introduced Mr. Kramer.

Mrs. Elmer James Ottaway, president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, also spoke at the dinner which was held in the University Club. Her speech was brief and touched on work through amateur groups, the coming biennial convention and on living music. A great deal of living music should be dead, she remarked. The Foster Singers in their hoop-skirted satin and lace gowns and with their colonial nosegays in hand sang, choosing Foster melodies, a number by Harvey Gaul, who was a guest, and another by Richard Kountz, whose wife, the former Irma Carpenter, was also present.

The annual meeting of the federation opened yesterday morning in the College Club, with Mrs. T. C. Donovan presiding. Reports showed a falling off in membership here and there and increases in some quarters. One or two clubs in the federation have asked for and been granted a moratorium on dues. A number of new junior clubs have been organized.

In the afternoon the delegates were in the audience of nearly 600 persons who heard the Tuesday Musical Club's String Ensemble program (beautiful both ocularly and auricularly) in which the gracious Ruth Thoburn Knox and her players covered themselves with lovely empire satin gowns and glory.

At the tea tables were Mrs. Grace P. Tower, Mrs. A. C. Sunstein, Miss Hattie E. Wainwright, Mrs. H. O. Whipple, Mrs. Walter C. Scott, Mrs. V. A. Sandles, Miss Belle Whitemire, Miss Melissa B. Johnston and Miss Florence Whitemire.

North Boroughs Choir To Give Concert May 16

The Community Choir of the North Boroughs, directed by E. Ellsworth Giles, will give a concert Tuesday evening, May 16, in the Ben Avon United Presbyterian Church.

The Ben Avon Young Woman's Christian Association, of which Mrs. Robert W. Lindsay is president, will sponsor the affair. Mrs. Roy Hardtmayer is chairman of patrons and Mrs. Walter Nuthall and Mrs. Fred C. Houston are in charge of tickets, with Mrs. J. L. McBride, chairman of publicity.

Beth Shalom Sisterhood Giving Supper Tomorrow

A get-together supper will be held by the Beth Shalom Sisterhood tomorrow evening to honor new members. Mrs. J. M. Hurwitz, chairman of the membership campaign, and Mrs. J. Zeidman, chairman of program, have arranged a program for the evening.

Mt. Lebanon Club Group Giving Spring Musicale

A spring musicale tomorrow will be the music department event for the Women's Club of Mt. Lebanon. It will take place in the home of Mrs. Chester Sierakowski, Parker drive. Mrs. Lucile Miller Werner will direct and Mrs. Nellie Risher Roberts will be at the piano. The program is in two parts and opens with the choral singing several numbers.

Following this is a group of soprano solos by Mrs. Werner, a group of piano solos by Mrs. Robert Vroom and baritone solos by Oliver Aiton, who will be accompanied by Miss Helen Roessing. The second half of the program will be a Russian skit composed by Mrs. Nellie Risher Roberts.

The dramatic department will meet in the home of Mrs. Joseph F. Donahoe, of Meadowcroft avenue, on Monday.

Ambridge Junior Club Re-Elects Miss McMaster

The Ambridge Junior Woman's Club has re-elected Miss Margaret McMasters as president for the second year. CITIZENS URGED TO HELP CRUSH RACKET REIGN

By EDWARD P. MULROONEY

Former Police Commissioner of New York City, and now Chairman of the New York State Beer Commission.

(Written Especially for Universal Service.)

NEW YORK, April 26.—I liked the call to arms against the racketeer in Hearst newspapers. I liked particularly, the caption, which sums up for me the entire story. This caption said:

"Wake up, America! Drive out the racketeers."

It is truly time that America did wake up. And it is to the credit of the Hearst papers that they sound the tocsin. The call has gone forth as it should go forth, to all Americans, not merely to the police. I assure you that my many years as a member of New York City's Police Department have proved to me that the police are ready and willing to do battle to the racketeer.

TESTIMONY SCARCE

I can point out case aft case that, where the citizenry stood with the police, the racketeer has been punished. Our difficulty has been to get people to come forward to give testimony against the racketeer. What the country needs is to get itself into a state of mind where it will stand behind the victims of the racketeer.

The public should make such victims feel that they have the support of their fellow citizens. And their fellow citizens should stand by them, to urge them on to go through with their testimony against the racketeer when such testimony is needed by the police to complete their case.

The records are full of cases in which the victim of the racketeer fails to give the testimony. If such weak-kneed victims were made to feel that their neighbors are with them, that all decent citizens insist that they go through with the information that they have to give, there would be convictions where there are now acquittals.

POLICE DILEMMA

It is disheartening to decent police officials to apprehend a racketeer, often with difficulty, to find that the chief witness lacks the moral quality to stand up when giving testimony in court.

If the public were to hear the call sounded in the Hearst newspapers, if the people were to "wake up" and to make those who withhold testimony against the racketeer, feel that they are regarded as one with the criminal by shielding him, there would soon be an end to the rackets. Only because business men and men in industry become mute when they should be telling all is it possible for the racketeer, many times apprehended, to thumb his nose at the police officer.

"Wake up America," is a good slogan. But by this call, I am sure, is meant every one of us, the victim and the victim's neighbor, no less than the authorities.

URGES DEPORTATIONS

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—(Universal.)—From J. W. Maillard, Jr., president of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, today came an outspoken demand for action to rid the nation of organized crime. He said:

"The so-called public enemies in every American city are, almost without exception, aliens. Throw them out of the country.

"Round up suspected gangsters simultaneously in all metropolitan centers. Deport every alien caught with firearms. Penalize with force, if necessary, the intent to murder.

"Punish those who contribute to racketeers. Remove judges who dismiss them. Replace police who fail to arrest them."

GIVE EVIDENCE, VICTIMS TOLD

NEW YORK, April 26.—(Universal.)—Aroused by the widespread prevalence of racketeering and the consequent imposition of millions of dollars on consumers' purses, Police Commissioner Bolan yesterday exhorted merchants from whom tribute is extracted to come forward and register complaints.

His appeal was a direct consequence of the spectacular Bronx case in which three poultry dealers have demanded jail protection against threatening racketeers.

Bolan said:

"Our chief difficulty is that people who are intimidated and are paying tribute refuse to tell the police. Anybody paying tribute or threatened, who will come forward and make a complaint, may be assured of every protection at the command of this department. We will work swiftly and vigorously on all complaints."

111 Man Swallowed Poison, Coroner Told

Despondent because of ill health, Alexander Molnar, 46, swallowed the contents of a bottle of poison in his home, 32 Acorn street, rear, Greenfield, according to a report to the County Morgue today.

Molnar's lifeless body was found by Mrs. Julia Molnar, his wife. She told police her husband had recently complained of his prolonged illness.

119 Dead, 600 Hurt In Aegean Quake

KOS, Dodecanese Islands, April 26. (AP.)—The death roll from the earthquake which struck this Aegean Sea area now totals 119 persons in Kos as a result of further search of the ruins.

The number of injured exceeds 600 persons.

THE ANGLES AND UPS OF HATS TO SUIT BROAD SHOULDERS

THERE IS no getting away from it. With shoulders like a sixteenth century noble, broadened out as far as traffic laws will permit, we simply must have hats that give height. This height takes away from the tendency to appear short-necked that broad shoulders convey without the proper remedy.

HERE ARE a few of the most imaginative and incidentally the most wearable of the jaunty new hats. In the lower left-hand corner is shown a hat of wool angora straw trimmed with a pinwheel and band of grosgrain. It is a modified version of the "Congo" turban and exceptionally flattering.

THE THIRD, at the top, looks militant in a very feminine sort of way. It is one of those soft little fabric hats that feel as light as a leaf on your head. The little sparkling ornament adds just the right touch when it tops a dress with a frill.

AT THE lower right is one of the season's favorites. A millinery masterpiece of straw cloth that rises to quite a height on one side and flaunts a bright pompom in front.

POINTING DEFINITELY toward summer are diminutive printed silk sailors to match printed dresses, white pique hats that balance on one eye, and last but not least, the flower-laden toques for more dressed-up occasions.

BLIND DISPLAY AT FOOD SHOW

Demonstrations by workers of the Pittsburgh branch, Pennsylvania Association for the Blind, are a feature of the food show at Motor Square Garden.

Crowds gather each day to watch Mrs. Asenath Wise, blind since birth, operating a sewing machine, and Harry Accipeter, caning chairs.

Tonight the Triangle Grocers' Association will visit the show and later assemble in a different part of the building for a meeting.

Francis X. Bushman Asks Bankruptcy

CHICAGO, April 26.—(AP.)—Francis X. Bushman, one time matinee idol, today had filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy with the federal district court clerk. He listed liabilities at $107,084.81 and assets at $100.

"I want it made clear that I am not selling the Hope diamond, I am merely pledging it to borrow money."

With these words, Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean yesterday disposed of published reports that she would part with the historic and brilliant stone which, according to legend, casts a spell of misfortune upon its owner. She declared:

"I need money to save the Washington Post. I want to finance the paper and put it on a paying basis. I will save it at any cost for my children."

Mrs. McLean was in Baltimore to visit her 14-year-old son, Edward B. McLean, Jr., who was operated on for appendicitis.

The estranged wife of Edward B. McLean, former publisher of the Washington Post, said she hoped to raise $500,000 on the Hope diamond and other jewels.

CONFIRM DEATH OF REDFERN KIN

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 26.—(AP.)—The family of Richard S. Redfern, uncle of Paul Redfern, youthful aviator, who disappeared during a Georgia-to-Brazil nonstop flight in 1927, said today "inferences made it clear" the man seen to plunge from a bridge to the Genesee River 200 feet below was the 59-year-old realtor who has been missing since early Monday.

Young Redfern has been reported several times living as a captive of South American Indians, by whom he was said to have been captured when his plane crashed in the trackless jungle.

BOTTLE MAKER JOBS INCREASE

Employment for 75 per cent of the unionized bottle blowers has resulted from the return of beer, with the remaining 25 per cent expected to be back at work in a few months, according to W. W. Campbell, of Rochester, N. Y. He is president of the Glass Bottle Blowers Association of United States and Canada.

Campbell is at the Fort Pitt Hotel today with A. C. McLaughlin, Parker, Pa., a member of the union executive board, for preliminary parleys with local sign manufacturers on a new wage agreement. Campbell said a 50 per cent increase followed the beer legislation.

A continuance of last year's scale for tube makers was being sought by union officials, Campbell said. The scale provided $1.25 an hour for benders and $1.15 for pumpers. The introduction of tube signs provided a new field of glass blowing, he said. The majority of local plants are favorable to the terms, Campbell added.

Farm Boy Sentenced For Slaying Brother

TACOMA, Wash., April 26.—(AP.)—Robert Templeman, 15, who officers said, shot and killed his brother, Oliver, 20, was given an indeterminate sentence in the State Training School at a Juvenile Court hearing here yesterday.

The youth, a high school sophomore, said he and his brother quarreled while driving cows home from the pasture for milking.

Adopted, Tramp Dog Saves Lives of Two

CHICAGO, April 26.—(AP.)—Jack, a mongrel dog, has squared accounts with Ernil Reimann and his wife, Emma.

They rescued him from a life of wandering the other day. Yesterday Jack barked a warning in time for them to save their lives in a fire that swept through their home.

Clive Brook Cast With May West

By HARRISON CARROLL.
(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 25.—Here's a contrast for you!—the uninhibited Mae West with cool and collected Clive Brook!

Miss West

"Cavalcade" Clive will play opposite "She Done Him Wrong" Mae in her new picture, "I'm No Angel," Paramount has decided. Work on the picture is due to begin May 29, with Wesley Ruggles directing.

"I'm No Angel" is the latest—and the final, the studio hopes—title for Mae's original story, "Montana Bell." There will be much music in it, with several dance routines. Boris Petroff, Chicago stage musical director, is to tend to the choristic numbers.

Clive Brook's role in the new Mae West picture will be his second for Paramount in short order. He goes into "Midnight Club," with George Raft, when that picture is begun early in May.

These two productions end a five-month absence from the lot. His last Paramount picture, as I recall it, being "The Night of June 13th."

Another colorful character is likely to go on the screen, if Charles Furthman's ideas work out. He is writing a story around the life of the late Wilson Mizner, who was a legend even before he died and who on many occasions shattered Hollywood with his wit.

Furthman, you'll recall, contributed with two powerful films based on other vivid careers. They were "Street of Chance," based on Rothstein's life, and the Lawyer Fallon picture, both of which had William Powell in the chief roles. He has been free-lancing for several months and has recently written "Million Dollar Beauty," for Paramount, as a possible vehicle for Mae West.

Miss Colbert

Norman Foster and Claudette Colbert, who seem to have solved the Hollywood problem by staying away from each other, got together over the week-end for a Javanese dinner, served by Norman's Filipino house-boy... Preston Sturges has written a play for George Barbier and wants him to do it on Broadway ...They smiled the other day at Alf James, playing a bit in "College Humor." Alf, who was shoveling coal in a scene, is hard of hearing. He didn't know the camera had stopped and kept on shoveling.

It took four stage hands to move the coal back . . . Wynne Gibson goes into "The American," the Mayor Cermak story for Fox . . . Walter Futter, the screen oddities man, will take his camera along on Gary Cooper's proposed second jaunt into Africa.

Lilian Harvey

Lilian Harvey is taking a piece of her two-month vacation now at Palm Springs. She will return to Fox in a few days to shoot that tightwire walking scene and then will head that astounding car of hers up the coast for Yosemite, Del Monte, San Francisco and Seattle . . . Some one outside the studio got Robert Montgomery on the telephone. This is Bob's end of the conversation:

"No, I'm not interested in buying stock—" (Pause). "No, I'm not interested in buying a house—" (Another pause), "Eastern beer? Well, why didn't you say so in the first place."

George Burns and Gracie Allen, the Radio pair now headed for New York, will make some Paramount shorts there before they go to England...Von Sternberg helped Marlene Dietrich on her final portrait sittings for "The Song of Songs."

Career

Boots Mallory helps a young physician, who forgets his career for a time, in "Humanity," part of double feature bill that will be on the Davis and Sheridan Square screens Friday.

'Three Cornered Moon' Purchased for Film

"Three Cornered Moon, comedy, has been purchased by B. P. Schulberg for screen production, and it will be filmed as a Paramount release. Elliott Nugent, director, and S. K. Lauren, writer, are preparing an adaptation. Production will begin at once. "Three Cornered Moon" is a first play by Gertrude Tonkonogy, a stenographer. It is a comedy romance of a middle class family hit by the depression.

'The Lone Tree Mine' Played in Etna

The Sharpsburg Cadets of the Knights of St. George presented a five-act drama, "The Lone Tree Mine," in Elks Hall, Etna, last night under the direction of F. J. Wittman. The performance was well received and will be repeated tonight.

Plays and Players :: By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

To impart animation to the 800 marionettes of "Teatro Dei Piccoli," next week's attraction in the Nixon, requires the services of 10 operators, 10 singers and eight technicians, none of whom is seen during the performance. Eighteen years have passed since Vittorio Podrecca introduced "The Piccoli" in Rome. In that time 400 cities throughout the world have seen his famous performing dolls that include representations of Chevalier, Mistinguette and Josephine Baker, as well as the characters in various operas and fairy tales. During the recent engagement in New York a large committee of persons prominent in society, music and art circles, acted as a sponsoring body. Among the committee were Mrs. Henry Rogers Winthrop, chairman; Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, Lucrezia Bori, Arturo Toscanini, Guilio Gatta-Casazza, Nicholas Murray Butler and more than 200 other well-known persons. It is now drawing heavily in Philadelphia. Local sponsor of the Nixon engagement is the American Theater Society, which presents it as the final attraction of its subscription series. The public sale of seats will open in the box office tomorrow.

The Lizzie Borden murder case is the factual basis of "Nine Pine Street," play by John Colton and Carlton Miles, that will make its New York bow tomorrow night, with Lillian Gish heading the cast. Raymond Hackett will be among the participants.

Charles Laughton, alias Nero, is reported as having decided to spurn much Hollywood gold for a chance to play Shakespeare in London next season . . . Katharine Cornell and "Alien Corn" will desert New York after May 13 in favor of Chicago, and she also has plans to play Philadelphia and Boston . . . Because Ann Barrie wasn't a "name," that little understudy for the principal feminine role in "Music In the Air," merely "filled in" on the departure of the regular singer, while other stars rehearsed, but she made so good that now she's in permanently.

Jean Harlow Announced For Movie Revue

Jean Harlow is the first of a long list of stars definitely announced for a part in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Hollywood Revue of 1933," which Edmund Goulding will direct. The sequence in which Miss Harlow is to appear will have as its background a specially arranged tableau of Albertina Rasch dancers. Goulding will be assisted by Alexander Leftwich, New York musical comedy producer. Words and music will be written for the revue by Rodgers and Hart, Nacio Herb Brown, Arthur Freed and Gus Kahn, and Oscar Levant.

George Raft Assigned To 'Midnight Club'

George Raft's immediate future has been settled by Paramount with the announcement that "Midnight Club," the E. Phillips Oppenheim story, has been purchased for the sleek-haired actor. He will be co-featured with Clive Brook. Raft, who arose to fame through his "outside the law" characterizations, does an about-face and plays a detective in this new vehicle. This is Raft's first Paramount assignment since balking at the "killer" roles in "The Story of Temple Drake," opposite Miriam Hopkins.

Broadways of the World
All in a Day
By Mark Hellinger

SAN FRANCISCO, California.—Grab a load of that date line, my friends, San Francisco! The United States of America. The land of the free (lunch) and the home of the brave (columnists.) After being away almost seven months, it's the kick of a lifetime to hit the homeland once again. I haven't been so thrilled since the time I first saw A. C. Blumenthal in a bathing suit.

Oh, I know what you're going to say. If you're one of my two readers—my secretary is the other one—who have been following my dizzy cruise around the globe, you're going to mutter:

"What's all this? One day this Hellinger mug is on his way to Burma. And the next day he's back in the States. Nobody ever moved that fast. Not even the traveling salesman when he saw the farmer's daughter using the bread knife as a toothpick. What's the big idea?"

Well, it's all as simple as the reason why the chicken crossed the street. The chicken crossed the street because she wanted to give Winchell some gossip. And I crossed a couple of oceans in record time because the mails and cables grew entirely out of hand.

Sending columns from India was bad enough, but when I got over into Siam and down through the Malay Peninsula things began to get pretty tough. And when I finally hit Bali, the situation got out of hand altogether. So I cabled my office to make the best of things, caught a Chinese freighter to Manila, connected with a President liner, raced through China and Japan—and here am I, broken-hearted. It's not much if you say it quickly enough.

And now what to do? Write more travel columns and continue the day-by-day account of my experiences? I don't think so. I should be back in New York in two or three days, and I'm anxious to tackle the old Broadway stuff again as quickly as possible. So I think I'll put the last part of the trip into the next few columns—and then go back to work.

What do you want to hear about first? Bali, I suppose. Everybody does—and goodness knows why. I spent 10 days down there, and that was just about nine days too long. If it isn't the most overrated spot in the world today, it will certainly do until a more overrated spot comes along.

I often wondered why the few cruisers that touch Bali raced their passengers through the island and didn't gave them time to study conditions in that strange spot. The thing is no longer a mystery. A hurried glimpse of Bali and the Balinese gives you an impression of unusual beauty and calm. But a more thorough study destroys the entire illusion.

There are about 1,100,000 people in Bali, and 1,100,000 of them are dirty. They live in a mess and the smell of their native markets is as powerful as some of the jokes in the college magazines. They keep their dead in their huts for a period that might run anywhere from four months to a year. And the nearest brook or drain is the family bathroom.

Their native music, about which I had heard so much, gave me a slight pain. Their dances gave me a stiffer pain. See and hear these things once and you are definitely impressed. See them twice and you lose something. See them 20 times, as I did, and if you never see a Balinese dance again as long as you live, it will be far too soon.

Maybe I'm crazy, because some people seem to go for the stuff in a big way. One of the few white men on the island is a long-haired gent who is devoting his life to the study of Balinese music. He goes around with a monkey on his shoulder, speaks of art in a lofty manner and is just too sweet for words.

Miss Barbara Hutton, who is just as charming as she is wealthy, was in Bali when I was there. And she was daffy about the place. No pose. No attempt to create an impression. She honestly went for Bali in a big way.

She told me one afternoon that she was going to remain there for a month. And I couldn't understand it. I was afraid she'd turn into a Hutton-tot.

"Barbara," said I, with a familiarity that I can only blame upon the tropics, "doesn't this place really bore you? Doesn't it get on your nerves? That infernal music? And the dull faces? And—"

The young lady's eyes grew wide.

"Whatever are you talking about, Mr. Hellinger?" she queried, with a coldness that I can only blame upon the tropics. "I think this is one of the most heavenly spots on earth. The birds. The sunshine. The people. The beauty. The calm. How can anyone grow bored?"

She walked away from me with a determination that I can only blame upon the tropics. So you see that there can readily be a great difference of opinion about Bali. There is this, though, to be said about the situation. Miss Hutton has about $50,000,000—and I have $5. We evidently see the world through different eyes.

For fifty million bucks I'd like Bali too . . .

Some of the Balinese customs are rather amusing. I suppose you've seen most of them in the movies by this time because, from all reports, Bali is the cameraman's paradise. There isn't an inch on the island that hasn't been filmed, and the photographers have to work rapidly in order to keep from getting in each other's films.

But that situation hasn't spoiled the Balinese customs. Not yet, that is.

The elopement angle, for example. There is no love, as we know it, among the Balinese, and there is, consequently, no jealousy. If a girl is old enough to go to the market and sell something she is immediately a possibility as a wife. The more money she earns — possibly a cent or two a day—the more attractive she becomes. And when the boy proposes, they elope for three days. After the elopement, they get married.

As soon as the marriage is over, the wife goes to work to support her man—and hubby looks around for another wife. When he finds her, he elopes again. And that goes on and on, with the wives supporting their husbands to the best of their abilities.

The wife, of course, can only marry once. Which may or may not be a tough break, depending entirely on how you look at it. But I can't help thinking what a tough break it would have been for Peggy Joyce if she had been born in Bali.

The books and the movies may paint many stirring pictures of the island, but I can't recall that any of them described the dog situation down there. There must be a hundred thousand dogs in Bali, and they are beyond a shadow of a doubt the mangiest, saddest, most unfortunate set of curs in the entire world.

The reason is very simple. Each Balinese believes that he returns to Bali again after death, the fashion of his return depending upon how good he has been on his previous visit. A dog is not considered a particularly good thing—and if you come back as a doggie, you must have done something naughty before you kicked off.

Accordingly, the Balinese will not feed their dogs. But because it may be their second cousin or the corner grocer, they will not kill the animals. So the poor hounds are left to get along as best they can. And the result is that they howl and whine through the night, making sleep an absolute impossibility to anyone but a native Balinese.

No, all things considered, I can't hand Bali too much of a rave. Put some clothes on the ladies down there and you'd probably never hear about the spot again. Which might not be a bad idea . . .

COX PLANS TRIP TO VATICAN

Father Cox has plans completed to lead a pilgrimage to Rome, leaving Pittsburgh June 26 to participate in the Holy Year Jubilee at Vatican City. The pilgrimage will then proceed to Lourdes, France, to join in the Diamond Jubilee of this world-famous shrine. Many Pittsburghers and others of this area, including several non-Catholics, have already made reservations for the Holy tour. Father Cox has a descriptive booklet on this tour which he will be glad to send to any one interested.

In the meantime he is also leading a pilgrimage to the Shrine of the Little Flower, Royal Oak, Mich., and a visit to Father Charles E. Coughlin, famous radio priest, leaving Pittsburgh Saturday night, May 13, and returning Sunday night.

It still looks as though the present week will be another reocrd-breaker in the Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph subscription drive. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is sent in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

Robinson, Exporter, Dies in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, April 26. — (AP.) — Matthew S. Robinson, exporter of packing house by-products who came here from Kansas City, Mo., in 1911 as an office-boy in the Swift Company, became superintendent of the Swift plant at Montevideo, and later established his own company, is dead today.

Marie Caselotti, Diva, Gets Divorce

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—(AP.)—Twenty-three years of married life had terminated today in the divorce of Marie Caselotti, opera singer, and Guido Hocke Caselotti.

The romance began in 1909 when she was a choir singer and he a church organist. She charged that bursts of temper shattered the wedding idyll after two decades.

MANY AUTHORS INCLUDED IN NAZI BAN

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

BERLIN, April 26.—A Nazi "index expurgatorius," consisting of the works of many noted German and foreign authors, was made public today by the staff of municipal commissars charged with the task of "purifying" the public libraries of Germany.

Among the volumes blacklisted by the commissars, who recommended that they be gathered together and burned, were:

All the works of Henry Barbusse, Leon Feuchwanger, Heinrich Mann and Erich Maria Remarque (author of "All Quiet on the Western Front").

All the volumes written by Ludwig Renn and Ernst Toller, Communist authors, and all those of Arnold and Stefan Zweig.

Two books written by August Bebel, founder of the Socialist party.

Upton Sinclair's "Sin Reward."

All the volumes written by Lenin except "Radicalism, the Infantile Disease of Communism and the Revolution of 1917," which was evidently considered detrimental to Bolshevism.

Walter Rathenau's "The New State."

All the works of Hugo Preuss.

All pacifist, pro-Bolshevist and so-called "Defeatist" literature, especially books dealing with the World War.

Along with the list of prohibited books, the commissars gave out the names of a number of volumes especially recommended for reading.

These included Chancellor Adolf Hitler's autobiography, "My Struggle;" books by Gregor Strasser and Gottfriend Feder, Nazi leaders; war novels by Franz Seldte, leader of the Steelhelmets, and other war books by nationalist authors.

Steel Helmet Leader Forced to Resign

BERLIN, April 26.—(INS.)—The way was cleared today for complete unification of the Nationalist Steelhelmet organization with the Nazi party by the forced resignation of Col. Theodore Duesterberg as vice president of the Steelhelmets.

Duesterberg, who was a candidate in the presidential elections last year on the Nationalist ticket, announced his resignation following receipt of a letter from Franz Seldt, Minister of Labor and leader of the Steelhelmets.

Aged Rabbi Flees From Nazi Attacks

PRAGUE, April 26.—(AP.)—Rabbi Jonas Fraenkel, formerly active in New York religious circles, was in Prague today after a flight from Berlin, where he asserted he was robbed and beaten by Nazis.

The 76-year-old rabbi said he got out of the German capital by rolling himself in a carpet and having friends cart him outside the city.

Police Here Seek Missing Gambler

Police here have been asked to search for Caesar DeTamassio, convicted gambler of Beaver Falls, who escaped from the Rochester General Hospital recently.

DeTamassio was seen in a restaurant at 619 Penn avenue yesterday, according to a report to Sheriff C. J. O'Loughlin, of Beaver County.

GERMANY BACKS STERILIZATION

BERLIN, April 26.—(AP.)—The Prussian Board of Health has drafted a eugenic sterilization law to serve as a model for the entire Reich, it was announced semi-officially today.

Some sections of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's Nazi party have been advocates of sterilization of the physically and mentally unfit for many years.

Dr. Martin Staemler, director of the Pathological Institute at Chemnitz, has recommended sterilization of children born dumb and blind and of defectives in order that the nation might build a physically healthy "Nordic" race.

The physician also asserted that women should be taken from their business occupations and sent back to the homes to discharge the duties of motherhood.

Berlin's Ex-Mayor Arrested by Nazis

BERLIN, April 26.—(INS.)—Former Mayor Gustav Boess, of Berlin, was arrested today on complaints lodged by Dr. Lippert, Nazi commissar for the state of Brandenburg.

Charles of squandering public funds and other accusations regarding his personal affairs are filed against the former Socialist Mayor.

ILLINOIS VOTES REPEAL MEET

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 26.—(AP.)—Both houses of the Legislature today passed a bill providing for the election of 50 delegates at large on June 5 to a state convention to vote on the repeal of the national prohibition amendment. The repeal convention would be held July 10.

Overwhelming majorities obtained in the House and Senate removed all doubt but that one of the duplicate bill would be given final legislative approval this week.

The Senate also passed and sent to Gov. Henry Horner the bill he asked for regulation of the sale of legal beer.

THIEF STEALS MUSIC LESSONS

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 26.—(AP.)—A thief who entered the office of Harry C. Risko took the following:

A set of golf clubs and a bag.

One sign painting device, including block and tackle and ropes and hooks.

New Sound Waves May Shatter Molecules

CINCINNATI, April 26.—(AP.)—Supersound waves as rapid as 14,000,000 vibrations a second, far exceeding any rate ordinarily produced, are included in the range of a new device announced today at the University of Cincinnati.

Much slower supersounds have been used to kill frogs, small fish and bacteria, and to sterilize milk.

But the Cincinnati apparatus, product of the Basic Science Research Laboratory, is designed for exploring a new field, the possibility of applying the vibrations to the reactions of chemistry.

An industrial bulletin of Arthur D. Little, of Boston, states that there is evidence that some unstable molecules may be literally shaken to pieces.

SCREEN COMIC ON 'MANHUNT'

Questioned last night about her rumored retirement from pictures, she declared:

"I'm looking for the man who started that rumor. I have no more intention of retiring than I have of riding a bicycle down Hollywood boulevard in shorts.

"What would I retire from, and where would I retire? Work always has been my entire life. Retirement and quiet, little cottages, dogs and cats and parrots, are all right for folks who like them, but not for me, after almost half a century in the fun and excitement of stage and screen."

Juvenile Judge Plan Up to Pinchot

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, April 26.—If Gov. Pinchot is willing to relinquish the province of appointing a judge to a newly-created Juvenile Court in Allegheny County, the bill backed by civic organizations and introduced by Representative Max Spann will be passed and become a law.

Mr. Shields

The result would be to leave the County Court with its personnel of six judges, the Juvenile Court becoming an entirely new branch of jurisprudence in Allegheny County.

This is the outcome of conferences between sponsors of the bill, those who were lukewarm to it, and a handful of active opponents.

The barrier raised to enactment was the creation of the new court, with the appointive power resting with the Governor. There were discussions on the subject yesterday with Mrs. John M. Phillips representing the thought of those interested in a separate Juvenile Court. There were conferences with Senator James J. Coyne, who objected for a time to the creation of a new court.

At first the thought was that there should be no more than six judges below the grade of Common Pleas Court. The Juvenile Court judge was to be drawn from County Court, with his loose time given to the work of the subordinate branch.

Coyne Suggests No Appointment be Made

Then came the suggestion, originating with Coyne, that an extra judge could be authorized if the bill was so worded that there would be no appointment, and that the new position would not be created until January of next year through nomination at the primary and election at the general election of this year.

There is a precedent for this course. It was followed in the creation of a new judicial place in Lycoming County, which eventually went to former Representative Charles Bidelspacher, a Pinchot follower. Whether the Governor will acquiesce on the plan is something to be determined only when the bill eventually reaches the Executive.

It is known that representatives of the Governor, when first approached on the subject of the new court for Allegheny County, as agreed upon yesterday, felt there was some slight to Mr. Pinchot. Later they said they would interpose no objection, and would let the matter take its course up to the Executive's desk.

Coyne contended for a time that the appointee under the first plan had already been selected, basing his opinion on the surface activity of a Pittsburgh lawyer who has been busily about Harrisburg boosting the bill.

Proponents Deny Political Motives

This was denied by proponents of the bill, who insisted they had no political motives. It was even intimated that they would not support the gentleman whom the Oakland Senator contended had been shopping.

Coyne was not willing that the Governor should have at this time the appointment of two judges in Allegheny County. A vacancy already exists in County Court through the death of Judge Paulson Foster, and a Juvenile Court with separate jurisdiction would have opened the way to a second appointment.

Those interested in the Juvenile Court bill made it very plain that they wished the court considered as non-political, and assured all who cared to listen that the women of the county intended to center on the election of a judge. They made it plain that they would not be bound by any appointment the Governor might make, and on that basis agreed with Coyne that there should be no appointment, and that the place should start with a nomination and election.

Piekarski Gains Added Support

It may be that this will prove satisfactory to the Governor. He is somewhat beset by the vacancy occurring through the death of Judge Foster.

First opinion was that he almost automatically would appoint Attorney Frank Piekarski to the post, Piekarski having been only a step behind Judge Benjamin Lencher when the latter was named to the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Jones.

But yesterday morning, in the Governor's office, there was a noticeable cooling toward Piekarski. It was quite plainly intimated in informed quarters that the use of Mr. Piekarski's name should be qualified.

Later in the day County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern talked to Mr. Pinchot, and now the picture may have swung again toward Piekarski. It is no secret that Common Pleas Court Judge Ralph H. Smith is friendly to Piekarski, and the apparent championship of McGovern should doubly arm him.

Alderman Named Planners Secretary

William Scott, Tenth Ward alderman and an employe of the State Auditor General's office, yesterday was named secretary of the County Planning Commission. He succeeds Jo Ray, who resigned to become a landscape architect in Connecticut. The position pays $3,000 annually.

DEPOSITS TO BE RELEASED BY NEW BANK

14,000 Will Obtain Access to Part Of Cash

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

More than 14,000 depositors in the closed Diamond National and Monongahela National banks will have access to portions of their cash soon through the opening of the Pitt National Bank of Pittsburgh.

Application for a charter for the new institution has been approved and the work of obtaining subscriptions for the stock has been completed, according to an announcement by the committees in charge of the organization work.

The new bank will take over portions of the assets of the two closed institutions and will credit the depositors with proportional amounts. It is expected that Diamond depositors will have access to about 45 per cent of their funds and that the Monongahela depositors will have access to about 60 per cent of theirs.

USE DIAMOND SITE

The new bank will conduct its business in the quarters of the former Diamond National Bank at Fifth and Liberty avenues.

Assets not taken over by the new bank will remain in the hands of the receivers for liquidation.

The committee announcement said the name of the new bank having been pre-empted and authority having been given by the Comptroller of the Currency, the corporate organization will be put through as rapidly as possible and the necessary arrangements concluded and court orders obtained to enable the new bank to take over the acceptable assets of the Diamond and Monongahela National banks and make available to depositors of those institutions, the proportion of their deposits transferred.

SPEED SOUGHT

The setting up of the organization to run the new bank and the opening of the necessary books and accounts will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

While officers and directors have not been formally elected, the proposed board has been holding frequent meetings. As was previously announced, Charles A. Fisher will be president and A. J. Hughlin vice president.

The total capital, surplus and undivided profits of the new bank will aggregate $1,050,000, made up of cash subscriptions and, with acceptable assets taken over from the Diamond National Bank and the Monongahela National Bank at their current market values, the financial stability of the new bank is assured.

MONTOUR ROAD WINS FIGHT

The Pennsylvania and the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroads today lost another phase in their battle to halt construction of a 13-mile Montour Railroad spur to tap the Youngstown steel district.

Federal Judge R. M. Gibson today quashed a subpena obtained by the two companies to compel officers of the Pittsburgh Coal Company and others to produce papers and documents to furnish evidence for the injunction suit now pending in Cleveland, to halt construction of a line from Smith's Ferry, Pa., to Negley, O.

We Need Dollar That Will Stretch But Not Bounce

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Senator Reed fears the rubber dollar more than the street car conductor fears the zinc nickel.

We don't know what the gold and silver business means. We have a liberal supply of both distributed through our teeth. And all of it hurts.

At the same time we have two bills. One bears Andy Jackson's picture. The other is Abe Lincoln. The boys get along very well in our pocket.

So we will continue to wrap up our financial bundles in green paper and stop trying to figure out the ratio. If you can't tell mushrooms from toadstools you had better stick to broccoli.

All we know is that putting new paper on the parlor walls never weakened the foundation of the house.

Two Aliquippa Boys Win Awards for Sculpture.

By PENELOPE REDD

The annual national high school art exhibition opens at Carnegie Institute today to continue through May 10. Since 161 prizes and mentions were awarded for oils, water colors, drawings, prints, textiles, leather, jewelry, metal work, pottery, sculpture and photographs from the 691 objects selected for the exhibition, detailed comment is obviously impossible. Usually attention is centered on the pictorial arts with the decorative arts subordinated. Let us look at these other arts expressed in more unfamiliar mediums than pencil on paper.

Miss Redd

In sculpture, two Aliquippa boys confound the adult observer. Adolph Dioda wins first prize with a lion recumbent and Mark Benedict receives honorable mention for a tiger. These figures are glyptic sculptures carved from sandstone. That youngsters would seek the source method of sculpture instead of the simpler process of modeling and then casting is a heartening sight. Julia Hamlin, of Columbus, was given third prize for a fresh, youthful head of a young girl, free of derivative influence. The most original and spontaneous application of the art impetus in the entire exhibition occurred in one by Charles Saranite, of Cleveland. Taking a large, smooth pebble of a warm brown color, he carved a "Pegasus" on it with intuitive regard for the adaptation of design to space. Or one finds another kind of expression in the sensitively realized portrait of Charles Pallas for which Dorothy Nash, of Peabody High, was awarded honorable mention. She has chosen the classic medallion shape for her relief and in the arrangement of her design indicates intelligent perception as well as the aptitude for likeness.

The line that divides the modeled and glazed sculpture from pottery is sometimes indistinguishable. For example, there is an unhonored mule in droll "Retrospection" by William Elliott

POLICE PARADE AFTER SHAKEUP

Mayor John S. Herron and his public safety aides today inspected the new personnel of officers that came out of the police shakeup.

Fourteen captains, all of equal rank, and 41 lieutenants, in dress uniforms today paraded in front of the Mayor, Public Safety Director Harmar D. Denny, Jr., Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide and Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd.

The Mayor told the captains what he expects of them and urged they give their undivided attention to police matters.

In the shakeup "Smiling Dan" McGreevey came out a lieutenant of radio police. Other changes made were those forecasted in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 26.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Every paper just keeps saying how Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. MacDonald are "in accord" and how Mr. Herriot and Mr. Roosevelt are "in accord." Now that all sounds mighty chummy and docile. But knowing Europe like we ought to know 'em, there is just a little too much "in accord." There is one awful good time to watch those babies from over there and that is when they are "in accord. But I imagine we can trust Mr. Roosevelt. While this is his first poker game with Europe, he has played with Tammany, so he is not exactly what you would call an amateur. He has seen guys pull 'em out of their sleeve before. But he has got to watch that "in accord" stuff.

REED TO PUSH VOTE PROBE

Attorney Earl F. Reed, appointed special prosecutor for the government, today began his investigation of alleged fraudulent voting in the last congressional election.

United States Attorney Louis E. Graham turned over to Reed the voluminous report of the government's special agents who have been investigating the voting by which Michael J. Muldowney defeated Mrs. Annie Felix and Twing Brooks won over Edmund Erk. Graham said:

"After a conference in which the subject was thoroughly discussed Mr. Reed and I find ourselves in perfect accord. A policy was agreed upon and a plan of action laid out. We are very glad to have Mr. Reed associated with us and he and James I. Marsh, the first assistant district attorney, will carry on the case, which will be pushed vigorously to completion."

The federal grand jury is expected to hear the first witnesses next week.

VOTE ON CITY AUDIT MONDAY

City Council will vote Monday on an ordinance authorizing City Controller James P. Kerr to employ public accountants for an immediate audit of the City Treasurer's books.

The cost of the audit, under provisions of the ordinance, is not to exceed $5,000. The audit is designed as a protection to H. Raymond Hilliard, new treasurer.

Council will approve Monday the $100,000 surety bond given by Hilliard as city treasurer and his surety bond for another $100,000 as collector of delinquent taxes. A $50,000 surety bond given by Harmar D. Denny, Jr., new safety director, will also be approved Monday.

Washington County Fruit Crop Ruined

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 26.—Washington County's position of eminence in the peach harvesting world will be negligible this year because of heavy frosts in the last few days, a survey disclosed today.

At the Murphy Fruit Farm the crop was wiped out, it was said. At the Thompson Fruit Farm it is estimated the yield will not exceed 25 per cent.

2 PRINT SHOP FIRES PROBED

Two fires which, police say, broke out simultaneously in printing shops on the fourth and fifth floors of the Imperial Power Building, Penn avenue and Barbeau streets, last night, were being investigated by detectives of the bomb and arson squad today.

The automatic sprinkling system in the building prevented the flames from spreading. The shops damaged were those of the Willoughby Printing Company, on the fourth floor, and the J. B. Kreider Company, on the fifth, police said. Battalion Chief William Graves estimated the loss at $2,500 and ordered the investigation.

EDUCATORS JOIN IN TRIBUTE TO ROOSEVELT

WCAE'S Program For Observance Includes Woodin's Airs

A tribute to President Roosevelt, with the assurance that every member of the Pittsburgh Teachers' Association will take part in President's Day, next Sunday, was voiced today by Miss Esther M. Smith, president of the association.

Details for radio station WCAE's salutation to the President Sunday night from 7:30 to 8 o'clock over the air were made public.

Uniontown and Fayette County businessmen and organizations announced their complete support of the occasion and of President Roosevelt.

PLAY WOODIN'S MUSIC

On the WCAE program, the station's orchestra will play national airs and compositions by Secretary of the Treasury Woodin. The speakers will be Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology; Col. Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, and Walter A. Jones, oil man. Clifford Marshall will direct the orchestra.

Under the heading "President's Day Will Be Approved by Uniontown and Fayette County," the Uniontown Independent published a list of business houses, organizations and citizens who will aid the day's observance. Among those mentioned were the Fayette Inter-Allied Congress and the Independent Sons of Italy.

LAUDS F. R.'S MOVES

Miss Smith, head of the Teachers' Association, comprising nearly every member of the educational profession in the district, in calling on educators to observe the day, said:

"The present critical situation demands a man of unusual qualities. A man who tries to solve one phase of a problem without seeing it in its relation to the whole makes no progress. So far as we can see from the action of our President during the very few weeks he has been in office, he has not one plan, but a series which dovetails to a surprising degree, and gives promise of complete solution in the end.

"This series of plans deals with the major issues of the complex problem of which money, food, trade, great public works, relief, prohibition and economy in government are only parts! If the promptness and decision which have characterized our President's action since March fourth continue to bring results, our nation may perhaps be the leader out of the present world chaos. In this event, credit will be due President Roosevelt, and to the Congress without whose support and approval success of administration measures is impossible.

"A knowledge of psychology, business acumen, cheeriness and optimism have colored every relationship between the President and the public. In the face of a stupendous task, involving complex and enormous difficulties, the President inspires confidence by his very method of approach to economic recovery. The gravity of the situation has stimulated President Roosevelt to undertake in rapid succession measure after measure designed to arouse hope in the hearts of our citizens.

"If wholehearted support of the administration program will help make it successful, let us stand back of this leader of action!

"The observance of Sunday, April 30, as 'President's Day' will provide an excellent means of centralizing the thoughts of the entire nation upon the problems confronting our chief executive. I am sure that every member of our association will wholeheartedly indorse and support this splendid idea."

PROCLAMATIONS ISSUED

Governors Horner, of Illinois, and Olson, of Minnesota, have issued proclamations calling next Sunday President's Day — more than a dozen, including Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, have called attention to the day.

In Los Angeles, Mme. Schumann-Heink will sing at the President's Day mass meeting, "The Star Spangled Banner." Mayor Rossi, of San Francisco, and other California Mayors, have been asked to attend.

Rabbi M. Z. Margolies, dean of Jewish rabbi in the United States, and Col. James A. Moss, president general of the U. S. Flag Association, have written statements commending the day to every citizen.

Volley Fired Into Home Perils 12; Nephew Held

Enraged when his aunt ejected him from her home because of his boisterous conduct, Edward Delbene, 31, fired five shots through the kitchen door of the home, at 128 Mulberry way, and fled, police reported.

The bullets imperiled the aunt, Mrs. Jennie Argenas, and her 11 children.

Mrs. Argenas said it was her nephew's first visit to her home in 15 months. She told police he was intoxicated and disorderly. When she put him out of the house and slammed the door he began firing, police said.

Delbene was arrested a short time later when he returned to his aunt's home. He was charged with being a suspicious person.

BURGLAR ALARM EXPERT LINKED IN BANK PLOT

A North Side holdup suspect was revealed by detectives today as having confessed to planning the robbery of a Sharpsburg bank in which he had installed a burglar alarm.

The suspect, Lester L. Corey, 48, of 627 Clyde street, admitted, Detectives William Stewart and Michael Carney testified in Central Police Court, to having mapped out the robbery of the North Side Laundry Company, Success and Winifred streets, Saturday, which netted $3,000.

CHARGE CONSPIRACY

Corey himself did not participate in the holdup, the detectives said. This was done by four armed accomplices. Corey was held for court, charged with conspiracy in a robbery by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

Detectives said Corey told them he was an expert burglar alarm man and had helped install the alarm in the Sharpsburg bank. He had jammed it, however, he is alleged to have confessed, so it would not sound when set off.

ABSOLVED IN SLAYING

Corey, originally arrested in connection with the murder of Hilda Lindberg, East End domestic, was absolved of suspicion in that crime.

He and seven others had been held in the North Side laundry holdup. The latest arrest was that of Floyd Kirk, 1010 Western avenue, today.

In habeas corpus proceedings in court today, a woman suspect, Pearl Jathowski, Thirty-sixth street, was ordered released in $1,000 bond pending a final hearing May 3.

Detectives said they believed Corey was the "brains" of a robber gang operating in numerous cities.

FOREST ARMY UNIT EAGER FOR DUTY

By JOHN B. HERRON
Staff Correspondent.

DUNKLE CORNERS, Pa., April 26. — This village in McKean County is to be headquarters for 215 of Pittsburgh's contingent of forest workers for the next six months. Similar numbers are quartered at Heart's Content, Pebble Dell and Sugar Run.

Our group arrived here yesterday afternoon after a delay of several hours at Kinzua. The trip by train from Fortress Monroe, where the men were conditioned, was without incident.

The boys ate in the open on arriving, as a field kitchen was the only equipment on the camp site. Tents were hurriedly erected, with the arrival of Army officers to provide housing.

As we left Old Point, Va., Army airplanes gave us a rousing send-off in flying formation.

The men are in good physical trim and eager to enter upon their duties of planting, building roads and fighting forest fires. Several other camps are located in this district.

HARRISBURG, April 26.—(AP.)—Fifteen additional camp sites for the Civilian Conservation Corps in Pennsylvania were being surveyed by Army officers today, all on state-owned forest lands. The sites are Pine Grove Furnace, Cumberland County; Cowan Gap, Franklin and Fulton Counties; Big Spring, Perry; East Licking Creek, Mifflin; Greenwood Furnace, Huntingdon; Poe Valley, Center; Halfway House, Union; Hills Grove, Sullivan; Huntley, Elk; State Camp, Clinton; Masten, Lycoming; Straight, Elk; Cross Fork, Potter; Leetonia, Tioga, and Snow Hill, Monroe.

Congress Approves 2 Allegheny Bridges

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(AP.)—The Senate has passed and sent to the White House two bills authorizing the state of Pennsylvania to construct free highway bridges. The structures would be erected across the Allegheny River at the Forest-Venango County line and at Parker's Landing, Armstrong County.

JURY FEE PLAN OUTLINED TO END RACKET

A new system to control witness fee costs and crush a "racket" costing the county thousands of dollars yearly will be presented to County Commissioners tomorrow. The plan was agreed upon by District Attorney Andrew T. Park, Clerk of Courts Samuel J. Topley and Controller Robert Woodside.

Park yesterday told the Commissioners that to put the new system in effect he would require two additional clerks and that Topley would also need another clerk. He said individual ledgers would be kept for police officers and constables to prevent collection of more than $3 a day for time spent in court.

A year ago, he said, an additional clerk was installed and since that time $30,000 has been saved. He admitted there still was room for improvement.

Auditors for Main & Co. submitted another report yesterday, containing further allegations against Justices of the Peace questioned in connection with the costs the county paid in cases resulting in discharges.

The auditors said Constable J. M. Fiebig had collected $6,031 in costs in one year on cases eventually discharged by Justices Thomas H. Steck, of Aleppo Township, and Fred W. Roll, of Glenfield. They charged also that Roll had turned into the county only $125 of $1,185 collected in fines. In many cases defendants listed could not be located, the auditors said.

LACKS RECORDS

The auditors reported Steck informed them he had no records, as his office had been robbed. Asked to open a small office safe, he declared the combination was lost, the report said.

The auditors also asked the Commissioners to obtain from Controller Robert G. Woodside additional information on the constables' returns and individual discharge cases.

Collegian Earns Way By Caring For Children

MADISON, Wis., April 26.—(AP.)—Fremont Conrad, University of Wisconsin student, from West Allis, Wis., finds that a good way to work one's way through college is to take care of children and do other tasks ordinarily assigned to women. He said:

"As far as working one's way through college is concerned, the women are getting rather the worst of it. The men have stepped out and gone into the field of feminine occupation."

DAMAGED LINDY PLANE FIXED

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 26.—(Universal.)—When Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrive in Los Angeles on their transcontinental flight, their Lockheed Altair which they flew to China will be waiting for them.

The plane, which was damaged in China, has been repaired and has been ready and waiting for the famous couple for months, officials of the Lockheed plant revealed today.

Lindy 'Kidnaper' Freed in Idaho

BOISE, Idaho, April 26.—(AP.)—Ignace Blaustein, who told officers he participated in kidnaping the young son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh was ordered released from the state penitentiary by the Board of Pardons today.

Glider to Attempt Pikes Peak Takeoff

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—(Universal.)—Out for new air conquests, Richard Devine, well-known glider pilot, is preparing for a hazardous glider flight from the top of Pikes Peak, in Colorado.

Mount Wilson, near here, has provided an extremely difficult test for gliding, but its approximately 6,000 feet height is small compared to the 14,311-foot elevation of Pike's Peak.

CHAMP CLARK'S SON HERE

Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, son of the late Champ Clark, was a Pittsburgh visitor this morning for half an hour. En-route from his St. Louis home, where he spent two days with his sick son, Senator Clark changed airplanes at the City-County Airport, and departed for Washington.

Asked about the economic situation the Senator said:

"The whole program of events for the last three years has been deflation. I would much rather term the new plan reflation than inflation. What's necessary is a normal expansion of a circulating medium to meet the ordinary demands of the country."

Jobless Man Kills Self With Shotgun

MONACA, Pa., April 26.—Despondent because of ill health and unemployment, Ivan Dragaszac, 38, took his life with a shotgun at the home of a sister, Mrs. Barbara Kovacic, 38 Beaver avenue, Monaca, according to a report to Beaver County authorities.

Body of Kidnaped Merchant Found

BUENOS AIRES, April 26.—(AP.)—The body of Perfecto Blanco, a merchant kidnaped April 7, was found buried today under a suburban house.

Neuritis

Few diseases cause greater suffering than painful Neuritis or Rheumatism. Authorities state that Neuritis is often the result of an accumulation of excessive acids, poisons and waste material in the body. Relief can be obtained by eliminating these causes. Mountain Valley Water from Hot Springs, Arkansas, has been successfully used by many local people, because in a natural way it assists in the elimination of acids and poisons. It is natural, pleasant-tasting water, and comes to you with all of its mineral and medicinal properties intact. If you want relief, phone for a case or additional information and literature.

A free sample will be delivered in Pittsburgh and suburbs.

of Peabody High in the pottery section that our judgment elevates to a sculpture prize. Louie Virgin, of Peabody High, conveys a genuine sense of structure in the second pottery prize vase of stately Egyptian proportion in strange green.

Moving over into the metal work, one marvels at the results secured in stubborn materials requiring infinite patience. Thomas Green, of Westinghouse High, has authentic craftsmanship in his copper chest awarded honorable mention. The first prize, a pewter coffee pot by Irene Hove, of Minneapolis, demonstrates ability to apprehend the relation of design to medium. The first prize group of jewelry by Garnet Ross, of Detroit, has genuine distinction.

In textiles, Helen Hardie, of Detroit, presents a working drawing, a textile as an essay in design, the stool for which the textile was designed, and finally the completed woven Swedish inlaid tapestry, modern in design, but allied to the traditional, in grey-green and rose-tan. American Indian themes occur frequently in the textiles. Of these, Harwood Harris, of Wichita Falls, Tex., sends a stunning one. In the group from El Paso, which gathered many awards, our prize choice was one of young people dancing by Mirion Perry.

The decorative arts indicate a stimulation for later life that may rest with appreciation, play with them as avocations, mature as hand craftsmen, or develop with the times into designers for the new products to be fabricated from new materials for contemporary purposes.

The pictorial arts will be treated in a separate review since the decorative arts are at this time more closely allied to life.

Collie's Yowls Bring Release From Mail Box

OMAHA, Neb., April 26.—(AP.)—"Baby," a soft-eyed, curly-haired little collies, is howling for justice.

That he can howl with great success was indicated when he howled himself out of imprisonment in a big mail box. His howling as he lay imprisoned in the box attracted the attention of William Sherman, 14, who called police. The police notified postoffice inspectors.

A postal inspector, freeing the pup, told William that someone must have forced the dog into the box. The result was the organization by William of a neighborhood posse to trail down the culprit.

FUND TO SAVE SANDY GROWS

Contributions today continued to flow in to Mrs. Ethel Cannon's fund to wage a legal fight for the life of Sandy, the dog sentenced to die for biting a 3-year-old boy.

The fund late yesterday reached the $50 mark, according to Mrs. Cannon. Mrs. Mabel M. Artrip, of 110 Tipton street, Hazelwood, began a "Sandy Fund" in the Dollar Savings Bank with a $10 donation, and a $5 contribution from "J. H. C." immediately followed, Mrs. Cannon said. Mrs. Artrip is treasurer of the movement.

Other money received yesterday included $1 from J. E. Douglas and 25 cents from little Jean Campbell. Three other dollars came in from anonymous subscribers.

George Roder announced yesterday he would receive contributions at his cigar stand in the Investment Building, 235 Fourth avenue. A miniature dog kennel with Sandy's picture on it has been placed on the stand. Other funds will be received by Mrs. Cannon at her home, 627 Junilla street, and by Mrs. Artrip.

Mrs. Cannon, a lover of dogs, instituted the fund to procure the $250 necessary to appeal the ruling of Judge S. L. Reed, of Cambria County, to Superior Court.

KILLER SUSPECT ENDS OWN LIFE

SCRANTON, April 26.—(AP.)—An argument over a debt is said by police today to be responsible for the killing of one man and the suicide of another.

Several hours after the body of Wilford S. Dean, of Charleston, W. Va., was found in a wood near Scranton, state troopers and Lackawanna County detectives last night surrounded the home of Lewis Huntington, 60, near the place where Dean was discovered.

Closing in to arrest him, they said they heard a shot and, entering, found Huntington had shot himself in the head with a rifle.

LIGONIER, Pa., April 26.—Thieves broke into the log cabin store in Idlewild Park last night and carted away antiques, cigarets, candy and fishing tackle valued at $850.

C. C. Macdonald is the owner. State police of Greensburg are seeking the looters.

HAYS PROMISES BETTER FILMS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 26.—(AP.)—Greater economy in production and better entertainment as well was pledged by Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors, on his departure for New York last night.

Coming to Hollywood in the midst of the crisis brought by the banking holidays, the worst ever faced by the industry, Hays conferred with studio executives for several days regarding a "new deal" for the films. He said:

"From the conferences which have been held have come certain undertakings with all major factors in agreement, that hold definite promise not only for greater economy in production and increased efficiency, but for better and finer entertainment."

LINK POET'S SON IN HITLER PLOT

MUNICH, April 26.—(AP.)—Soumyandra Nath Tagore, son of the world-famous poet, Sir Rabindranath Tagore, is the Indian who was arrested Monday in connection with an alleged plot on the life of Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

The poet's son is still being detained. He is said by authorities to be a Communist.

Young Tagore, who is 21, and his chauffeur were arrested at the border station Rimsting and brought to the jail here on information from Tyrolean frontier guards.

Police said Tagore's automobile contained much suspicious luggage. The chauffeur, named Vagenback, was described as a German-Russian.

Student Wins Three Prizes in Art Contest

The outstanding figure in Pittsburgh's triumph in the National High School Art Contest was Joseph Grilletto, 16, of Connelley Trade School, only competitor to receive three awards—first prize in pencil drawing, third in oil painting and honorable mention in inks.

Also at Connelley, John Mucha, 16, won second prize in oil painting, and a scholarship to the Columbus School of Art. He was the only Pittsburgher to receive that honor. Eugene Zabowski and Andrew B. Sefcik received second and third prizes respectively in the Carnegie Museum Awards.

First prize in the pottery division went to John Patton, Negro, of Schenley, while Loule Dean Virgin, of Peabody, took second.

Mayor's Limousine Taken From Sleuths

Former Mayor Charles H. Kline's $7,000 limousine, which has been carrying Pittsburgh's detectives around for two weeks, is again attached to the Mayor's office.

A point of order was raised by Councilman Charles Anderson on Mayor John S. Herron's economy gesture. The car was bought to be used by the Mayor, and Council so ordered.

WOMAN TO POST BOND IN GIRL'S AUTO DEATH

Elizabeth Reed, 12, of 804 Railroad street, Heidelberg, died last night in St. John's Hospital from a fractured skull suffered Saturday, when she was struck by an automobile near her home, according to a Coroner's report.

Mildred L. Cowden, of R. D. No. 1, Washington County, who police said was the driver, was ordered to post bond for an inquest.

HIT-RUN VICTIM

A victim of a hit-and-run driver, a man tentatively identified as John Gamalak, 38, of 6102 Walnut street, was in critical condition in Passavant Hospital today. He was found unconscious in Bigelow boulevard at Kirkpatrick street, by Clyde Fleming, of 266 Watsonia boulevard, a motorist, who called police.

John A. Brown, 55, address unknown, was injured seriously when his automobile collided with another owned by Mrs. Nina Knowles, of 5814 Stanton avenue, and driven by Clifton Richards, 17, of 910 Chislett street, at Fifth avenue and Bellefonte street, last night, according to a police report.

Brown was taken to the home of Dr. William H. Kirk, of 5506 Fifth avenue. Richards was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

PEDESTRIAN HURT

Walter Stones, 40, another victim whose address police could not learn, was in Presbyterian Hospital today, suffering a possible fracture of the skull. He was struck by an automobile said to have been driven by George Snyder, 35, of 1233 Dixon street, in Reedsdale street last night. Snyder was arrested.

TWO WOMEN HURT

Mrs. Joseph Tisherman, 45, and her daughter, Mrs. L. T. Mazer, 21, of 1807 Center avenue, were injured slightly early today in an automobile accident on the Boulevard of the Allies, near Juliet street. Police said the automobile in which the two women were passengers was struck by a truck, temporarily out of control as a result of a collision with another automobile. Phillip Vallick, 32, of 3215 Park View avenue, driver of the truck, and Robert Miller, 19, of 2306 Shady avenue, driver of the other automobile, were arrested on reckless driving charges.

Joseph Tisherman, husband of Mrs. Tisherman, was driving the automobile containing the women. The Tishermans are parents of Dr. Robert Tisherman, of Passavant Hospital.

MAN SLAYS 3, ENDS OWN LIFE

CROTHERSVILLE, Ind., April 26.—(INS.)—Three persons were dead and two others were in critical condition today after Stanley Hammelman entered the home of his estranged wife's parents and shot everyone in the house last night before committing suicide.

Hammelman shot and killed Howard Weddle, his father-in-law, and Donna Hammelman, his 4-year-old daughter. Mrs. Weddle and her daughter, Mary, 15 years old, were critically wounded in the blaze of gunfire.

After shooting his parents-in-law and their daughter, Hammelman went upstairs and killed his daughter as she lay in bed. Then he turned the revolver on himself.

Mrs. Hammelman had gone out for the evening.

Wills of 2 Women Dispose of Estates

Mary F. Fuchs, North Side, by her will disposed of a $10,000 estate to her sister, Mary Estelle Winter, and other relatives.

WIFE, CHILDREN HEIRS OF FELL

NORRISTOWN, Pa., April 26.—(AP.)—His three children by a former marriage and his widow are named beneficiaries of the estate of John R. Fell, Philadelphia and New York sportsman who died of a knife wound in Solo, Java, last February.

The estate is valued at $110,000 and upwards. The will probated here yesterday provides that the three children receive $5,000 each, with the residue in trust for the widow, the former Martha A. Ederton.

The children are Dorothea, John Randolph and Philip S. P. Fell, by his first marriage in 1910 to the former Dorothy Randolph, of Philadelphia. The couple was divorced and the former Mrs. Fell is now the wife of Ogden L. Mills, former Secretary of the Treasury.

Fell inherited $1,000,000 in trust from the estate of his grandfather, Anthony Drexel, but his life interest ceased with his death and his widow will not share in the Drexel fortune.

COUNTY FACES CONTRACT SUIT

Claiming that the county failed to carry out its part of a contract, the Gerry Ferrone Company, Blawnox, has notified County Commissioners it intends to file suit.

The county in February, 1932, contracted with the company for red dog at 40 cents a ton, to be used in North Park. Company officials say they kept a steam shovel and equipment at the red dog pile at Harmarville, but the county never called on it for any of the material. The county did, however, buy it from other companies. Saying it would have made approximately 20 cents a ton profit, the company seeks a statement as to how much red dog was delivered to the park during the year.

County officials said the only red dog delivered at the park was for use on the roads, which came under another contract. The legal department was asked to report.

On the Job every minute

—they've just got to be right

End-on, this tray-full of fresh-made Chesterfields looks like a huge honeycomb. Inspectors, expert from long practice, remove with tweezers each torn or imperfect cigarette.

Each and every Chesterfield!

Each tray of CHESTERFIELDS from the cigarette-making machines passes under the watchful eyes of inspectors, trained by long practice to see flaws such as an end of torn paper, or a poorly filled cigarette.

And there's still another safeguard . . . two "electric detectives" on each packaging machine. Electric fingers "feel" each end of every cigarette, and throw out every imperfect package.

Open your pack of Chesterfields, and look at them. It's no accident that every cigarette is round, firm and full. Somebody's been on the job every minute to give you what you want . . . a cigarette that's made right in every way and that's milder and tastes better.

SWEENEY, ANGOTT WIN IN A. A. U. RING MEET

SPORTS

By JAMES J. LONG

No Worry About Defeat. Still Hope for Kremer. Overdo Aggressiveness.

Sunday Sports in Sight. Tips Tilden Over Vines. None Dodged by Jeff.

OCCASIONAL SLIPS TO BE EXPECTED

PITTSBURGH FANS WERE in a position to view with equanimity the defeat of the Pirates yesterday in the final game of the St. Louis series. No club can win all the time, and it was not to have been expected that the Bucs could keep up their dizzy pace without an occasional stumble. In winning four in a row between their first and second slips they hung up the longest streak of the spring in either major league excepting only the Yankees' string of seven straight, and up to today they held the distinction of being the only club in the big loops that had not lost two games in succession, and that had not lost a series. That's doing plenty.

Remy Kremer

There was a bright spot in the defeat in the fine showing of Ralph Birkofer, who pitched two hitless innings in his first major league appearance. Nor is there any reason to feel gloomy over the outcome of Remy Kremer's initial test of the year. Kremer is not at his best in a small park, and one unsuccessful performance against a club that was hitting doesn't mean that Remy is done any more than Swetonic's failure in the same game means that Steve is not going to have a good season. Don't pass judgment too quickly on Kremer. There may still be a lot of good pitching in him.

SO THERE WAS nothing to worry about in any part of the defeat. The Bucs will have to take many a sock on the chin, many more on an average than they have taken so far. They won't win seven out of every nine games, and they won't win even six out of every nine.

Besides, losing to Bill Hallahan right now is something that may happen to any club that goes up against him. The Cardinal southpaw is in rare spring form. He was the only pitcher in the National League who had won three games up to today, and the only hurler in the American to equal that record was Clint Brown, the Cleveland right-hander.

THERE SURELY WAS a quick response to John Heydler's plea for more aggressiveness on the ball field. The accidental spiking of Joe Judge by Dick Bartell started an early feud between the Dodgers and Phils, and right on top of it there was almost an exchange of blows among Rogers Hornsby, Charley Grimm and Gabby Hartnett, which means that future Cub-Cardinal games will not be pink teas.

And yesterday in the American League the old feeling between the Yankees and Senators boiled over again with such serious results as to cause a small riot, in which fans as well as players figured. That's carrying the aggressive stuff entirely too far, in both leagues, and there must be a quick halt. The line must be drawn short of rowdyism.

MANY OF THE big league players share the suspicions of the fans that the ringing in of a less lively ball is the explanation of the effective pitching in the early games, the denials of league officials notwithstanding. The Giants were convinced of it after making only six runs in four games. "It's the ball," Mel Ott asserted. "When you step into it there's a kind of soggy sound. I know I hooked a couple in Philadelphia that would have flown out of the park a couple of years ago, but I got only a couple of fence doubles." Bill McKechnie admits that his Braves, who made only one run in their first three contests, are of the same opinion—that the ball has been deadened—but he holds a different view himself. "I think the ball has not been altered in any way," McKechnie says. "The pitchers are more advanced in physical condition than the hitters, consequenttly the hitters are at a disadvantage, which will be eliminated in time. It certainly looks like a mistake to begin the training season so early in a Southern climate and then start the pennant races in winter weather."

Sam Crawford

THERE IS AN echo of earlier baseball days in a little news dispatch from the Coast, which brings the information that old Sam Crawford is boning his favorite bat in preparation for a series of games to be played by the Old Timers club. Crawford and other widely known stars of other days will be in the lineup of the veterans.

Time was when Crawford boned his bat it meant a series of nightmares and headaches for the pitchers around the big league circuits. A murderous mauler was Wahoo Sam. In the days when a .300 hitter meant exactly that, and not a .250 boy helped out by a lively ball, Crawford finished high in that select circle 10 times during his career with Cincinnati in the National League and Detroit in the American. His best mark was .378 for the Tigers in 1911.

THE LAST TIME Pittsburgh fans saw Crawford in action was in the world series of 1909, when the Pirates beat the Tigers for the big title, thanks to the great pitching of a kid hurler named Babe Adams. Sam hit safely in five of the seven games.

Crawford did not get swinging rightly until the fifth contest, played at Forbes Field on October 13, and though the Bucs won that engagement, 8 to 4, Wahoo Sam put on a little field day of his own with a home run, a double and a single. His homer was a wallop over the short temporary fence in center field in the eighth inning, Tommy Leach falling over the fence in a vain attempt to capture the drive.

EVERYTHING COMES TO him who waits. Nobody ever did any more waiting or fighting for anything than did the residents of Pennsylvania for the privilege of having legalized professional sports on Sunday, already enjoyed by the people of most other states, but their patience finally has been rewarded. Sunday sports are in sight at last. The action of Gov. Pinchot in signing the Schwartz bill means that any municipality so voting next November can have baseball and football on Sunday afternoons in 1934 and thereafter between the hours of 2 and 6 o'clock. There is little or no doubt of Pittsburgh's sentiment on the question, so the dreams of local fans probably will be realized next year in Sunday baseball games at Forbes Field, followed by football attractions, including a National League professional team, in the fall. It is a victory for right, freedom and progress over antiquated blue laws that belonged to the days of public stocks and the ducking stool.

ROWING RACES ON the Olympic course at Long Beach during the last couple of weeks have strengthened the claims made originally that it is the finest in the world.

And it has another advantage over others in the fact that it is fenced in and admission can be charged. At the college races last week they got 50 cents for admission, $1 for a seat and 25 cents for parking. It removes the old drawback that made college rowing a dead loss, with all going out and nothing coming in.

WHILE HE DOESN'T openly say so, Vincent Richards appears to have his suspicions as to one reason why Ellsworth Vines refused to play in the ill-fated open championship tennis tournament.

Richards, who knows all about tennis, both amateur and professional, that is worth knowing, says there isn't a doubt in his mind that Bill Tilden could beat Vines any time he chose to do so, despite the great difference in their ages.

Jim Jeffries

SCORNING THE STRICTLY commercial atmosphere of the present-day boxing game, Jim Jeffries can't find a thing in it which he considers worthy of his approval. He says none of the changes since his fighting days has been for the better. The former heavyweight champion, who recently celebrated his fifty-eighth birthday anniversary, declares the boxers are too money-minded and have no pride in their profession, caring little whether they win or lose so long as they get the kale. He views the manager as thinking only of their cut of the loot, and thinks the various boxing commissions are lax in making either fighters or managers toe the line. Jeff himself was a party to the first affair that sent boxing into six-figure money, that $101,000 meeting with Jack Johnson in a comeback after eight years out of the ring, but it must be said for him that present champions who repeatedly dodge hard fights are not following his example. He was not guilty of any of that stuff. In five years he fought Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Corbett, Tom Sharkey, and Gus Ruhlin twice each, and Peter Jackson, Joe Choynski, and Joe Goddard once, not to mention lesser foes. He dodged nobody.

COLD WEATHER KEEPS BUCS, CUBS IDLE

A. M. A. ENTRIES ADVANCE TO SEMI-FINALS

BOSTON, April 26.—(AP.)—The championship reign of Homer Brandis, of San Francisco, only defending titlist in the National A. A. U. boxing championship tournament, ended last night under the long straight punches fired by Lanky Frank Wilson, of Boston, in a blazing 175-pound quarter-final battle.

After slugging toe to toe with his lanky rival, the sun-tanned Californian found himself edged out of the competition on a divided decision, before a crowd of 3,500.

Team honors went to the well balanced Cleveland forces, which qualified five of its seven battlers for the semi-final round. Chicago kept four of its eight men in the title quest and so did the New York state team. New England, Detroit and Pennsylvania teams each qualified three men. New Jersey and Kansas placed two each and single semi-final berths were gained by the Minneapolis, Cincinnati, New Orleans, Washington, Memphis and Oklahoma groups.

TWO LOCALS WIN

Two of the eight Pittsburgh entrants survived the quarter-final milling and gained semi-final places. In the 126-pound division, Leo Sweeney, of the Pittsburgh Boys' Club, outpointed Jim Christy of Chicago, in a fast bout.

Sammy Angott, of the Tucker A. C., of Washington, Pa., the senior A. M. A. 118-pound champion, scored his second knockout when he stopped Frank Mirabel, of Chicago, in the second round. Angott stamped himself as being one of the hardest punchers in the tournament.

Three more Pittsburgh district hopefuls met defeat last night. William Eley, the star of the Steel City team, was eliminated in the 135-pound class by Frank Eagan, of Buffalo. George Bittner, of the Pleasant Valley A. C., who drew a first round bye, was defeated by Max Marek, of Chicago, in the 175-pound division, and Dick Ambrose, of the J. L. Thomas Club, of Pittsburgh, lost out in the 147-pound class to George Baratko, of Cleveland.

KANSAS STAR VICTOR

Bud Breese, of Kansas State College, gained an easy verdict in an intercollegiate struggle with Mike Tardugno, of Columbus University, Washington.

Dennis Flynn, of New Orleans, the 1932 national intercollegiate 160-pound champion, after taking punishment in the first round from Frank Kapanowsky, of Detroit, came back and won the decision.

'Keepsie Regatta Certain for 1934

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—Abandoned this year because of financial conditions, the Poughkeepsie Regatta will return to its customary place in the national sports program next season, no matter what the success of the proposed college regatta at Long Beach, Cal., July 8.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: A MATRIMONIAL RECORD—John Weeks, a descendant of George Weekes, of Dorchester, Mass., was born in 1684 and died in 1798, at the age of 114. Eight years before his demise the sturdy old patriarch entered into the holy bonds of matrimony for the tenth time, his bride being 16 years of age, while the bridegroom's years numbered five score and six. Long after he passed his first century, Weeks' gray hair changed to black, and a new set of teeth grew in his mouth. A few hours before his death he ate three pounds of pork, two pounds of bread and drank nearly a pint of wine in a single meal.

SCHWARTZ BILL LAUDED HERE

William E. Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, expressed himself as being greatly pleased with Gov. Pinchot's signing of the Schwartz bill, which permits voters of the state to decide whether municipalities may license Sunday sports.

Mr. Benswanger said:

"The bill will give the public an opportunity to express themselves on the matter, which is as it should be. After all, it is the voter himself who has to be satisfied with the final results."

The measure provides for a vote next November on the Sunday sport question, which means that Sabbath sports still will be illegal until 1934.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Harmar D. Denny, Jr., your new director of public safety, is a good golfer, a member of the Fox Chapel Club and a former president of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association. . . . So beware—be sure you yell "Fore!" before you try to pull anything on him.

Another victory for the common people, and a well-earned one—Sunday sports in Pennsylvania.

Jack Dempsey and his Max Schmeling-Max Baer fight get a bad break in the news of the complete boycott of Jewish boxers and managers in Germany. . . . For some time the word has been in circulation that the Jewish fans were going to give Schmeling the go-by in this country because of conditions in Germany, and this latest action doesn't help matters.

The signing of the Schwartz bill affects sports scribes most of all. It puts an end to their favorite sport—sleeping in on Sundays.

Lew Raymond says it's no wonder an honest boxing promoter can't make money any more with the big league baseball clubs averaging a fight a day to pep up things for the customers and even resorting to free-for-all brawls such as that thing in Washington yesterday. . . . Lew wants to know how the baseball people would like it if he gave away a baseball game with every fight to attract trade.

Our Pirates are back home again today, but they're a bit disappointed . . . They were in St. Louis three whole days and didn't get a single challenge out of Rogers Hornsby, who claims he can lick the whole Cub team, or vice versa. . . . To add to the general hilarity in baseball, a ginger ale company is going to give away a case of its wares to every player who hits a home run at Forbes Field this summer . . . Oh, well, ginger and pep go well together—HARRY KECK.

BOXERS SEEK COURT AID

CLEVELAND, April 26.—(AP.)—The "no contest" fight of Ben Jeby and Gorilla Jones was headed for the courts today on the heels of the Cleveland Boxing Commission's order suspending both fighters and their managers for a year.

Simultaneously, a movement to book the athletes for a return engagement either in a Cleveland suburb or in New York cropped up.

Representatives of the fighters said they would file suit in court to recover the $5,400 purse the commission ruled they must forfeit for "stalling." It asserted the stalling of the two fighters caused a condition of disorder, confusion and near riot.

Jones and Jeby already have been suspended for a year in the 32 states which hold membership in the National Boxing Association, but word received here indicated the N. B. A. might reconsider the suspension order, which also applied to their managers, Suey Welch, of Akron, and Hymie Caplin, of New York.

Both Jones and Jeby pleaded before the commission that they had done their best in the fight last Wednesday night that brought about the "no contest" ruling at the end of the scheduled 12 rounds.

WOMEN'S DERBY CHANCES GOOD

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 26.—(AP.)—Excellent chances of becoming the fifth woman to own a Kentucky Derby winner are conceded Mrs. William Crump, owner of Head Play, and Mrs. John Hay Whitney, owner of Crowning Glory and Poppyman.

These horses appear the best of those nominated for the 1933 Derby at Churchill Downs May 6 by women owners. Others in this category training nicely for the Derby are Mrs. I. D. Sloan's Caesar's Ghost, Mrs. C. M. Amory's Parity, and Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Utopian.

None of the four eligibles of Mrs. Payne Whitney, who won the 1931 Derby with Twenty Grand, is expected to go to the post, each having developed illness or failed to prove of Derby caliber.

The only four women owners who have won derbys are Mrs. C. E. Durnell with Elwood in 1904; Mrs. R. M. Hoots with Black Gold in 1924; Mrs. John D. Hertz with Reigh Count in 1928, and Mrs. Payne Whitney with Twenty Grand in 1931.

DONOHUE RELEASED

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—(AP.)—Pete Donohue, former major league pitcher, has been released by the Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast League, club headquarters here announced. The team is playing in Seattle.

GARDEN DROPS BOUT PLANS

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Clever Sisson vs. Al Citrino, 10 rounds, San Francisco.

Cowboy Eddie Anderson vs. Johnny Owens, 12 rounds, Kansas City, Mo.

Ross Fields vs. Babe Colima and Jimmy Naggbo vs. Johnny Mitchell, 10 rounds each; Tony De Marco vs. Jimmy Taylor and Mickey Dugan vs. Pete Hartley, six rounds each, and Joey Boldin vs. Billy Morris, four rounds, Cleveland.

There will be no boxing show in Motor Square Garden next Monday night, it is announced by Matchmaker Jules Beck. There are two reasons. One is that the food show now in progress there would have to be hustled out of the building too fast to make room for a mitt show on Monday, and the other is the fact that a suitable card could not be obtained. Beck was planning to use Frankie Goosby, but, as usual, found it tough to lure any of the topnotchers into taking a chance with the local Negro middleweight.

This leaves the Arena, on the North Side, in a swell spot with its Tony Herrera-Tracey Cox battle on Friday night. No Garden show before it and no Garden show after it. If ever a billing had a chance to pack 'em in this one has it.

Both Herrera and Cox are due in town tomorrow and will work out at different hours in the Pittsburgh Lyceum gymnasium.

Between Rounds

Johnny Gurn, Salem College boxing coach, meets Young Riffle in the six-round semi-final to the Buddy McArthur-Rosy Rosales bout in Fairmont, W. Va., tomorrow night.

South Side Benefit Show on Tonight

Seven amateur bouts make up a boxing program in the South Side Market House tonight to raise funds for recreation purposes for the unemployed men and boys of the community. The card:

John Petro vs. Dutch Weir, Vince Browning vs. Joe Swearing, Steve Kobeda vs. Jimmy Campbell, Russ Snyder vs. Whitey Schram, Johnny Saville vs. Steve Kovach, Paul Negley vs. Young Jados and Al Gold vs. Mac Verge.

FIRST LADIES' DAY CARDED TOMORROW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Cold weather today prevented the opening game of the two-game series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs at Forbes Field. The decision was reached at 1 o'clock when the thermometer registered 42 degrees.

The field was in good condition for play, according to President Benswanger, of the Pirates, but cold weather would have made it uncomfortable for the fans and players.

The series will be concluded tomorrow afternoon when the first ladies' day of the season will be in force. The Pirates' management requests the fair fans to assist in avoiding confusion at the entrance gates by having the correct amount of change for tax.

Manager Lefty Grimm, of the Cubs, confirmed reports of his near-battle with Rogers Hornsby in St. Louis last Saturday, and said he was interested in statements in the papers that Hornsby will continue to carry the chip on his shoulder when the Cardinals play the Cubs in Chicago next Sunday. He said:

"I'm not looking for a fight, but if there is going to be one I won't run away from it."

The Pirates were a bit sore mentally and physically as they arrived at the home port this morning. Their sour feelings were the result of a 10-3 pasting the club received yesterday at the hands of the Cardinals, although the veteran members of the club will tell you it is nicer to be on the receiving end of a good trimming once in a while rather than to lose by the one-score margin.

MEINE HIT WITH LINER

The physical woe was felt by Pitcher Heinie Meine, hero of the shutout victory of Sunday. Heinie, in the practice period, was nicked on the pitching arm by a line drive from the bat of Fred Lindstrom. It was at first feared the ball might have fractured a bone in Meine's arm, but the member appears to be responding to ordinary treatment and it isn't likely the veteran will be a long-time casualty.

Rogers Hornsby made his season's start for the Cardinals as they walloped the first placers. Hornsby made one hit in three times at bat and apparently he turned in a satisfactory fielding job. His advent into the Redbird batting order caused Frank Frisch to be switched to the more difficult shortfield post, a role which Frisch does not relish.

SWETONIC HAS OFF DAY

Two of the Pirates' star righthanders were treated roughly by the Redbirds as they rode roughshod over the Pittsburghbers. Steve Swetonic and Remey Kremer were the victims of the Cardinals' pentup wrath. North Side Steve worked four rounds and allowed four markers. The home batters nicked Kremer for six runs in two innings, but some of the hits charged against Kremer were of a scratchy order.

Watkins reached Swetonic for a homer and Frisch also solved Kremer for a round-tripper. Bill Hallahan, one of the best lefthanders in the sport, let the Pirates down with nine hits.

A nice development from the Pirate standpoint was recorded when Recruit Southpaw Ralph Birkofer went to the slab. The big Tulsa graduate worked the last two innings and held the Cards hitless and runless.

Chilly Sauce

The fisticuffs breaking out in baseball will not have a depressing effect on the turnstiles.

Maybe the boys are just paging John McGraw. The old-time Giants were generally good for sidelight attractions.

None of Lefty Grimm's friends will pay

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Well, they finally got some good news in Chicago. You know they owe the school teachers something like $30,000,000 out there, and when the pupils graduate in June they may have to give 'em L. O. U.s instead of diplomas. But the good news is the White Sox. The way the boys have been pummeling the apple is very sweet cider to Chicago fans.

Nick Altrock

They figured the new team would turn for the better, but they didn't expect a complete somersault. The three lads in Chisox purchased from Philadelphia haven't gone off the A standard. In fact, they are performing A-plus. And the trouble they are brewing for opposing pitchers ain't 3.2 stuff.

Don't forget the White Sox trained in that California earthquake, too. The results are so good Comiskey may train 'em at Mount Vesuvius next spring.

MYER, CHAPMAN AND WHITEHILL SUSPENDED

HARRIDGE OFF TO GET UMPS' REPORT

CHICAGO, April 26.—(AP.)—President William Harridge, of the American League, today indefinitely suspended Buddy Myer, Washington infielder; Ben Chapman, New York outfielder, and Earl Whitehill, also of the Senators, for their participation in a fight which broke up in a riot during the Washington-New York game yesterday.

Dixie Walker, of the Yankees, was not suspended as reports to President Harridge said he went to the protection of Chapman and was not engaged in the fight.

President Harridge will leave for Philadelphia today, where the Yankees are playing, to extract a full report from the umpires.

After completing his investigation, President Harridge said he would take definite action against the players involved.

Tell of Scrap

PHILADELPHIA, April 26.—(AP.)—Manager Joe McCarthy and the New York Yankees, discussing the riot yesterday at Washington which resulted in the suspension of Ben Chapman, of the Yankees, and Earl Whitehill and Buddy Myer, of the Senators, were inclined today to place most of the blame on Whitehill. He said:

"If it hadn't been for Whitehill there wouldn't have been anything to it but the row at second base between Chapman and Myer. After all it was none of Whitehill's business and he should have kept his mouth shut."

Manager Joe Cronin, of the Senators, blamed the outburst on bad feeling between the players of the two teams and said that Chapman had cut Myer going into second base in the game of the previous day. He said:

"When Chapman spiked him for the second time he just lost his head. I'm sorry that the thing happened and I hope there will not be any long suspensions as a result of it."

Chapman, explaining his side of the row, denied that he intended to spike Myer when he slid into second and that he was doing only what most players do, trying to interfere with Myer's throw to first base. He said he thought the trouble was all over as he went through the Washington dugout toward the club rooms, but that Whitehill "made a nasty crack at me as I went by."

HITS DETECTIVES

Chapman hit Whitehill and then several detectives, who he thought were fans, piled on him. Chapman said:

"They gave me this lump on the back of my head and they ripped me here on the cheek and the neck. I was battling them as hard as I could when one of them said: 'I'm going to throw you in jail.' Then I realized they were cops so I said: 'All right, but take me to the clubhouse so I can change my clothes.' Instead they continued to maul me and I don't know what would have happened if the other players hadn't arrived to rescue me."

WALKER TO RESCUE

One of the first to go to Chapman's aid was his roommate, Fred (Dixie) Walker, who knocked down a couple of the detectives, according to Chapman, and gave four or five a brisk argument. Ben exclaimed:

"What a roomie! He just belted those fellows around like nobody's business."

Bill Dickey, Vernon Gomez, Russell Van Atta and Tony Lazzeri were other Yankees who joined in the fun. As Tony swung into battle some feminine fan yelled from the grandstand:

"Don't let Tony Lazzeri get in there, he'll kill somebody."

Lazzeri said:

"I didn't know I was supposed to be such a tough guy. I didn't kill anybody, but I threw a few punches and for a minute I had a lot of fun."

Soho Sports Champs Honored at Banquet

Championship teams of the Soho Community House were honored at the annual Victory banquet held last night in the club rooms. Joseph A. Rasciatti was toastmaster. Among the speakers were William E. Benswanger, of the Pittsburgh Pirates; Max Hannum, basketball coach at Carnegie Tech; John Billand, Mike Kudrav, George Hooper, Feber Stevenson, publicity director of the Welfare Fund and Julius Levin, of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The Patties, champions of the Senior League; the Wood Club, champion of the Hot Stuff League; the Willows, champions of the Monday Afternoon League, and the Cardinals, champions of the Midget League, were the basketball teams honored.

The Red Aces and the Monarchs were the mushball champions, the former winning in the Midget League, while the latter was the victor in the Junior League.

Fight Results

At Philadelphia—Eddie Cool defeated Joey Costa, 8 rounds; Toots Bashara defeated Bobby Dechter, 8 rounds; Hill Henerie defeated Marty Little, 6 rounds; Hugh Civatta defeated Joe Terry, 6 rounds; Frankie Carlss won by a technical knockout over Bob Firth, 6 rounds.

By TOM BIRKS

Buff Donnelli, former Duquesne University football star and who has been much in the soccer limelight this season, will play second base for the Mayview baseball team this season, it was announced by Manager Shoemaker today.

A. De Blander

Buff, classed as the greatest all-round athlete ever to be graduated from Duquesne, is just as much at home on the diamond as on the gridiron.

This will be the third season for the club sponsored by the recreation department of the City Home and Hospital. The team opens with Trafford City at Mayview Wednesday, May 10.

Dante Villani will play third. Donnelli believes that Villani is one of the sweetest hot-corner protectors in the Panhandle district. It also is rumored that Villani will be in the City League this season.

Alex De Blander will captain the club and play first base. Red Murphy, who was understudy to De Blander behind the bat last season, will assume the catching duties.

Hoot Zeigler will play right field, and for the third season lead off the batting order. His consistent hitting, base running and smartness fits him admirably for the position.

The club will go on the road Saturday afternoon. Managers wishing to book games should write Manager Shoemaker, Mayview, Pa., or call Bridgeville 400.

Bunts

Elmer Yoter, McKees Rocks boy, just named manager of the Wilkes-Barre team of the New York-Pennsylvania League, will try to break a jinx that has followed every third baseman on the club.

No third baseman starting the season has ever finished in that position since the club became a member of the circuit.

One Pittsburgh boy, Jackson, of Edgewood, will try to make the team under Yoter. Yoter is going to try and win pennants where Mike McNally left off. If Elmer can win, it will be the third flag in four years for the club.

Binghamton Sends Pair to Stogies

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., April 26.—(AP.)—Business Manager Ray Kennedy, of the Binghamton club of the New York-Pa. League, has announced the release of Outfielder Milton Hart and Shortstop Don Curry to Wheeling, W. Va., of the Mid-Atlantic League.

Pitcher Bill Frazier was sent to Scranton on option and Pitcher Glenn was released outright. Wheeling is a farm of the New York Yankees.

Carnera Delays Sailing for U. S.

ROME, April 26.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera, giant Italian boxer, who is scheduled to meet Jack Sharkey, the champion, in a title bout in New York in June, arrived in Rome today from Milan.

Edoardo Mazzia, secretary of the Italian Boxing Association, said he understood Carnera planned to spend a few days in Rome and then return to Milan. He does not expect to sail for the United States until early in May.

Seals on Air and Stage For Programs Tonight

This is the night the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph double in brass, appearing both on the air and in their debut as a theater added attraction.

At 7 o'clock, they'll be heard over WCAE in their weekly radio sports broadcast, when Pitchers Waite Hoyt and Bill Harris, of the Pirates, and Outfielder Riggs Stephenson and Catcher Gabby Hartnett, of the National League champion Chicago Cubs, making their first appearance of the season here, will be interviewed by Charles J. (Chilly) Doyle, baseball expert of the Sun-Telegraph.

Following this broadcast, the Seals, with Capt. Pie Traynor, of the Pirates, and sundry other baseball notables included in the party, will hasten to the Leona Theater in Homestead, where they will be the guests of Miss Lois Miller, the singing organist, formerly featured at Loew's Penn Theater and in the Sun-Telegraph Night Club programs. With the aid of microphones at the organ and on the stage platform, the Seals will put on an act similar to their weekly broadcasts from the WCAE studios even including the famous seal bark of Julius Levin. Harry Keck, sports editor, as usual, will be master of ceremonies. The theater performance is scheduled for 9:15 o'clock.

LOCAL NETTER ADVANCES

HOT SPRINGS, Va., April 26.—(AP.)—Playing with deadly accuracy, Francis X. Shields, of New York, seeded No. 1, advanced in the second round of the Hot Springs tennis tournament yesterday with a 6-0, 6-1 victory over Robert Van Lear, of Clifton Forge, Va.

The Mason and Dixon champion showed far better form than he did Monday in defeating C. B. Graun. His shots were more accurately placed and his drives had greater power behind them.

Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, seeded No. 2, won in equally impressive fashion over John Wilkie, of New York, 6-0, 6-1. Stoefen drew a bye in the first round.

Marcel Rainville, Canadian cup player, and Dick Covington, of Asheville, also won in easy fashion.

Schaefer Establishes New Cue Record

CHICAGO, April 26.—(AP.)—Jake Schaefer, of San Francisco, set a new high run record of 39 last night in winning the second block of the world cushion caroms billiards series from Willie Hoppe, of New York, 250 to 210, in 44 innings.

While Schaefer won the block he still trailed the 18.1 balkline titleholder by 38 points in the total score. Hoppe finished out to 500 points, while Schaefer's total was 462. Schaefer, who took the lead late in the block, set his high run mark in the twenty-fourth inning.

The match is at 1,500 points.

attention to the mean things which Rogers Hornsby has said about the former Pirate firstsacker. Grimm has ever been known as an athlete of character.

When the Cubs meet to divide their world series share, Grimm had no vote or voice in the matter. The managers stay away from the profit-taking meetings, leaving the question of the division to the rank and file of the players. The Cubs voted Hornsby a row of ciphers.

Dick Bartell cracked out four doubles yesterday to match Paul Waner's card of last season. And Richard the Lionhearted has been in on his share of spats in the new and aggressive season.

Stillman Holds Maxie to Draw

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 26.—Maxie Rosenbloom, world light-heavyweight champion, last night was held to a draw by Al Stillman, of St. Louis, in a 10-round non-title engagement.

Stillman was the aggressor throughout, but failed to hurt the 175-pound titleholder, who fought in spurts. Rosenbloom weighed 178 pounds, Stillman 176.

DAVIES TO SPEAK

Chick Davies, basketball coach at Duquesne University, will speak at the testimonial banquet to the first and B teams of the St. Pius' Lyceum in the St. Pius' Parochial School auditorium, McKeesport, tonight. John J. Freund, veteran basketball manager and promoter, also will talk.

BOXER TUNERO HURT

PARIS, April 26.—(AP.)—Kid Tunero, Cuban middleweight, who has been campaigning successfully in Spain and France, today injured a leg in training and was forced to cancel his scheduled bout Saturday with Eric Seelig. Tunero said he would be unable to box for 10 days.

SKIBO NETTERS FACE DUKES

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Intercollegiate tennis competition attains the spotlight hereabouts today as Coach B. P. Hoover's Carnegie Tech host makes its 1933 debut by visiting the Bluff for a clash with the Dukes, of Grant Siverd, while Capt. Bill Thompson hustles his Wash-Jeff contingent over the West Virginia line for encounter with Bethany.

The Pitt array, out of hostilities until Saturday when it, too, will invade Bethany, is billed for outdoor practice this afternoon to complete the picture of local action.

HARTIG AT NO 1

Rufus Hartig, new leader of the Tartans, is slated to top the Plaid lineup against Capt. Frank Casey, of the Red and Blue. Groves and Stuart Dueger, gridiron ace, are certain of posts near the head of the Skibo list with the remainder of the complement to be filled mainly from sophomore talent. Duquesne will offer about the same singles front as faced West Virginia last Saturday.

Announcement comes from the United States Bureau of Mines office here that net devotees of that organization have applied formally for membership in the Pittsburgh Tennis Association and, in the event of their admission, which is virtually assured, will enter a squad in Division Two of the P. T. A. Inter-Club League.

SCHOOL CARD SET

The official schedule of the City Division of the Interscholastic Tennis Conference was released by Supervisor C. Lawrence Walsh this morning. Six schools are entered in the chase for the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Cup, captured last year by Taylor Allderdice High School. Play will get under way tomorrow with Westinghouse journeying to Allderdice as Peabody stands idle in Section I and Allegheny Vocational treking to Carrick, while Schenley loafs in Section II.

The regular campaign runs till May 15. The intersectional title match is booked for May 19, and the survivor will do battle with Suburban Division sectional winners on May 22. The schedule:

SECTION I

April 27—Westinghouse at Taylor Allderdice.
May 1—Peabody at Westinghouse.
May 4—Taylor Allderdice at Peabody.
May 8—Taylor Allderdice at Westinghouse.
May 15—Peabody at Taylor Allderdice.

SECTION II

April 27—Allegheny Vocational at Carrick.
May 1—Carrick at Schenley.
May 4—Schenley at Allegheny Vocational.
May 8—Carrick at Allegheny Vocational.
May 11—Schenley at Carrick.
May 15—Allegheny Vocational at Schenley.
May 19—Intersectional city championship.
May 25—Final round, intersectional conference championship.

Rodosto Is Victor In Newmarket Race

NEWMARKET, Eng., April 26.—(INS.)—Rodosto, owned by the Princess De Faucingy-Lucinge, won the classic 2,000 Guineas Handicap today. Rodosto was quoted at 9 and 1.

Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen's King Salmon finished second at 25 to 1, and the Aga Khan's Gino third at 110 to 6.

Twenty-seven 3-year-olds, best of the age racing in England and most of them hopes for the Derby at Epsom, ran.

The defeat of McKeesport, defending sectional champion, in the Interscholastic Golf Conference featured the competition among the school mashie wielders yesterday, with other matches resulting in triumphs for the favorites.

In the district baseball milling, McKeesport also took a lacing, dropping a W. P. I. A. L. tussle to Edgewood.

The links setback was administered by Wilkinsburg, which won, 10½ to 7½. The match was played at Edgewood.

BRENTWOOD WINS

In other Section II duels, Brentwood walloped Shady Side, 13½ to 4½, and Turtle Creek downed Springdale, 13 to 5. Blaskovich, of Turtle Creek, had the best medal score of the day, turning in a par 64 over the Harmar links.

Kiski continued its victory march in Section I, walloping Peabody, 16½ to 1½. Oliver duplicated this score against Allderdice and Connelley blanked University School, 18-0.

Besides the McKeesport-Edgewood game in the W. P. I. A. L., Dormont downed South Fayette, 7 to 2. Brown limited the Fayette nine to five scattered hits.

SCHENLEY RALLY WINS

Schenley put on a fine rally in the last half of the seventh inning to nose out Oliver in an exhibition City League contest, 8 to 7. Two were out when three hits, two walks and two errors netted four runs.

Westinghouse trimmed South Hills, 10 to 6, the Hillsmen scoring all their runs in one inning.

Two Langley hurlers, Sacco and Tunitis, turned Crafton back with four scattered hits as the Corliss Tunnel nine won, 9 to 0.

Y. M. C. A. Volleyball Meet Here Saturday

The Downtown Y. M. C. A. will be host at an invitation volleyball tournament Saturday. Teams from the Wheeling, Fairmont, New Brighton, Tarentum and Scottdale branches are to compete, and other out-of-town teams are likely to be entered.

The Downtown Y. team, which recently won the Cherry Blossom tournament at Washington, D. C., is favored to win the event. Play will get under way at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Tech Tackling Dummy Has Players Licked

TACKLING DUMMY BACK AT TECH . . . HARPSTER'S IDEA

By JESS CARVER

They've restored the tackling dummy at Tech's football practice, and what a tackling dummy they have! What a dummy!

The dummy the boys out at Carnegie are hitting these days probably is the meanest, most cantankerous, most ornery dummy in captivity. You dasn't hit it as you hit the ordinary dummy. If you do, all it will do is throw you into the air or wrap you around one of the iron posts that furnish its support. It's a double-action, high powered, kick-back dummy.

Take, for example, Jerry O'Toole, the man-of-all-work of the Plaid squad. Jerry is a good tackle. The first time he hit it, he drove into the bag with all his might, but neglected to hang on. Wow—back it came, smacked the astonished Jerry square in the whiskers and banged him up against those iron poles.

SLED ON FRITZ

The restoration of the tackling dummy and its running mate, the dreaded "sled," charging machine to be more explicit, followed the appearance on the scene of the new Tartan coaches, Howard Harpster and Don Lovewell. They hadn't used the sled or dummy for a good many seasons at Tech, but Howdy and Don secured fine results with them while at Geneva and installed, or reinstalled, them at Tech. The sled went on the fritz after the first day's workout and may not be repaired and put back into use this spring, but it will be used in the fall.

At most colleges, the boys tack a nickname on their dummy. The boys at Tech havn't selected one yet, but it has been suggested that it be dubbed "Maxie," not, of course, in honor of Maxie Hannum.

Saturday morning there are going to be big doings at Carnegie. The varsity is going to play a picked team of alumni, captained by Joe Morbito, who fullbacked for the Plaid a couple years back. Included in the old-timers lineup will be George Kavel and Hooks Sample, co-captains of last year's team; Tony Sweet, Tony Ostrosky, Rudy Jones and Tony Kebe.

KARCIS MAY PLAY

Johnny Karcis possibly may put on a uniform and test the varsity line, and if he does, the varsity line may loook forward to a very busy morning.

In fact, the game as a whole stacks up as being such a teste for the boys that Red Stewart looking forward to twisting an ankle or grabbing off a nice, ripe charley-horse about Friday afternoon.

Miss Lenore Kight, of Homestead, who holds as many national swimming titles as it takes strikes to get Babe Ruth out, will assist at Pitt's first annual swim clinic in the Trees gymnasium pool Saturday, according to Coach Pat Corr, of the Panther swimmers, who is putting on the affair.

STOCKS CLIMB ON BUSINESS UPTURN

The list slid back farther as yesterday's selling carried over into the early dealings, but soon turned upward, with rails and utilities leading the advance, and gains of fractions to 3 points were numerous by early afternoon. The volume of trading slackened, however.

The rally in the American dollar in foreign exchange dealings, added to assurances in Washington that the inflationary powers sought by the administration would be used "with prudence and caution," tended to calm fears of drastic depreciation of the dollar, and check the flight of funds into equities. But indications of pronounced business improvement, as shown in electric power and steel production reports, tended to replace inflation hopes and fears as a bullish market factor. Some commission houses stressed the abnormally high ratio of current share prices to earnings, but were impressed by the signs of business expansion. Foreign buying was reported practically nil in the share market.

The report of the United States Steel Corporation for the first quarter reflected the extreme slump in business in March, but hte deficit before preferred dividends of $16,730,271 was only $903 larger than in the December quarter. Ordering of another dividend of 50 cents on the prefered stock was interpreted in some quarters as in response to the improvement in the steel business in the past fortnight. A few weeks ago, Wall street was inclined to look for omission of the dividend.

General Motors reported net earnings in the first quarter of the year equal, after preferred dividends, to 11 cents a share on the common, against 17 cents in the like period of last year. The Westinghouse Electric quarterly report showed a net loss of $3,491,572, against $1,320,148 in the like period of last year, but the company reported March bookings hte largest since July of last year, and said, "it would seem inevitable that business generally will soon begin to show improvement. Already it is being felt in some directions." Borden ordered the regular quarterly dividend of 40 cents.

Higher prices were being talked in a number of lines, notably steel, tobacco and rubber. Steel scrap prices have already advanced substantially, as have crude rubber. The leading cigaret manufacturers have reduced prices sharply since the start of the year, but a partial restoration is expected in some quarters next month.

WHEAT RALLY FOLLOWS DIP

CHICAGO, April 26.—Quick rallies in grain values took place early today after setbacks at the opening. Initial weakness was ascribed to a severe break in British exchange, and to weakness of silver, cotton and securities at New York.

Wheat buying was based largely on prospective prompt senatorial approval of inflation. Opening unchanged to 1¼ down, wheat later rose above yesterday's finish. Corn started unchanged to ⅝ off and subsequently advanced.

In a broad active market with purchasing led by eastern interests wheat soon mounted in some cases to about 2 cents over early bottom figures. New strength in stocks and rallies in cotton helped to lift wheat.

Corn and oats ranged higher with wheat. Provisions averaged lower, responsive to action of hog values.

Westinghouse Loss Larger for Quarter

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company reports that despite the financial situation during the first quarter of 1933 March bookings were the largest of any month since July, 1932.

The report for the March quarter shows net loss of $3,491,572 after depreciation, taxes, etc., as against net loss of $1,320,148 in the March quarter of 1932.

As of March 31, 1933, cash and marketable securities were $31,597,253, compared with $32,851,763 three months ago.

Forbes

Millions Who Will Benefit By Inflation

—By B. C. FORBES—

Mr. Forbes

WHO WILL be helped and who will be hurt should America experience substantially higher prices through so-called inflation?

I COUNTED yesterday the number of domestic bond issues, excluding governments, traded in on the New York Stock Exchange the day before and discovered these facts:

Total dealt in	567
Selling at par or over	52
Selling between 90 and par	73
Selling between 25 and 50	138
Selling at 25 or under	84
Selling under par	515

BONDHOLDERS are popularly classified as among those who stand to lose through inflation.

This is more incorrect than correct.

Owners of absolutely gilt-edged bonds selling around par will be worse off because their holdings are more likely to weaken than strengthen in market value and because their interest money will, as commodity and other prices rise, diminish in purchasing power.

But, as we see, only 52 out of 567 bonds are rated as high as par.

Also, only 73 are in the 90-99 range.

THE GREAT majority of bonds are today selling at seriously depreciated prices. Measured by quoted value, they are second-rate—or third-rate or fourth-rate—securities.

How are they likely to fare under substantial inflation?

They are likely to do better. First, they are likely to appreciate in price and, second, they are likely to increase their degree of safety, since rising prices and expanding trade, industrial, employment and other activity is calculated to improve the financial status of the concerns that issued the bonds.

TAKING COGNIZANCE of what has happened to bonds other than those listed on the New York Stock Exchange, it can be said conservatively that 10 bondholders will be benefited for each one hurt should the general price level rise sufficiently to bring about normal business conditions.

Many bonds are selling under 50 cents on the dollar either because they have ceased to earn any interest or are earning so little that investors do not regard them as sound, trustworthy, dependable investments.

Obviously, if earnings rise sufficiently to enhance the status of the bonds, making them attractive investments, the market value will advance emphatically.

BECAUSE OF this outlook, numbers of discriminatory investors began accumulating low-priced and medium-priced bonds weeks ago. Some of them sold governmental and other gilt-edged issues in order to switch into varieties containing greater profit possibilities.

They very properly regard bonds selling away below par as equivalent to stocks rather than bonds under ordinary conditions

OWNERS AND buyers of bonds selling far under par are not the only ones who stand to be benefited by recovery in such securities.

A vastly larger number of people will be sharers. Who?

The many millions of individuals who own insurance policies, who are depositors in banks and savings banks, who are interested in building and loan associations, who derive income from trusts, etc., etc.

As bonds gain in price and safety, all these institutions will be strengthened and, therefore, better fortified to meet their obligations.

IT IS ALL very well for bankers to decry any step whatsoever toward inflation. But they proved utterly unable to stem deflation; indeed, they played quite a part in aggravating deflation by developing a mania for liquidity.

Had deflation not been stemmed, what might have happened?

March Automotive Exports Increase

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(INS.)—Automotive product exports in March were valued at $7,183,692 compared with $6,620,379 for February and $9,999,388 in March 1932, the commerce department announced today.

Passenger car exports numbered 5,496 units valued at $2,607,771, about the same as in February and compared with 5,482 units valued at $3,165,572 in March 1932.

STEEL GAINING ON BROAD FRONT

NEW YORK, April 26.—Iron Age says:

Sharp increases in scrap prices, amounting in some instances to as much as $2 a ton, further strengthening of pig iron quotations, the elimination of many of the concessions that have been granted to finished steel buyers, the prospective blowing in of additional blast furnaces, and an expansion in the rate of steel ingot production to 25 per cent of the country's capacity against 23 per cent last week and 15 per cent at the beginning of the month, are indications of the broadening activities in the iron and steel industry and among the consuming industries that use iron and steel as their principal raw materials.

The present rate of steel output is the highest for any week since March, 1932. Moreover, the volume of incoming business this month has been the largest for many steel companies in fully a year. The steel industry is now quite confident that the recent acceleration will continue at least through May, with prospects beyond that time more or less dependent upon developments at Washington. Motor car output is rising, as retail sales expand. Prospects of railroad buying are improving. Structural steel lettings in the week totaled 12,350 tons, almost triple those of the previous week, while new projects call for 11,550 tons.

Because of the reputed value of the scrap market as a barometer of iron and steel trade conditions, the marked gain in scrap prices this week becomes an item of paramount importance. The Pittsburgh market, which has been strengthening for several weeks, has recorded a further rise of only 25 cents a ton on heavy melting scrap, but the Chicago price on this grade has gone up $2, and in Eastern Pennsylvania the average price is $1.25 above that of a week ago. The Iron Age heavy melting steel composite price has risen to $8.83, against $7.67 last week, and is now the highest since the first week in October, 1931.

POWER DEMAND INCREASING

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—The report on electric power output for the week ended April 22 today offered additional evidence of industrial revival by revealing the smallest percentage decline from the previous year since the downward curve started in August, 1931. Production was off 2.6 per cent from the 1932 week compared with a decline of 4.8 per cent in the previous week in comparison with last year.

The figures, issued by the Edison Electric Institute, also show the largest consumption since the week of February 18. The total was 1,431,095,000 kilowatt hours against 1,409,603,000 in the previous week. In the like week last year output was 1,469,810,000.

The report also recorded actual gains in output over last year in the Atlantic Seaboard and New England regions.

The Flapper's Daughter

By BEATRICE BURTON

THRILLING NOVEL OF THE CHILDREN OF DANCING MOTHERS

CHAPTER XXXI.

For the next four months after that rainy night Sharlie's life ran along on well-oiled wheels. There was never a jar or a bump. Never a surprise or a thrill.

Every morning she went to the office. Every noon she went out to eat her lunch and window-shop along the avenue with Edna or one of the other stenographers.

Every afternoon at five o'clock she went home to the flat on Halstead Street, where life went along as it always had. Supper, the dishes, an occasional drive with Jim Barnum, an occasional jaunt to the movies with Edna.

But under the calm surface, this life of hers was stirred by constant excitement. The sound of Mr. Collins footsteps across the office, the sight of him coming out the door marked "Private," the thrill when he came to stand beside her desk and ask her how life was treating her these days . . . All these things were part of that deep inner excitement.

Then one August afternoon when she went down to the cafeteria on the ground floor for a glass of lemonade and found him there eating a ham sandwich, she was so excited that it was all she could do to speak to him calmly.

BEGIN CONVERSATION

"Hello, Mr. Collins."

"Hello, Sharlie." He had called her Sharlie ever since the night of the great rain storm. "Sit down and I'll buy you a sandwich."

"No, thanks. Nothing but a glass of lemonade." She sat down and pushed back the damp tendrills of golden brown hair from her forehead. "It's hot, isn't it?"

"Terribly." He turned his head and asked the girl behind the counter to bring two lemonades. "And make them tall not too sweet," he told her.

Then he turned to Sharlie again. "An office is no place for a girl as young as you," he said. "I've thought that a dozen times since you've been working upstairs. On a day like this you ought to be at some bathing beach, or sitting under a tree watching a tennis game."

"Oh, I'd like to be playing!" Sharlie answered, her gray eyes deepening and glowing. "It's so long since I had a game of tennis or any real exercise."

"You swim, don't you?"

She shook her head. "We haven't any automobile in our family . . . and the beach is so far away. "Of course Edna and I could go on the street car some times on Sunday, I suppose, but the crowds are so terrible on Sunday, aren't they?"

"But surely you have a young man who owns a car."

Once more Sharlie shook her head. "Neither Edna nor I have a 'young man,' as you say. We happen not to care particularly for any of the men upstairs."

She drew a long breath and finished what she had to say.

"You know, you're the only attractive man in the whole office, as a matter of fact, Mr. Collins," she said, and then bit her lip and looked quickly away from him as if she said something that she hadn't meant to say.

But she had meant to say it. For weeks she had intended to say just that or something like it to Mr. Collins the very first chance she got. Something that would startle him and rouse his interest in her. Something that would make him realize that he was very attractive to her.

"What was that you said?" he asked. His smile was a broad grin now that made him look very boyish and friendly.

Sharlie shook her head. "No, I can't say it again," she murmured. "I shouldn't have said it the first time. But . . . it just popped out. Besides, I think you heard me." And she hurried away from him with a backward glance over her shoulder and a little wave of her hand.

Early in September he went away for a two-weeks' fishing trip in the North woods, and the office seemed like a barren wilderness without him.

Dodie raised her blue eyes from her plate and looked accusingly at her husband. "Now, why couldn't you have made money like this Collins?" she asked him. "If one man can go into the brokerage business and get rich, why can't another?"

"But I suppose it's all a matter of brains," she added witheringly.

GOES WITH JIM

"You have to have money to go into business for yourself, Dodie," he answered her. 'And you know I've never had any. It's taken all I could make just to live. Just to keep goin'."

At 8 o'clock Jim Barnum came knocking on the front door of the flat. He was going to the pictures, he said, and wanted to know if Sharlie'd like to go with him.

"There's nothing else to do. I may as well," Sharlie told him ungraciously, and he merely grinned at her as he usually did when she said something that hurt his feelings.

Outside there was starlight and a lovely warm little breeze whispering along the street. Jim's car, clean and brightly polished as always, gleamed and glittered in the light of the street lamp in front of the apartment house.

Synopsis

Pretty Sharlie Dunn's husband is killed on their wedding day and she returns to live with her mother, Dodie. After a brief estrangement, Sharlie's parents are reconciled. Jim Barnum, neighbor, is in love with Sharlie and reprimands her for her flirtations. Edna Ballinger, a cousin, gets Sharlie a position where she works. Edna has secretly loved her employer, Mr. Collins, for years. Sharlie finds office work dull. Sharlie wants Collins to notice her more.

Now Go On

"Let's drive somewhere and dance, for a change," Sharlie suggested. Something about the night made a stuffy moving picture theater seem impossible . . . Two hours of sitting beside Jim with her hand in his, while she thought of Mr. Collins on his way to the North woods. No, she certainly didn't want to go to the pictures with Jim tonight!

"How would you like to go and call on some friends of mine?" he asked, helping her into his little car and getting in after her. It started off with a jerk and quite a lot of noise . . . not at all the way Mr. Collins' long black Mercedes swung into motion. "They're just married, and they're awful nice. Baker, their name is."

THINKS OF BOSS

"We won't stay long, will we?" Sharlie was beginning to be sorry that she had come with Jim. It would have been far more pleasant to stay at home to do her nails and give her hair an extra brushing . . . to go to bed early and think about Mr. Collins as she dropped off to sleep. Just to think about him was thrilling, somehow. She would get her new fall outfit while he was away and flash it upon him when he came back from his fishing trip. She thought of green . . . a soft gray-green suit and a soft little black hat with a green feather at one side.

Jim was fishing for her hand. He found it and held it under his on the driving wheel.

In the darkness she saw his head turn toward her quickly.

"What's the matter with you, Sharlie?"

"Nothing. I just don't want you to . . . fool around with me," she said awkwardly.

"That's a funny way to put it. I wasn't trying to 'fool around' with you, Sharlie..." He broke off abruptly and in silence the two of them rode along until the little car stopped before the apartment house where the newly-married Bakers lived.

It was a five-story apartment in East One Hundred and Sixty-sixth street, and almost all of the front windows in it were filled with light. Those on the ground floor were particularly cheerful looking, with frilled net curtains on one side and pale yellow silk on the other side. Between one pair of the yellow silk curtains hung a canary bird's cage and there were potted plants on the sill beneath it.

"I know three married couples in this building," Jim remarked as they got out. His voice sounded pleasant once more, as if he had forgotten the holding-hands episode of a few minutes before. "Gosh, wouldn't it be fine if you and I could get married and live in a place like this, Sharlie?"

Sharlie caught her breath at the suddenness of the question. She never considered [illegible] to it. The thought had come to her, sharply and clearly as a thought can come, that she was going to marry Mr. Collins if she could . . . Why not? Why not? She asked herself all the way to the third floor, where the Bakers lived. Some woman was going to, in all probability. Why shouldn't it be she?"

THE WORK OF THE ELECTRIC CURRENT

The mechanical power is the work done per second and its unit, the horsepower (hp)=550 lbs., lifted 1 foot high (per second) or 550 ft. lb. per second.

The electrical power of a direct current equals the quantity of electricity per second multiplied by the electric level difference. The former is expressed in amperes, the latter in volts, so that the electric power in watts equals amperes times volts. 1 watt= 1 amp. x 1 volt= 1 kilowatt = 1000 watts.

The current shown has 3.7 amps. under the brush-potential of 222 volt (at A—B). The electric power consumed in the circuit will be 3.7 x 222 = 821.4 watts. The power consumed in the resistance R1 is 148x3.7=547.6 watts and in resistance R2 is 74x3.7=273.8 watts, giving a total of 821.4 watts (the resistance of the connecting wires being neglected).

It's Too Loud a Secret to Keep Right

Seems incredible to realize that England tried an alleged military traitor last month. They charged him with selling war secrets.

In this day and eggs of peace there is no war. That is what the diplomats buzz us. And the only war secret we know is who won the last one?

The diplomats have just about exhausted their stopping and golfing spots in Switzerland. If a man sells a war secret that might be a pleasant excuse for a new series of confidences.

So it all works out all right except we would like to know what the secret was. Has the brawny militarist invented a powerful gas that will make you laugh and pull your teeth at the same time? Or has the lowly pacifist discovered a brand new kind of exemption?

England was all worked up to a purple welt over the trial of the accused officer. The secret must be horrible if it sounds worse than Foo Man Choo's voice on the radio.

If it doesn't betray too many armies and navies we would certainly like to know the brand of gadget that can be more terrifying and destructive than the stuff they used in the last world conflict. It seems they threw the book at us in that one.

Tanks, bombs, poison gas and flarme in case of a tie. After dining off a platter like that you don't care for any dessert.

If they have fiercer things in store for us we ain't mad at anybody. If we are drawn into it against our mild nature we will join the side with the most secrets.

The trial proves there is yeast working under the crust. Somebody has discovered a new way of making a man uncomfortable. If it works with one man it will operate on a million. And the neighbors are to be annoyed without knowing who put the tick-tack on the window.

We don't doubt that every nation around the circuit has it's war secrets. A fellow out in Kansas has perfected a gun that marches by itself.

Controlled Inflation

Judiciously Employed, the Proposed New Powers May Bring Great Economic Benefits

The administration, in its emergency money bill now before Congress, dedicates itself to "controlled inflation" or, as it might properly be termed "reflation."

Reflation is the process of expanding the available money supply of the country in a frank campaign to increase the price level.

A higher price scale is undoubtedly needed to support profitable business activity. And greater business activity is essential to re-employment of the millions out of jobs.

The administration, acutely disappointed in indirect means of tackling the fierce price deflation and its resultant expansion of unemployment, now pledges itself to a frontal attack on the basic cause of the depression, i. e., price declines.

The administration proposes to improve the price level by increasing the amount both of currency and credit.

Its first step in the direct anti-deflation campaign was to sever this country's inflexible alliance to the gold standard. This alliance, because most of the world had abandoned gold and now is on a paper currency basis, was stifling this country's foreign sales and simultaneously forcing constantly accentuated depression within our borders.

The chain to gold has been broken. It will be renewed only when, as and if the other dominant economic units of the world, especially the British empire and its economic satellites, return to the gold standard on a basis fair and acceptable to the United States.

Abandonment of the gold standard was the essential initial step in any plan to improve the economic status of the United States.

But alone the step is insufficient to achieve the desired results.

Therefore, the government has drawn further plans. These constitute domestic reflation.

Under the President's reflation program, the Federal Reserve banks will be required by law to absorb, if deemed necessary by the government, three billion dollars in United States government bonds, including issues of "government corporations," meaning the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and similar Federal enterprises.

This purchasing of government bonds by the Federal Reserve is desired as a guarantee that essential financing of the government can be conducted smoothly and instantaneously when funds are needed in the government's war on the depression. For example, if the government (as it has announced it would) embarks upon a great public works program, the money necessary to finance such projects would be immediately forthcoming.

But the government does not stop here.

It desires power, also, to issue through the Secretary of the Treasury, up to a maximum of three billion dollars in United States notes, which means currency.

Thus, the government proposes to be fortified with at least six billion dollars of credit (half through the Federal Reserve system) and currency.

The new currency is desired, according to the government's proposal, if the plans covering sale of government bonds to the Federal Reserve prove inadequate "to meet the purposes of this section of this act, or if for any other reason additional measures are required in the judgment of the President to meet such purposes."

This is tremendous power.

Furthermore, the government, under the proposed legislation, would be empowered to lower the amount of gold which shall represent a dollar and thus establish, if deemed necessary, a new standard unit of value in the United States. This power presumably will be exercised in conjunction with an international agreement revising the gold ratios of the principal world currencies.

Any change in the "gold content" of the dollar, which under the circumstances is certain to be a downward revision (less gold would represent a dollar) would be an inflationary, or reflationary measure.

On top of the above proposals, the government would be empowered under the reflationary program to issue up to a maximum of $100,000,000 annually in silver certificates, acceptable the same as all other federal money. These certificates would be backed by silver accepted from foreign governments which are debtors to the United States.

The program is the boldest yet devised by any government in the present world economic catastrophe.

The very boldness of the project, instituted by the gold embargo, electrified the American markets. Prices of commodities, long under pressure, which in some instances drove them down to unprecedented depths, boomed upward in sheer ecstasy of revived hope.

Thus the administration proposal even before enactment into law has been received with great acclaim.

A New Election Inquiry

The Federal Grand Jury Has an Opportunity to Strike a Blow at Fraud at the Polls.

Fraud at the polls is one of the worst evils with which this community is afflicted.

Little headway has been made in combatting it because of the leniency shown by the courts to convicted election crooks.

But there is encouragement in the fact that a tribunal which has hitherto not been concerned—the United States District Court—is about to give the subject its attention.

A federal grand jury is to conduct an inquiry into the frauds committed in the Congressional elections here last autumn. Attorney Earl F. Reed has been named by the Attorney General to assist in the prosecutions.

The grand jury and Mr. Reed have an opportunity to strike a blow at election crooks, and we are confident they will make the most of it.

No greater service could be rendered Allegheny County than to give the people honest elections.

A Low Beer License Fee

Care Must Be Taken Not to Make It So High As to Bring Back the Saloon

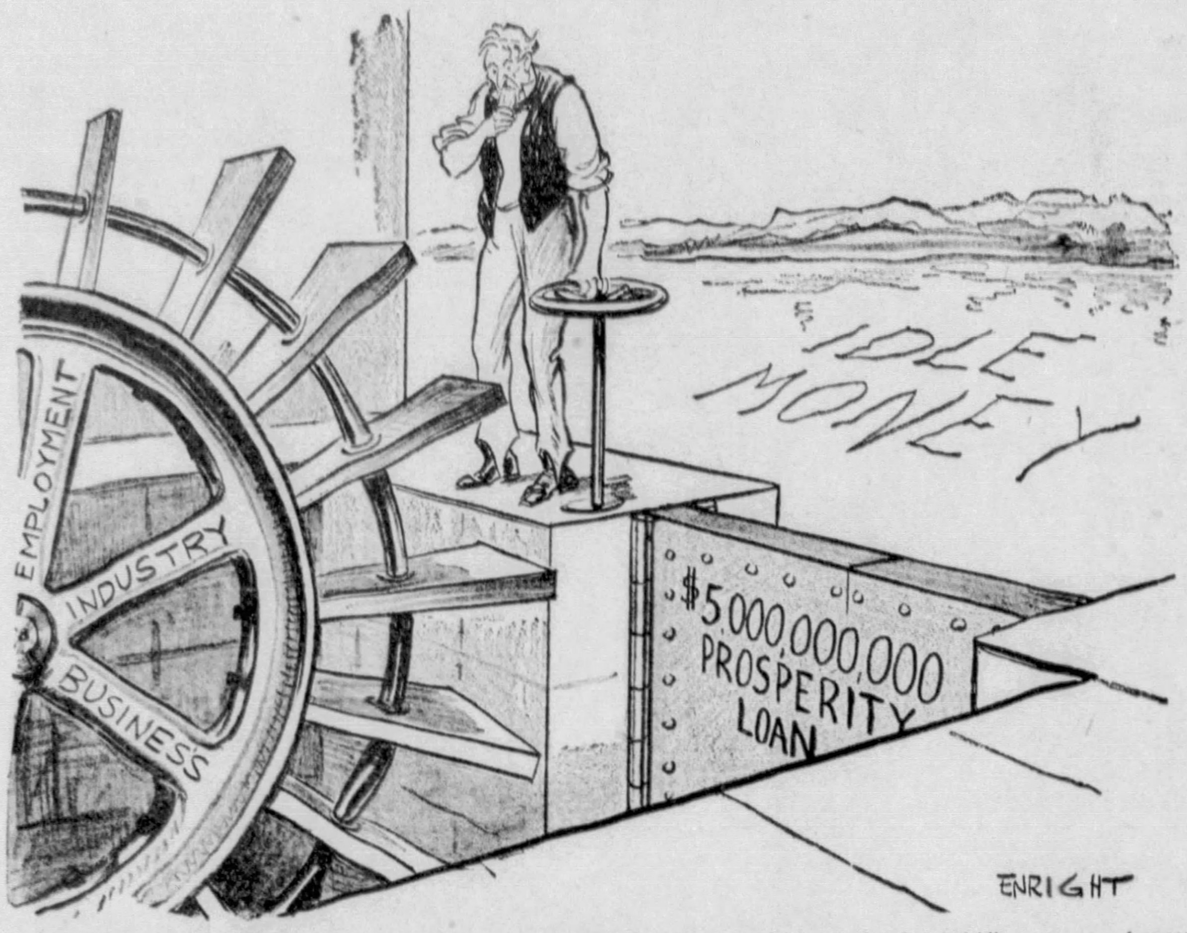
Beer is being drunk today amid respectable surroundings in restaurants and at soda fountains and refreshment stands. There is incentive in this for men to drink moderately and respectably, and not to make swine of themselves.

If it should become difficult and expensive to obtain a license to sell beer, the restaurants and drug stores would not sell it, and the business would pass exclusively into the hands of saloon-keepers. That would make for intemperance.

The Legislature is considering a new license bill. It should keep the fee at a figure low enough to permit the present situation to continue. If the fee should be made so high that the licensee would have to sell an enormous amount of beer to make any money, the saloon would come back, and the present restraints on intemperance would be removed.

Start the Wheels

(Copyright, 1933.)



As a part of his policies for the revival of trade and industry, President Roosevelt understands the primary importance of public works.

His Tennessee Valley project, with its utilization of Muscle Shoals, is the mere starting point of a proposed comprehensive program which the Federal Administration intends to carry out.

Since the depression began the Hearst newspapers have advocated this kind of economic leadership.

Up to five billions of dollars of idle money can be put to work. Thousands of idle men will obtain Government work. Purchase of materials from private industries will put other thousands to work. These industries, in turn, will stimulate other industries.

New employment will thus be made for millions. Buying power will be produced, commerce will resume its old course, natural resources will be developed for the future and a new prosperity will be built.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 26.—Newspaper headlines today are models of efficient epitomizing. It's among the highest of journalistic arts to tell the story in a few quick words. Sentiment no longer seems to creep into the world of headlines. But it was not always so.

Boss Clarke in Dana's day was noted for his captions. He broke very delightfully all the rules of the calling. About once a week he salvaged some stray item out of the run of the news and stippled it with a line that made an inconsequential something unforgettable.

There was the night a 6-year-old moppet of the slums stepped off a tenement roof to eternity. Instead of the familiar "Tot Topples to Doom!" Boss Clarke wrote: "A Little Child in the Dark!" The self-styled Bishop of Wall Street used to exhort on a Wall street corner. He sent out frequent manifestoes.

In one he asked harried money changers to seek solace with him every Thursday. Over it Clarke wrote: "The Bishop of Wall Street Will Be Sympathetic on Thursdays." But his top was the headline over an immigrant ship held up in the harbor suspected of typhus. It read: "Those Who Wait at the Gates!"

The magazine Fortune lists top liners of the cartoon and comic strip with the following weekly wages: Sidney Smith—$1,600; Bud Fisher—$1,600; George McManus—$1,600; Rube Goldberg—$1,600; Harry Tuthill—$1,400; Percy Crosby—$1,400; Fontaine Fox—$1,400; Billy De Beck—$1,200; H. T. Webster—$1,200; Sol Hess—$1,100; Frank King—$1,000 and Cliff Sterrett—$1,000. I happen to know four in the listing receive several hundreds of dollars above the magazine's quotation. Those on the inside tell me the whole list is a collection of guesses.

Quaint Murray Hill is less colorful these days as result of the departure of the Goadby Loews. "Should the Old Folks help the Young Folks make their start in married life?"

We asked that question the other day—and the postman's getting bow-legged dragging in the answers. Most of those answers made grand reading.

"Help the youngsters? Sure; to the limit!" they cried. And you knew that, between lines, one old face smiled to another through laughing tears—and two hearts turned back in memory to young, sweet days, before ever the "silver threads" had crept "among the gold," when nothing counted but Love.

But whether the answers were yea or nay, one notion ran through them all that set me wondering. INVARIABLY THE WRITER WANTED THINGS MADE EASY FOR THE GIRL. Help the boy, by all means. Give him a hand over the rough spots. But don't let him forget that, all his life, he should be grateful to the Brave Little Wife who is sharing his lot.

Remind him constantly of all she's done for him. Think of all she gave up—the pretty dresses, the lovely house, the loads of fun—when she left her father's house to become his wife; and make him feel that he'll never really rate as a Man "until he can support her in the style to which she has been accustomed."

"Remember the girl." "Protect the girl." "Be grateful to her." "Make yourself worthy of her." "Support her in the style to which she has been accustomed"—

BUT WHY? Why all this coddling and kow-towing to females? I'm a She, and I believe I fully appreciate my sex. I admit we are necessary and, sometimes, ornamental. But why should we be considered such an Extra Special Treat?

Why should young men be expected to be grateful for the chance of supplying our Three Squares Per, plus platinum et ceteras? Why should masculine hardships and sacrifices be taken for granted, yet Mamie's and Mine be Front Page News, to be rewarded with Congressional Medals?

Why must Husbands carry on where Dad leaves off? Marcel waves, model gowns and Miami vacations—how come that some silly little Sissy rates all this, gratis, just because her Papa was a banker?

Why must our males mortgage their immortal souls to prove worthy of us? Why shouldn't it be equally up to us to prove ourselves worthy of our males?

Personally, I'm sick of it, and I'm ready to tell the cock-eyed world right now that I DO NOT REGARD ALL THIS CODDLING OF THE FEMININE SEX AS A COMPLIMENT. TO THE CONTRARY, I CONSIDER IT A DOWNRIGHT INSULT. For what does it really mean?

Yes, I know what you're going to answer. All that beautiful blah about Women Being Mothers, and therefore we're sacred and should be protected. Piffle! I'm a mother. I also had to act as father for a score of years. And I'm telling you right now that when it comes to sacrifice and hard work, Motherhood has nothing on Fatherhood.

If anyone deserves a halo, it's Dad. Yet I can, at a moment's notice, produce thousands of females who honestly believe that a couple of hours in the obstetrical ward outweigh 20 years of dreary drudgery in an office.

So nix on that motherhood alibi for this coddling racket! It's no answer at all. The real reason why we're treated like Sacred White Elephants is because males still privately regard us as spineless saps.

Why are young husbands willing to go through an inferno to maintain Almost Entirely Useless Wives? That's why. Because it tickles their conceit.

And why will otherwise self-respecting women accept service which publicly brands them as nit-wits? Because it gratifies their laziness.

So there you have the inside dope on the oldest racket on earth—and if you like it, sister, you can have it. But as for me, any man who can't treat me as a 100 per cent Human Being, with spunk and sense equal to his own, needn't come around.

MAYBE I'M WRONG

By John P. Medbury

NEW YORK, April 26. — Two chorus girls were discussing women in general and their place in the business world.

"I think it's all right for a married woman to work, don't you? asked one of them.

"Certainly," replied the other. "There's no reason she should go hungry just because she's got a husband."

ADVICE TO PARENTS

Don't worry if your little boy is poor in arithmetic and can't count. Maybe he'll grow up to be the country club's most popular golf caddy.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

If you are a public speaker or if you ever speak in public, do not run over your time.

It is discourteous, especially when there are others on the program who must be left out while you ramble on.

One of the worst of these long-winded speakers is the one who runs over time at luncheon club meetings.

Most men figure upon a certain time for lunch and only so long.

They base their appointments accordingly and allot their time for each matter on a schedule that fills the entire day.

Ten or 15 minutes added to the lunch hour may disrupt the whole afternoon's plans.

Don't have several climaxes to your talk.

Don't look at your watch and then state "it will require only two or three minutes for me to reach the end of my talk" and continue for 15 or 20 minutes simply because the crowd does not walk out on you.

It must be a very unsually fine speaker who can hold the attention of his audience for more than 20 minutes at a noon-day meeting.

And there are too many "messages."

Text for Today

For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospels, the same shall save it.—Mark, viii:35.

Americans Need Work

BRITISH SHIP UNLOADING AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA, TONS OF REFINED SUGAR, ALL LABOR DONE OUTSIDE OF THE UNITED STATES.

This is the greatest sugar consuming country in the world. We buy millions of tons of sugar from countries that have it for sale—Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines. The people of the United States pay hundreds of millions of dollars to foreign countries that produce sugar. They should spend not one dollar abroad for MANUFACTURED sugar.

This country at least should keep for its own working people the jobs and pay connected with transforming RAW sugar into REFINED sugar.

The picture shows the British steamship "Baron Garioch," one of a great fleet of ships bringing refined sugar to the United States from Cuba and other outside countries.

This nation has nothing against friendly nationalities or their workers. But the working people of America believe that they should supply at least the labor that goes into the work of refining sugar. The great bulk of raw sugar comes from abroad, and that should satisfy our foreign friends. Workers IN THE UNITED STATES should do the work of refining the sugar.

When the United States buys sugar from abroad already refined American labor gets nothing out of it, which is preposterous.

More than one hundred and forty-seven million pounds of refined sugar came into this country completely manufactured last year. No American workman made a dollar. American families consumed it, paid for it—all the money was shipped abroad.

Business men and workmen engaged in sugar refining within the borders of the United States, if they are to survive, should have a "tariff differential" between raw sugar and refined sugar at least sufficient to make up for the difference in labor and refinery costs in this and foreign countries. As a matter of fact, the difference should be so great as to guarantee that ALL sugar sold in America would BE TURNED FROM RAW SUGAR INTO REFINED SUGAR IN AMERICA BY AMERICAN LABOR.

LOYALTY LACKING

By Winifred Black

"Billy is a good fellow," said my friend. "A ripping good fellow. I've known him for years, and I know it. He will give you his time, sympathy and his understanding. He'll give you his company and he'll give you his money, and he'll lend you his best friends.

"Billy will give you everything—but loyalty. And he can't give that, poor fellow—he hasn't got it to give."

Very reprehensible and inelegant of my friend to say "got," but that's what he said and so it shall stand. Willy, nilly—high or low, come thingumy or high-water.

And then I got to thinking about Billy. Nice fellow, Billy, good looking—well dressed—sings a little—strums the piano a bit, plays the Russian guitar till you think you're in Petrograd on a winter's night with all the sleigh bells chiming like mad.

Tells a good story, does Billy. Dances well. Makes an excellent salad at little Bohemian suppers, and the way he can beat up a cheese omelet and serve it with little brown sausages—! Good at his job, too, is Billy. Works hard and makes money when there is money to be made.

Yes, Billy is a fine fellow.

I like him, and so does everyone else. We love to have him with us. He lights the room like a fire on the hearth. What a gusto he has. What an appetite for living—best usher at the wedding.

Fine, dignified pall-bearer at the funeral—nice fellow all around, you can't deny it.

What's that his friend said about loyalty? I guess that's true, too. I never thought of it before. But now that I do think of it I seem to remember that Billy was on both sides when Tom and Dick had their great quarrel. We all took sides—some with Tom and some with Dick, but Billy—oh, he wouldn't take sides.

You always know right where to find him, this Billy who is so popular and so good looking and so agreeable. And that is right in the middle of the road, where he is good and comfortable and perfectly safe.

Nice fellow, Billy—but I don't believe I like him so very well after all.

"Everything but loyalty."

Well Billy, I'm afraid I must ask you to step down the road right now. I'd rather have your rough, rather stupid brother Joe for my friend. He knows what real friendship really means.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

What Do I Fear?

What do I fear? The pangs of pain?
The knowledge gladness soon must wane?
The lonely thought of many miles
That part me from my loved one's smiles?
The phantoms fancy calls to mind
Of forces sinister, unkind?
The threats of malice or of rage?
The cruel blight of creeping age?
Are these the distant clouds which fling
Their shadows on the face of spring,
And, though intangible, can change
Things bright and dear to dark and strange?

What do I fear? Why, only this:
To read my neighbor's thoughts amiss,
To leave undone some kindliness
For any brother in distress,
Or by a lurking, secret doubt
To shut supernal goodness out!
